The coming five weeks is usually a dull business period and in order to liven things up a little we have decided to inaugurate a friendly coupon contest. The contest will be for boys and girls under sixteen. Coupons will appear in The Journal every Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday, and in the News-Call every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, entitling the holder to one vote for each coupon. Luther Overstreet of York, who is well known in Lincoln in university circles, is now an officer on the Oregon, having charge of one of its celebrated gun crews. Complaint has been made to the insanity commissioners that Albert Sistak, who figured in an examination some time ago, had been acting queerly again, and he will be looked after. This afternoon at 4 o'clock the commissioners will hear complaints against Mrs C. L. Taylor and Mrs. Mary Ryan, two old women who have been at St. Elizabeth's hospital for some time. They are without relatives in Lincoln, and are said to be hopelessly, although not violently insane.

The News-Call will tomorrow print an account of the battle off Santiago on July 3th, in which the entire fleet of Admiral Cervera was destroyed. The account, which will be about a column long, was written by an eye witness, a man whose education in naval affairs gives him the right to speak with authority, and one who is personally known to a great many Nebraskans. Luther M. Overstreet, who went to Annapolis from Arborville, this state, wrote a letter to his parents immediately after the action, while his ship, the Oregon, was returning to her post on the blockading squadron from chasing and destroying the ships of the Spanish fleet. The account is an accurate description of the action from a close point of view and will be read with great interest.

Mayor Graham and ex-Officer John Morrissey had a exciting little encounter near th[illegible] very stable Saturday evening. Morrissey is one of the officers who contributed $10 under what he claims to be practically duress, to the mayor's campaign expenses, and Saturday evening he drove up, with ex-Officer McWilliams and accosting the mayor, desired to know when he was going to pay back "that ten dollars you held me up for." The mayor told him just as emphatically that he had the money and was not going to give it to him. Morrissey made an h[illegible] demand and the mayor informed him of the hopelessness of his ever getting it. Morrissey then expressed the hope and belief that if the mayor would but come back into the alley with him he would take it out of his person in a few minutes. The mayor replied, "No, you can't. You'll do nothing of the sort." Morrissey made no move to get out and try it, and McWilliams whipped up his horse quickly in order that hostilities could not commence. Morrissey says the mayor had before promised to return it and now that he needs it he can't get it. His friends opine that there will be a scrap the next time the pair meet on foot.

WHAT THE CHILDREN THINK.

Vote Taken on the Question of Liquor at the Fair.

Superintendent Saylor has just received complete returns from the vote taken among the school children of the city on the questions of selling liquor on the exposition grounds in Omaha, and also on the question of Sunday opening at the fair. Both questions were submitted to the children without comment of any kind and with absolutely nothing said or indicated as to how they should vote. The teachers are of the opinion that the children acted with minds entirely free and were not afraid to put down what they think.

It was intended that a vote should be taken only in such grades as contained scholars old enough to understand the question, but in some of the buildings the vote was carried down through all the grades. The scheme was undertaken simply in the hope of obtaining some interesting statistics as to the views of children and the returns are viewed more as a contribution to the subject of child study than as anything else.

The figures for the different buildings run as follows:

DISCHARGES THE ACCUSED WHO MUST PAY COSTS

Judge Cornish this morning entered up his order in the contempt case inaugurated by Attorney Morsman of Omaha against the attorney general and the secretaries of the state board of transportation. He made the defendants pay the costs, although he said they did what they had done in the belief that it was lawful, and restrained the board from hearing Yeiser's complaint. The judgment on the proceedings for contempt is in full as follows:

"This cause came on to be heard on the 22d day of July, A. D. 1898, before me, Albert J. Cornish, one of the judges of said court, on the information of W. W. Morsman, charging defendants Constantine J. Smyth, Joseph W. Edgerton, James C. Dahlman and Gilbert L. Laws with disobedience of the order of injunction heretofore [illegible] 1898, being fully advised in the premises, finds that the charges contained in said information are true; that the proceedings had by the said defendants, done at the time and in the manner charged, would constitute a disobedience of the order of injunction herein, and being wilfully done constitute a contempt of court.

