COUNTING ROOM, 221 NORTH MAIN STREET.

TELEPHONE CALL, No. 84.

A. FLEMING, CITY EDITOR.

CAUGHT ON THE RUN.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Clark are expected home to-night.

H. A. Herbert, of Ada, is in the city on professional business.

Mrs. M. Sullivan, of Cincinnati, is visiting relatives in this city.

F. B. Pangle, who buried his wife at Delphos on Wednesday, is here with relatives.

Luke O'Brien the genial lightning slinger at the C. H. & D. depot will be married on Aug. 6.

A pleasant reception was given last evening by Miss Clara Hughes in honor of her guest, Miss Mathers, of Sidney.

T. H. Willis, of Bradford Pa., who has been spending a few days with friends in the city returned home today.

Mrs. B. W. Oliver and children, of Walnut Hills, are visiting her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Long, of North Jackson street.

Get rid of that tired feeling as quick as possible. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives strength, a good appetite and health.

Henry Light, an old Lima boy, who is now living in Detroit and traveling for a Pittsburgh manufacturing firm, is in the city to-day.

H. M. Colvin has a very nice team of gray ponies in his grocery wagon. They are two of the lot brought from the West a few weeks ago by his brother Jerome. They are not only good looking but willing and quiet.

Just received from Dunn & McCarthy, of Auburn, New York, the highest grade shoe manufacturers a shipment, among others, of "real beauties," one's, one and a half, and all sizes for ladies. These goods speak for themselves, and are going at bargain prices.

"Squig Decker held court this morning in the case of Henry Finkelson against R. A. Roberts. The case resulted from the painting of a sign for Roberts by Finkelson and the hearing of testimony, was postponed for dinner. The arguments will be heard later.

About 9 o'clock last night, a white horse attached to a covered buggy got frightened and ran away from near the P. F. W. & C. railroad and down Main street. He cantered easily till he got past North street, then the shouts at him sent him off on a jump. He went on down through the Square and the alley leading to Musser's stables, where he was stopped.

Death of Henry Hadsell.

Henry Hadsell, died at six o'clock this morning at his residence on north Main street. He had been sick for a couple of weeks, having an abscess, or some gathering in his side. A tube was put in to carry off the matter, but the discharge was not free enough, and the affection reached a vital part. He was on the street last week and was thought to be somewhat stronger yesterday; but last night his symptoms became alarming, and he died this morning.

The funeral will be held at the house on N Main street tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. After services there the Knights of Pythias of this city, assisted by the Van Wert Lodge, will take charge of the body of the deceased and escort it to Woodlawn cemetery, where it will be buried with the impressive services of the order.

Mr. Hadsell's death takes from Lima one of her prominent and honored citizens; one whose honesty and courteous conduct had won for him innumerable friends. His family and those interested in him have the sympathy of the entire community.

Lost His Job.

Lane McFarland, a L. E. & W. brakeman, didn't like the way things were being run about the depot, and went into the car telephone office to clean it out. He did for everybody left. The police were sent for; but McFarland had gone when they arrived. Officer Comer and Wise afterwards got him and locked him up. This morning the Mayor fined him $11.10. He will get his time today, the fine will be deducted, and the balance paid over to him.

GOD'S ACRE.

A Visit to the Old Cemetery Recalls the Names of Many Dead Heroes.

A representative of the TIMES strayed into the old cemetery last evening, an advantage in two ways over being carried, confined, into a new one. In the first place a live man is better than a dead one—if he is any man at all—and in the second place an old cemetery is much more pleasing than a new one. Very soon the inquisitive rapscallion became deeply interested in the old place, and in the inscriptions on the monuments, many of them discolored by others leaning—all to the eastward—and some broken and fallen. Passing to the eastern, or lower side of the ancient burying ground, the intruder upon the quiet of the dead, who had lived with all the passions and strivings of to-day, espied a man cutting the grass among the graves. Entering into conversation with this utilitarian among the tombs, the newspaper man found that he was as first surprised the sexton, William Spring; also the superintendent and policeman of the place. He also learned that the trustees of this old cemetery are James Hoover, T. D. Robb and Charles McKeane, the latter being also secretary of the board.

