C. R. McIntyre and May Lobaugh, both of this city, were licensed to wed in Council Bluffs yesterday.

All wheelmen in the city are invited to join the Lincoln wheel club Sunday in the run to Beatrice and return.

A special meeting of the school board will be held this afternoon at 4 o'clock to receive the report of Superintendent Saylor.

Regular meeting of General Custer circle No. 26, Ladies of the G. A. R., tonight at 8 o'clock sharp at G. A. R. hall. All members are requested to be present.

The young men's institute will hold their annual picnic at Agnew, near Milford, August 15. Arrangements for transportation have been made with the railroads.

Persons desiring to attend Sunday services at the assembly must purchase tickets in advance. Tickets for sale at Harleys, 11th and O sts., and the Hub, 101 north 10th.

C. R. McIntyre and Miss May Lobaugh both of Lincoln, were married in Council Bluffs yesterday. They returned last evening and a big wedding feast was served at the home of the bride.

Announcement is made in a Burlington, Vermont, paper that Mr. R. C. Miles of that place and Miss Marie Marshall of this city are engaged to be married. Mr. Miles is a clothing merchant in Burlington and is well spoken of there.

The association of Survivors Regular Brigade Fourteenth corps, Army of the Cumberland, will hold their seventeenth annual reunion in Cincinnati, O., during the session of the national encampment G. A. R. at 519 Main street, September 5th to 8th, 1898. This association has a large membership in Nebraska.

The Harrison National bank of Cadiz, O., has brought suit in the district court against Carlos C. Burr and several of his creditors to recover on a promissory note for $2,000, executed by Mr. Burr to John M. Sharon July 27, 1893. The creditors of Mr. Burr are made parties because they claim an interest in the property securing the note.

Chancellor MacLean left yesterday for Minnesota to join his wife and friends in an extensive trip to the northwestern coast, where the company will spend some time. On the return they will take a southern road here, then Chancellor and Mrs. MacLean will proceed to the Black Hills to visit a short time with Regent Morrill and family.

Trena J. Cook, Rosa M. Dierkman and William Gaven have filed a petition in the district court asking to be allowed their rightful portion of the estate of Richard Tuthill, who died May 2, 1895. Trena J. Cook and Mrs. Dierkman represent that they are entitled to one-third of the estate for the reason that their mother, Mrs. Catherine Cook, was Richard Tuthill's sister. Mrs. Cook died on July 2, 1889.

A. S. Sands of Wilber was finally persuaded to consent to give testimony in the case of Ballard vs. Letak, now pending in the district court, and yesterday afternoon Notary Public Bacon of the district clerk's office took his deposition. Sands told Mr. Bacon that the only reason he had not testified before him before was that he intended to testify when the case came to trial in district court, and did not think it necessary to give a deposition.

Mr. E. B. Loughridge and Mrs. Carrie Kinney, both of this city, were married Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents in Falls City. Both are favorably known to many people in Lincoln. Mr. Loughridge is a shipping clerk at the Raymond Bros. wholesale grocery establishment and a man of sterling worth. The couple will remain in Falls City for several days enjoying their honeymoon, returning to Lincoln early next week. They will be at home to their friends at 1820 P street after September 1st.

Another adultery case of the district court has been settled in Iowa. Among the marriage licenses issued yesterday in Council Bluffs was one to Benjamin F. Du Bois and Kate Montgomery, both of Lincoln. DuBois is under bonds to appear in the district court for trial at the September term. The information on which he was arrested on the charge above mentioned was brought out in the suit of his former wife for a divorce. Mrs. Montgomery was the widow of a railroad man who was killed while on duty. Their marriage is likely to result in a dismissal of the case against DuBois.

Dennis Hammond, who was indicted by the grand jury and later convicted on the charge of gambling and fined $300 by Judge Holmes, is endeavoring to secure his release. When he was sentenced Judge Holmes remarked that after he had worked about $100 of the fine he would be released on parole provided his conduct in jail was such as to indicate that he intended to reform. Hammond has worked out one-third of his fine, but he cannot be released without an order from the court. Judge Holmes is now in Mexico and before leaving he gave the sheriff no instructions regarding the release of Hammond. An effort will probably be made to induce Judge Holmes to write the order before he returns to Lincoln. Judge Cornish has been asked to order the man's release, but as he has no jurisdiction to release prisoners sentenced by another district court Hammond will probably remain in jail for some time yet.