"The court further finds that the acts complained of were done by the defendants in the belief that the same were lawful.

"It is therefore ordered that the said defendants desist from all further proceedings at this time in the hearing of the complaint of John O. Yeiser, filed with the state board of transportation, proceedings in which cause were restrained by the order of injunction, and that they pay the costs herein."

A similar order was entered in the case of the Pacific Express company against the board, the contempt proceedings having been brought in the name of the telephone company only.

The court also filed his opinion on the point raised by the controversy, which was whether the companies had lost the right to appeal. On this the court said:

"On the 8th day of July the court sustained the defendants' demurrer to plaintiff's petition, dissolved the temporary injunction before granted in behalf of the plaintiff, dismissed the plaintiff's action and fixed the amount of the supersedeas bond. Two orders were signed, one sustaining the demurrer and dissolving the injunction, the other dismissing the action and fixing the amount of the bond, but both were entered at one time.

"On the 11th day of July, the defendants were proceeding as though the bond filed by plaintiff did not supersede the order dissolving the injunction on the theory that the order superseded was the one dismissing the case and not the one dissolving the injunction.

"Section 677 of the code provides that 'when the decree or final order dissolves any order of injunction which has been granted, the supersedeas bond shall be in such sum as the court shall prescribe. * * * and such supersedeas bond shall stay the doing of the act or acts sought to be restrained by the suit and continue such injunction in force until the case is heard and finally determined in the supreme court.' It is conceded by defendants that if the two orders had been in one order, that then the filing of the bond would have superseded the order dissolving the injunction. The court is of the opinion that the two orders, being entered at the same time, are in effect one order, and that the legal right of the plaintiff to an appeal ought not to be defeated by the form of the orders entered.

"The court does not pass upon the question whether parties appealing can unnecessarily delay hearing by failing to perfect their appeal in the supreme court. Parties are allowed [illegible] which to file their bond and [illegible] allowed a reasonable time [illegible] to perfect their appeal, and the court does not believe that from the [illegible] day of July was sufficient time.

"Counsel for the plaintiff state that they were proceeding to file the transcript in the supreme court with [illegible] [illegible] and that [illegible] delay. No apparent intent [illegible] part to do so was been shown, and the court will not presume it."

The court was evidently unable to find anything in the law that [illegible] companies [illegible] quicker th[illegible] in the six [illegible] by statute for them to do so.

Mrs. McLean Wants a Divorce

Mrs. Rebecca C. McLean is desirous of having the district court divorce her from David F. McLean, to whom she was married in Auburn on the 21st day of March, 1885. Her grounds are extreme cruelty, extending over a period of six months, and which she says was of such a nature that she was compelled to leave him on June 4th last. She says that in February last he placed a loaded revolver at her head and threatened to kill her; that in March she went to a church near her home when defendant armed himself with a corn knife and coming to the church compelled her to return home with him at once. She insists that she had no peace at home and in order to avoid nervous prostration she had to leave. She accuses him of being an imbiber and of a morose and jealous disposition, to have repeatedly of late threatened to kill her and used vile and indecent language to her.

Other Court Matters.

Mrs. Harriet A. Hoover was appointed administratrix of the estate of her deceased husband, William H. Hoover, this morning. The estate is valued at $56,000 and besides the widow there are three heirs, Mrs. Walsh, Miss Marie and Miss Helen Hoover.

Jesse E. Buell was arrested today by Deputy Sheriff Trompen on a warrant sworn out in county court by his mother, Mrs. Minnie N. Buell, who charges him with incorrigibility. She told the judge that Jesse had been guilty of a variety of misdemeanors, culminating in his forging her name to an order for several dollars, after which he skipped out to Hastings. As she admits that she cannot control him, the boy's chances of going to Kearney tomorrow are good.

J. H. Ouderkirk of 1126 D street reported to the sheriff this morning that he was out a black mare that either strayed away or was annexed by some equine impersonalist.