Mr. Spring has only had charge for two or three years. Before that, for some years, the ancient "city of the dead" had been sadly neglected, was overrun with weeds, and a rendezvous for careless and dissolute characters. Mr. Spring states that during the first year he had considerable trouble in suppressing these people; but has none now. He is very pleased to see visitors at any time, from six in the morning till seven in the evening. He mows the grass about three times a season, using it to feed his horse. He has trimmed all the trees except the maples, which he will attend to in the fall. There are a number of very fine trees in the old place. Seven hundred feet of tile were laid this spring, for better drainage; and altogether this old cemetery has been greatly improved. The western part, in particular where the grass has been cut, looks very well.

Since the opening of the new cemetery, rendered necessary because the old one was too small, burials have been less frequent in the old one; but those who have lots there continue to use them for the interment of their dead. There have been thirteen burials there since the spring.

Here and there scattered over the whole extent of the cemetery, about three acres, are to be seen small flags marking a soldier's grave. Not far from the central plat, a reserved circular space is the monument of General William Blackburn, a soldier of the Mexican war. A short distance north is that of Captain Martin Armstrong, and the inscription tells that he "Fall at Shiloh, April 6, 1862, aged 20 years, 1 month and 12 days." Near by lies Capt. David A. Henson, also Capt. Joseph Hull. Another monument in the northern part of the grounds is that of Capt. Levi J. Saint, and it briefly states that he resigned after the battle of Vicksburg on account of ill health, and died of lung disease, January 13th, 1862, aged 26 years and 21 days.

In the same part of the cemetery are the graves of Capt. Wm. Huston and Dr. W. Ward, who held the rank of Captain.

In the midst of the dust of those who battled for the Union lies that of a soldier who wore the gray, Thomas J. Robb, who died August 29, 1865, aged 24 years, 6 months and 25 days. He peacefully shares the "bivouac of the dead" with those against whom he strove.

An interesting inscription is that relating to James H. Harper. It simply tells that he died a prisoner of war at Andersonville, September 7, 1864, aged 15 years.

This boy joined the army at the age of thirteen; but his father secured his discharge and brought him home. The lad ran away and again entered the service of his country; and the next his father heard of him was that he died in the Andersonville prison pen.

Other monuments of Union officers are those of Major Wm. Dowling, who died September 12, 1862, aged 51 years, 5 months and 24 days, and of Capt Wm V. Beatty, who died in June, 1865, aged 25 years.

One row of monuments mark the graves of thirty or forty of the old Haver family, all in line. Another row is of the graves of a whole family carried off by cholera; and still another of small-pox. In the western part of the grounds is the old Haver vault, now vacated.

One, grave unmarked by any stone, right against the south fence, was pointed out as that of a minister who died in the old brewery. He had become so degraded, through drink, that his own people would not own him, and his name has passed from memory. His grave was dug by old Uncle John Kushmaga, who declared that the dead man weighed 300 pounds.

Another interesting monument is one toward the south east corner of the cemetery. It is a square shaft, and the south face bears an inscription to the memory of Elizabeth Thugot who died in September 1850 aged 166 years. The west face tells that John Murray died June 23, 1872, aged 55 years, 3 months and 12 days; and the north side that Lucy, wife of John Murray, died in December 1860, aged 72 years. The presumption is that Lucy was the daughter of the centenarian mother, who died but two years before her.

John Murray was a soldier of the Union, as indicated by the stars and stripes marking the grave.

What is most needed now in the old cemetery is, that the descendants of those whose bones moulder there should attend to the straightening of the very many leaning monuments; or that they should pay sexton William Spring to do the work. It is not hard of accomplishment, and should be done somehow. There is much history in this old burying ground, and it should be preserved as long as possible, and in the most respectable shape.

INDIAN RELICS.

A Fine Collection Presented to James Pillars.

