

CAPITOL COMPLEX

The Michael J. Howlett Building is south of the Capitol. Formerly the Centennial Building, it was erected to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Illinois' admission to the Union as the 21st state. The cornerstone of the $3 million building was laid in 1918, and the building was completed in 1923. Additions in 1928 and 1966 converted the original rectangular structure into a square building while retaining the original classic architectural design. Several departments of the Secretary of State's office are located in the building, and historic flags carried by Illinois regiments during the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and World War I are preserved carefully in display cases in Memorial Hall, just inside the building's two main entrances on the north side.

Immediately west of the Capitol is the William G. Stratton Building. Ground was broken for the H-shaped, 448,000-square-foot structure on Feb. 15, 1954, and it was completed some 20 months later at a cost of $11.5 million. It contains the offices of members of the State Senate and House of Representatives as well as some state agencies and departments.

Adjacent to the Margaret Cross Norton Building is the Illinois State Museum, designed to display the many historic, artistic and natural treasures of Illinois. The official groundbreaking ceremony was held Jan. 5, 1961, and the $2.2 million building was dedicated on Feb. 4, 1963. The museum has four large exhibit halls, two on each of the first two floors. Curatorial offices and related laboratories and shops are located on the third floor along with the staff's technical library. A replica of a Tlingit Indian totem pole welcomes visitors at the museum's entrance.

The Attorney General's Building, east of the Michael J. Howlett Building across Second Street, houses the offices of more than 140 attorneys and support staffers. Construction of the three-story, $2.8 million building began in 1968, and the formal dedication was held on Jan. 27, 1972. Sandblasted architectural concrete was used in the construction of the building's light gray exterior walls, and the interior features a center courtyard.

North of the Capitol is the Armory, which replaced the State Arsenal that burned in 1934. This building houses the offices of several divisions of the Illinois State Police. The offices surround a large auditorium with a seating capacity of 6,000, which often has been the site of inauguration ceremonies for state officials.

The Margaret Cross Norton Building, just west of the Michael J. Howlett Building, houses the State Archives, a department of the Secretary of State's office. Formerly the Archives Building, it was designed to protect the state's valuable historic records from the hazards of fire, theft and exposure. Construction began in 1936 with aid from the New Deal's Public Works Administration, and the building was completed in 1938 at a cost of $820,000. It is architecturally unique, having no windows on the fourth through seventh floors.

The Illinois State Library Building was opened to the public in 1990. The $36 million, 164,000-square-foot structure, just north of the Attorney General's Building, is the first building specifically designed and constructed to house the collections of the Illinois State Library. The building's classic architecture and sandstone walls were chosen to blend with other major buildings of the Capitol Complex.

The Capitol Visitors' Center, just west of the William G. Stratton Building, was opened formally on June 8, 1988. Covering two city blocks, the $3.7 million structure provides visitors with parking, information, picnic facilities, vending machines, rest rooms and a spacious, air-conditioned place to relax.

ATTORNEYS GENERAL

Under the Constitution of 1818, the Attorney General was appointed by the General Assembly. The 1848 Constitution mentioned the Attorney General only as an officer ineligible to be elected as a member of the General Assembly, and in view of the meager definition the office was held in abeyance until an act creating the office was approved Feb. 27, 1867, when Governor Oglesby appointed Ingersoll. Under the 1870 Constitution the Attorney General became a constitutional officer.

SECRETARIES OF STATE

Before the 1848 Constitution, the Secretary of State was appointed by the Governor rather than elected by the citizens of Illinois. Constitutionally, the Secretary is required to maintain acts of the General Assembly, specified records of the executive branch and the Great Seal of Illinois. Until 1973, responsibilities included supervising state elections. The administrative structure of the office and diverse departments have undergone frequent change in an effort to fulfill statutory obligations.

AUDITORS OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

By mandate of the Illinois Constitution of 1818, the Office of the Auditor of Public Accounts assumed responsibility for auditing and recording all accounts of the state, keeping accounts of taxes that had been received or disbursed, and maintaining a fair record of the issuance of all warrants and certificates for disbursements. Initially, the Auditor of Public Accounts was appointed by the General Assembly for a four-year term; in 1833 the term was reduced to two years; and, under the 1848 Constitution, the office became a popularly elected one with elected officials serving four-year terms. The Office of the Auditor of Public Accounts was dissolved under the 1970 Constitution, and in 1973, the newly-created Comptroller became keeper of the state's fiscal accounts.

JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT

Under the Constitution of 1818, Justices of the Supreme Court were appointed by the General Assembly. Four justices were appointed in 1818, and five new seats were created in 1841. The Constitution of 1848 reduced the size of the court to three and provided for popular election of one justice from each of the state's three grand divisions. The Constitution of 1970 expanded the court to seven, its present size, while retaining popular election.

CLERKS OF THE SUPREME COURT

Prior to the adoption of the Constitution of 1848, the Clerk of the Supreme Court was appointed by the court. The record as to dates of appointment is somewhat obscure. James M. Duncan was appointed July 12, 1819. Ebenezer Peck appears as the successor of Duncan; Wm. B. Warren seems to have been the successor of Peck. From 1848 to 1902, one clerk was elected in each of the Three Grand Divisions. The Three Grand Divisions were consolidated into one, comprising the entire state, by the Act of 1897, which provided that but one clerk be elected in 1902 and every six years thereafter. The 1970 Constitution of the State of Illinois provided that this office become appointive in 1975.

¹From 1800 until about 1824, the party designation "Republican" meant the followers of Thomas Jefferson. By 1824 the party was splitting into two factions: the National Republicans, who soon came to be known as Whigs, and the Democratic Republicans, soon called Democrats. The word "Republican" did not acquire its present party meaning until 1854-1856.

²Resigned 1825, appointed U.S. commissioner to locate military roads.

³Originally a Democrat, then a Republican, Haines ran as an Independent in this and succeeding years.

⁴Resigned May 10, 1889, appointed U.S. Comptroller.

⁵Succeeded Matthews; died July 20, 1890.

⁶Died July 3, 1895.

⁷Elected to fill vacancy of Ralph T. Smith, who was appointed U.S. Senator.

⁸Resigned two days short of full term when sworn in as Lieutenant Governor.

⁹Elected by House acclamation and served remainder of session.

*The 1970 Constitution of the State of Illinois provided that this office become appointive in 1975.

TRUSTEES OF THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS

The university was incorporated by act of the General Assembly, Feb. 28, 1867, as the Illinois Industrial University; its name was changed by the General Assembly in 1885 to the University of Illinois. Originally there were 28 trustees appointed by the Governor, who, with the president of the university, Dr. J. M. Gregory (called regent), the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the President of the State Board of Agriculture, were members ex officio. The original 28 appointed members drew lots at the first meeting to decide the length of their terms, as provided in the law. The normal term is six years.

In 1873, the number of trustees was reduced to 11 — the Governor, President of the State Board of Agriculture and nine members appointed by the Governor for six-year terms. A number of trustees appointed to serve from March 1873 actually served only a few weeks, as the new law was effective in May 1873. In 1887, the General Assembly made membership on the board elective at a general state election and restored the Superintendent of Public Instruction as a member. The Office of President of the State Board of Agriculture was abolished by law, effective Jan. 1, 1919.

The following list gives the appointed members of the board from 1867 to March 12, 1889 (when the first elected trustees took office), followed by the names of the elected trustees to Jan. 1, 1996, when a new law once again made the positions appointive. However, based on a ruling of the Illinois Supreme Court on March 21, 1996, terms of elected trustees were allowed to expire, and future trustees are appointed by the Governor in groups of three every two years. The first three appointed trustees under this law took office in January 1997.

LEGISLATIVE ROSTER, 1818-2000

The following roster lists the members of all 91 General Assemblies that have met since Illinois became a state in 1818.

The 1st General Assembly, which met at Kaskaskia on Oct. 5, 1818, consisted of only 14 senators and 29 representatives. The current Assembly (91st) has 59 senators and 118 representatives.

The members of the 16th General Assembly, which convened at Springfield on Jan. 1, 1849, were the first to be elected from defined districts.

The House members of the 74th Assembly (1965-66) were elected "At Large" because of the failure to reapportion.