Levi Butcher is endeavoring to secure from Judge Hall this afternoon an order compelling the sheriff to make out a list of his possessions so that he can put in a claim for exemptions. The McCormick judgment against Butcher, who lives at judgment against Butcher, who lives at West Lincoln, and every time he gets anything the sheriff, under instructions from the harvesting company comes over and nails it. He says his rights as to exemptions are being violated and he desires relief. The sheriff refused to list his possessions under orders from the McCormick folks.

Frank O. Kelsey and Miss Sadie Canfield, a young couple from Bennett, were married by Judge Cochran this morning. A sister of the groom accompanied the young folks.

HAVELOCK STREET CARS.

Voters Will Decide in a Special Election Tomorrow.

The qualified electors of Havelock will decide by their ballots in a special election to be held tomorrow, whether the Lincoln Traction company is to be accorded the right to extend the University Place trolley line into and through the town of Havelock.

At the regular election in April the Havelock people rejected a proposition which provided for a permanent 10 cent fare between Lincoln and Havelock, and the result of the defeat mentioned was that the company came forward recently with an amended proposition. It provides for a 10 cent fare for a term no longer than ten years, after which the company will be required to reduce the fare to a rate agreeable to the Havelock council, otherwise its franchise can be declared forfeited and the company's right to operate the line will the cease.

The proposed route to be taken is along the main traveled road leading from the terminus of the present University Place line to the Rock Island railroad crossing in the southwest part of Havelock. Here the line turns east just south of the crossing and continues until Potter street is reached, where it turns north and after crossing the Rock Island tracks runs straight north to the Lancaster block corner on Jackson street, Havelock's main thoroughfare. A stretch of track running four blocks east to the corner of Saunders street will complete the line as presently contemplated, and it is at the latter point that the terminus is to be located.

Later on it is the company's intention to extend the line to the southwest part of the town to complete a loop, thus making it possible to enter town along the east line and make its exit over the more western portion.

Superintendent Humpe of the Traction company is in receipt of a letter from President Scudder from the east, outlining the company's course in case the proposition carries at tomorrow's election. The letter really contains an order from the president to the effect that if the proposition prevails the superintendent is to immediately commence the work of building the new line. From the day the franchise is properly issued by the authorities of Havelock, Superintendent Humpe places the limit required to have the line in full operation at thirty days.

The service which the company proposes to inaugurate will be a car every thirty minutes. Any change from this service either by increasing or diminishing the number of cars per day, will depend entirely on the traffic accorded the line. As it is the company's policy to run the cars just as often as they will bring any revenue, it can be taken for granted that whatever service the traffic justifies will prevail.

Public sentiment in Havelock is said to be very largely in favor of the car line. The petering out of the Bethany proposition along in the spring at a time when the people felt that it was a legitimate affair, has simply served to emphasize the demand for a car line. Some opposition is reported to have developed among a few of the business men, but shop people, whose votes are in such a large majority, are reported to be practically unanimous in the expressed intention to go to the polls tomorrow and vote for the street cars.

Such being the case, but a very short time will elapse before quick communication will be established between the capital city and its most thriving suburb.

JUNE WAS SEASONABLE.

First Part Warm and Wet While Last Part was Dry.

Director Loveland of the Nebraska section of the weather bureau has issued his bulletin for June, in which he says all about it as follows:

The month as a whole was a very seasonable one. The first half was wet, the precipitation being generally above the normal. The temperature was generally above the normal. These conditions were favorable to the growth of all crops. Although in some places the wet weather delayed the cultivation of corn, and caused some wheat and oats to lodge and rust to appear, the damage was generally slight. The last half of the month was warm and dry, the temperature being slightly above the normal, and the precipitation below the normal. All crops made rapid growth and wheat and oats straightened up to some extent, filled fairly well, and began to ripen in some sections. Corn was still small, but the conditions were favorable for killing weeds, and most fields were fairly clean; some corn was laid by. Grasses of all kinds made excellent headway, and tame grasses were generally ready to cut.