Wm. Rusler, late Indian instructor on the Lac Court Oreville Indian reservation in northern Wisconsin, has presented County Surveyor James Pillars, an indefatigable collector, with a number of very fine Indian curios. Principal among them is a large pipe, presented to Mr. Rusler on the eve of his departure from the reservation by Ak-e-wen-gie, the head chief. The head is of black stone from the bottom of Lake Superior, ornamented with bands like bronze, and having a sort of a crest with five holes, a favorite pattern. The handle is about a yard long, part of it is spirally carved and part straight, and the wonder is how a hole could be bored through it without breaking through the spirals. This wooden handle is brilliantly painted. The pipe is more than 100 years old, and was used as a peace pipe, and afterwards by the head chief as a "protection against thunder."

There are three other pipes in the collection, one of them is in the back of a spear shaped tomahawk or battle axe, with a wooden handle forming the pipe stem. It belonged to Wha-ge-zhi-goom, (Old Hunter), a Lake Superior Indian. Another is a medicine pipe, of stone, carved in the shape of a human head with hat. The face looks like one of Puck's Irish caricatures. This belonged to Mis-quaw-ge-jig (Red Sky) and was supposed to possess supernatural properties, and be of great power. It was used in the medicine dance. The other pipe is of Cheyenne make, and was given to Mr. Rusler by a U. S. Inspector.

A bow, with arrows, was made by Ki-gi-ni-ni, (Big Old Man).

A copper spear point was found in an ancient mound, and is supposed to be the work of the mound builders.

An iron spear point was found by Long John an Indian, near the old trading post called by the Indians, Pad-quah-wong.

A fine large string of wampum belonged to Ne-wi-wash, and was worn in the dances.

A pair of leggings belonged to chief Pa-mo-sa-ge-jig.

A birch bark canoe, about three feet long is elaborately worked.

A decoy fish, made of bone, and dotted with paint, was let down by a string into the water so as to attract the fish toward the spear of the Indian in wait for them.

A copper float was found on Eddy Creek, Sawyer county, Wisconsin.

A fine piece of bead work was presented by Mrs. Rusler to Mrs. Pillars. It is an unusually fine specimen of Indian art, in the form of a heart.

A pair of lead knuckles were made by Gish-ka-to-wa-nay (Bob White) and used by him for knocking out bad half-breeds.

A pair of beaded garters were worn by Gi-wa-ti-sh, who was, no doubt, very proud of them.

An Ojibbawa spelling book which contains the alphabet, a key to the sounds of the letters and numerous other things, and many sentences in Ojibbawa and English.

THE COUNTY OFFICES.

Newsp Notes Picked Up Round the Court House.

M. H. McCulloch has filed suit against the city for injunction to prevent the annexation of his farm to the corporation.

The County Treasurer yesterday collected $3,666.80 on the tax duplicate and paid out $56.50 on county orders and $174.20 on city orders.

PROBATE COURT.

Ex-Congressman Lamison was in the city this morning. He came in from his Sulphur Springs farm earlier than usual, and was enthusiastic about the matter of the proposed Lutheran college, which he thinks would be a grand thing for Lima.

"But," said he, "it does not want to be located in town. The very best place for it will be on the Sulphur Springs farm, which is just two miles north of Lima on the line of the D. & M. road. BRIEF BITS.

Another Site Proposed for Lima's College.—Minor Mentions of General Interest.

Mrs. A. T. Driker, of Mauckato, Minn., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Mitchell, in this city.

Before coming over to Lima this morning, Clerk D. H. Tolan called at the hotel in Delphos and inquired as to the condition of Mrs. Stewart and her grandson, who were injured last Wednesday in the railroad accident on the Pennsylvania road, and were taken to Delphos for medical aid. He was informed that Mrs. Stewart was improving and would probably recover, but that the boy was falling rapidly and his recovery was considered very doubtful. The injuries he received about the head are the most serious.

The week just closing has been an active one in Lima society. Concerts, receptions and parties have been almost a nightly occurrence, and a couple of lawn fetes have added to the enjoyment of Lima people.

Among the most pleasant events of the week was the reception given on Thursday night by Messrs. Fox and Evans at Fen Court, in honor of Miss Nielson, the charming daughter of Mr. Nielson of the Lima Oil Company. The suave and courteous hosts had arrayed Fen Court in its holiday attire, and received and entertained the guests in their usual unimpaired manner. The reception partook somewhat of the character of a musicale, in which several selections were rendered by Miss Mame Mitchell, Miss Nielson, Miss Mary Brice, Miss Alice Holdridge, Miss Hills and Mr. James T. Russell, who also delivered a couple of recitations.

