nt, Rides A Motorcycle With Her Son

CLARKSTON

Later she was president of ~~Gren-~~ ~~wich~~ Village and served for seven years, until 1981 when the yuppies took over.

In 1976 Fontie learned that she was adopted. She was able to learn something of her background. In 1977 her husband learned that he was also adopted. Coincidence perhaps, but surely disconcerting to two middle-age adults. Together they surmised their beginnings and sought information about their birth.

Before moving to College Walk, Fontie was involved in MADD and Youth Assistance programs.

Winfred Rhoades once wrote, "Life's supreme adventure is the adventure of living." That's an adventure Fontie continues to pursue.
