

My dear Claire,
One bright summer's day, I saw a birth day card
written to a friend of mine, from his father.
It was so beautiful
that I decided to remember it always especially when I am most sad.

He said, "May your life have enough clouds,
to make a beautiful
sunset."

Dear boy, I know that the death
of a lovely Mother is more than the
blackest of clouds,
but it is sorrow
that enables us.
To say that I extend my most heart-

felt sympathy to you,
can only mildly express the depth of my feeling for you.
Sincerely forever,
Your friend,
Blanche A. Zimmermann.