General characteristics: The month was nearly normal in the way of temperature and precipitation. The first and third weeks were normal in temperature, the second week slightly below the normal and the last week above the normal. The bulk of the precipitation fell during the first half of the month; the last half was generally dry. The rainfall was heaviest in the northeastern and eastern central counties.

Mr. Joel Hall of Minden reports: "Thunderstorms on the 24th, during which a dwelling house was struck by lightning, but no one injured."

Mr. R. Malcolm of Imperial reports: "Heavy thunderstorm on the 20th, during which twelve head of cattle were killed."

Atmospheric pressure: The mean pressure was 29.91 inches, which is 0.01 of an inch above the normal for June. The highest during the month was 30.23 inches at North Platte on the 5th, and the lowest, 29.51 inches, at Omaha on the 24th.

Temperature: The mean temperature for the state was 70.4 degrees, as determined from the records of ninety-two stations, which is about 1 degree above the normal. The highest temperature was 109 degrees, at Franklin on the 24th, and the lowest, 33 degrees, at Camp Clarke on the 5th.

Wind: The prevailing direction of the wind was from the south. The average velocity was 8.8 miles an hour, which is about 0.2 of a mile above the normal. The highest velocity was 36 miles an hour, at North Platte on the 17th, from the west.

Precipitation: The average precipitation for the state was 3.54 inches, as determined from the records of 132 stations, which is about two-fifths of an inch below the normal. The largest precipitation reported at any one station was 11.62 inches, at Geneva, and the least, trace, at Lodgepole. The precipitation for the first six months of the year was 95 per cent of the normal, and for the first four months of the crop season (March, April, May and June) it was 95 per cent of the normal.

Hail: Hail fell on the 3d, 13th, 17th, 21 h and 28th.

Thunderstorms: Thunderstorms occurred on the 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 10th, 11th, 13th, 14th, 17th, 18th, 20th, 21st, 23d, 24th, 25th, 26th, 28th, and 29th.

DIFFERENCES OF OPINION.

War Revenue Bill Causes Much Confusion Among Officials.

The provisions of the war revenue law are creating differences of opinion among county officials. It is almost impossible to interpret the true meaning of some of its provisions. In the county court all checks are stamped in order to prevent [illegible] confusion. It is not necessary for state and county officials to place stamps on official checks, but there is a difference of opinion as to what constitutes official business. Some of the checks issued by the county judge in the [illegible] are not considered official. The banks, however, would not know whether [illegible] not and consequently all are stamped.

Internal Revenue Collector Houtz [illegible] [illegible] which was [illegible] by [illegible] minister [illegible] to perform marriages [illegible] stamped.

Up to date none of the marriage certificates issued in this county since the war revenue law went into effect have been stamped. Attached to each marriage license issued by the county judge is a blank certificate. The minister or whoever performs the marriage ceremony must fill in this blank and return it to the county court. The person performing the marriage is also required to issue to the contracting parties, if so desired, a duplicate certificate. It has been held by lawyers that these duplicate certificates are not necessary evidence of marriage and for that reason do not have to be stamped. The war revenue bill requires that certificates required by law must be stamped. The minister is required to issue the duplicate if requested to do so by the contracting parties.

The sections of the revenue bill relating to certificates mention nearly every kind except marriage certificates as requiring stamps, but another section provides that certificates of any description required by law and not otherwise specified must be stamped. Lancaster county officials are of the opinion that marriage certificates, inasmuch as they were not mentioned in the revenue bill, do not have to be stamped, but the latter provisions would seem to cover them also.

There is also a wide difference of opinion regarding the stamping of acknowledgments to instruments. According to a late ruling by Collector Houtz all must be stamped. There is no provision relating to the stamping of affidavits, but the section referring to certificates is supposed to mean that they must be stamped. So far none of these papers received in the district clerk's office have been stamped. A prominent court house official said this morning, in speaking of the matter, "I don't think Houtz's ruling is worth a ———."