The heavy rain of last evening interfered with the lawn fete at the ladies of the South Lima Presbyterian church had arranged to hold at the residence of Mrs. Josiah Williams, on South Main.

There is no place like it in Allen county for such a purpose."

William Langan, of Washington, D. C., has been the guest of his brothers in Lima for the past week.

The music-loving people of Lima were given a musical treat at the Ap. Macdon concert at Cambrian Hall last night.

The people of South Pine and Tanner streets are greatly exercised over the demand which has been made generally along both streets, for new Beres alore or brick sidewalks from the creek south.

A remonstrance is being circulated against the proposed improvement, and will be presented to the Council on Monday night.

The people on South Tanner street want a sewer from Kibby street to the creek, and believe they should have the sewer before they build sidewalks.

The TIMES has always contended that the morning papers copied their news from the TIMES of the night before, and a most signal illustration of this was afforded us this morning.

Last night's TIMES contained a statement of a suit brought by Jno. A. Chapin against B. C. Fauror. The amount sued for was something over $1,000, but a typographical error in the TIMES made it read $103.72. This morning's GAZETTE, by a strange coincidence, contains exactly the same error. Funny, isn't it?

Retired.

John Guinan got drunk last night and raised a disturbance at the Florantine Hotel, on Wayne street. Officer Cottraw went to arrest him, when Guinan showed fight. He was taken down, however, and locked up; and this morning the Mayor fined him $50 and sentenced him to the Work House for 30 days, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, and resisting an officer. John will go into retirement for several months.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS.

Tests of the Power and Safety of Americanite.

Several interesting experiments were made this afternoon, away out in the Shawnee township woods, near the Hercules Torpedo company's nitro-glycerine factory. They were to demonstrate the force and safety of "Americanite," the new explosive, as compared with the others. There were on the grounds as spectators, Chas. M. Johnson, of the Hercules Torpedo company; Leo Phillips, Arthur Marsh and J. Thompson, of the Rock Glycerine company; A. C. Sander, of the Oil Well Supply company; the maker of nitro-glycerine for the Hercules Torpedo company, W. J. Ritchie, Wm. Williams, and others. The tests were conducted by S. D. Smolinoff, the inventor of this explosive. He first filled a tin tube with the Americanite and threw it with great force against a tree to show that there was no explosion by concussion. He also battered the tube with stones, till it was all out of shape. He then took a fruit can and placed inside a bottle containing about three ounces of rifle powder and exploded it, showing that the powder would explode inside but the Americanite would not also that nitro-glycerine would go off with the powder and the Americanite would not. He took equal quantities of nitro-glycerine and Americanite and exploded them in the ground. The Americanite blew out a bigger hole than the nitro-glycerine, showing its greater power plainly. A peculiarity of the two explosives was that the Americanite went off with a quicker, sharper report than the nitro-glycerine. The difference was something like the report of a rifle and a shot gun. There was no smoke, and the inventor claims that Americanite gives off no poisonous gases. In this he is backed by Arthur Marsh, who declares that he had a headache the other day, suaded a lot of Americanite, and it cured him. Everybody who saw the tests to-day is satisfied that the new explosive is a good and a safe thing.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF TRADE.

There has been very much complaint for the past two years because the Board of Directors has not been doing anything for the advancement of the City. We have called several meetings with a usual attendance of less than a dozen of members. This should not be the case when the Directors call a meeting. It is always in the interest of the City, and every member of the Board should be present. Not only the members of the Board of Trade, but citizens in general. All should have a common interest in the welfare of our growing and thriving City. I do hope that we will have a rousing meeting next Wednesday evening, as it will be a very important one. We hope that Music Hall will be filled up.

JNO. O'CONNOR.

A Restaurant Roast.

About one o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the kitchen of James Orr's restaurant, E Market street. The discovery was made in time to prevent much damage, as the flames were put out with a few buckets of water. An alarm was turned in, and the fire brigade turned out, but threw no water. The fire was caused by a pipe from the kitchen stove igniting a board wainscot.