The revenue authorities hold that an affidavit is a statement certified to by a notary and therefore should come under the head of certificates. Petitions and instruments of different kinds with affidavits or acknowledgements attached are filed every day in the district clerk's office without stamps attached. This is in violation of a ruling recently made by Collector Houtz relating to affidavits, which is as follows: "All acknowledgements or affidavits signed by a notary public must bear the certificate stamp of 10 cents. Certificates of filing by the register of deeds on all instruments must bear a 10 cent stamp, paid for and cancelled by the person presenting the instrument for filing."

The provision providing that the person presenting the instrument for filing shall pay for the stamp is another cause for much confusion. In some instances the notaries are supposed to affix the stamp.

In Douglas county even the summons issued by the sheriff are stamped.

The law requires that in affixing stamps to deeds the consideration mentioned is not the one from which to judge the amount of the stamp to be affixed. For instance, if a quitclaim deed recites $1 as its consideration and it was given in exchange for the cancellation of a $1,600 mortgage the deed must bear $1 in stamps, the amount required on a $1,000 deed.

During the period the law has been in effect over $75,000 worth of revenue stamps have been sold by the revenue collector at Omaha.

LUCIUS ON A LUSCIOUS JAG

Man From Beaver Crossing Gets Mixed Up With Lincoln Brew.

Bricks without straw were laid in the character of Lucius Lacy Saturday evening. Lucius is a bricklayer by profession and should have had a discriminating eye concerning the material he was using on himself, but then he was for once a careless mason. In the joy of getting to Lincoln from Beaver Crossing, where his needy family lives, Lucius determined to have just a little time before he started out for work.

Tenth street company proved the class in which he sailed, but the gait was a little swift for the new townsman, as it has been for others, and Lucius soon began declaring that he possessed half the earth and all the full round moon, whose silvery crescent in the western sky he pointed at with the air of a landlord.

Lucius had never known before the joys of having such congenial company as he found in his Tenth street companions. In the cool of the evening he walked forth to the corner of woe, Tenth and P streets, where plods the solid foot of Officer Weart, who was not slow in learning of the mason's whereabouts and condition. Lucius then came to woe by being taken to a cold, dank cell, where he forgot all about his vast possessions.

This morning he pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $1 and costs. He declared he had a job in view and could get it if let out. He also said his family was in need of all the spare coin he could scrape. These things he had forgotten Saturday night, but then there was a difference in the morning. Judge Comstock decided to suspend the fine and costs, however, so Lucius went out into the land to hunt for work.

Martin Fitzgerald was another unfortunate who endeavored to emulate the life and habits of Lucius during the darkening hours of Saturday evening. Martin bobbed around the vicinity of Ninth and O until half past nine when he was also run in. He smilingly told his story, and also told how he was an honest working man who hadn't tasted of the delusive bowl for ten long weary months. As he had spent two mea[l]s and one day and part of another in jail, Judge Comstock allowed him to go.

S. C. Whittaker, drunk vagrant was discharged.

FELL THROUGH SPACE.

Aeronaut at Lincoln Park Sailed Safely to Earth Yesterday.

There was a hot time at the park yesterday during the entire day, and a hot program kept pace with the temperature the whole afternoon. Hagenow's band made the groves ring with all kinds of music which was enjoyed by the big crowd which had taken refuge in the shade of the trees to get away from the beating rays of the sun.

After music had swelled the breeze until the breeze was entirely full, the band was silenced while the man with the balloon got his big sack full of smoke, tied himself and his dog tandem like to the inflated canvas and shot up from the earth through the still air to a scary height. Hundreds of eyes watched the pair until suddenly the little dog was cut loose and came sailing down to the old earth.

The man and the balloon went on up higher for a minute or two. Suddenly there was a half scream and the man was seen, a black line shooting through the air to earth. Then there was a sigh of relief as the parachute opened and the man sailed softly to earth.

After that the crowd went its way and wandered around in enjoyment until the last car went to town.