WHACK THE CORPORATIONS

South Dakota Assessors Raise Valuations Largely

PIERRE, S. D., Aug. 5.—The state board of assessment has increased the valuation on Western Union telegraph lines in the state from $51 to $60 per mile, making a total increase of $22,000. On taking up the railroad assessment the representatives of the different roads presented their cases and a few of the narrow gauge and small lines were assessed at the same valuation as last year.

The first fight on the board was when the assessment of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road came up, which Governor Lee desired to have largely increased over last year. He asked that the assessment be placed at not less than $5,000 per mile and based his position on the valuation placed on the line by the company's officers in their suit against the state filed by the railroad company, in which they put the cost of construction at $17,000 per mile.

The governor stated that in case the road had accepted the decision of Judge Corland and put the rates fixed by the company in force he would have been willing to assess the road at one-third the value fixed by the court, which was between $8,000 and $9,000 per mile. This valuation, the member of the railway company before the board yesterday stated, was not a fair and equitable valuation, and they refused to accept the rate. He asked for an assessment of $5,200 per mile in the first division reached, which was an increase of 33 per cent, but an adjournment was taken before any action was taken. Petitions from thirteen counties were presented asking that railroads be assessed at not less than $5,000 per mile.

A letter was read before the board, bearing the signature of Thomas F. Ayres, which had been sent out with the petitions, declaring that the board had failed to do its duty in the past and asking that on this account the petitions be circulated and sent in. Commissioner Lockhart took exception to the letter in a warm statement in which he denounced the action of a clerk in any of the departments of the state in casting reflections upon the officers in their official acts. The session was warm at several stages and will probably be more so at the meeting tomorrow.

LOTS OF SILVER

Stolen Stuff Found Planted in South Lincoln

The operations of the light fingered burglars Haywood and Hitchcock seem to be more extensive than dreamed of before. Yesterday the police got a pointer on a "plant" made by the fellows out on South street and went out there and succeeded in finding a sack full of silver ware, which was later identified by Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGregor of 944 North Twelfth street, who [illegible] at the station to [illegible] some silver they had lost [illegible]. They said that the ware was their property.

Mr. McGregor also identified a good coat and vest which the officer found in a pawnshop as his. He will enter a second case of burglary against the two men.

STUDY BIBLE SUBJECTS IN THE SHADE OF THE PARK

This morning was a half day crowded full of opportunities for those at the Epworth camp to add to their knowledge of things spiritual. The first service of the day began at 8 o'clock and the last one was not concluded until almost noon. Not all the leaguers attended all the services, for some of them were held simultaneously and were planned for different people, but all managed to put in all their time.

At 8 o'clock a pentecostal service was held, under the leadership of Dr. Eaton of Des Moines. Dr. Eaton has already made a powerful impression upon all these who have heard him and had no difficulty in filling the auditorium in spite of the early hour. Dr. Eaton is quite an enthusiast and has set up his telescope on the grounds. As a consequence, he is now kept busy showing [illegible].

At 9 o'clock, two schools of methods and a session of the Juniors began. The latter was conducted by Mrs. G. W. Isham, who has been remarkably successful in keeping the youngsters interested in the studies they take up. Her work is practical enough to appeal to them and to be easily understood and they eagerly take part in it.

The two schools of methods were those of the Epworth workers and the W. C. T. U. The former was led by Rev. Joseph F. Berry, who discussed "The Epworth League President." Dr. Berry is an enthusiastic worker and is able to pick out just the points in which league officers are most likely to fail. His talk this morning was full of suggestions for increasing the usefulness of the organization. The W. C. T. U. school was conducted by Ella M. Watson and was participated in by about a score of members of the union, who are living on the grounds. After the leader had touched upon the various phases of the work, the discussion became general and very animated. Upon the conclusion of the school the opinion was expressed that the meeting had been very helpful and that more frequent discussions of the kind would result beneficially to the work of the union, many branches of which are very difficult.

At 10:30 o'clock the regular daily sermon was delivered by Rev. I. D. Driver. This was Dr. Driver's second sermon and one of the half dozen that he delivers during the course of the assembly. He has proved to be a fascinating talker and a man with ideas and a way to present them. He has the rare faculty of making religious subjects interesting to the young and for this reason is considered one of the most valuable lecturers on this year's list.

At 1:30 this afternoon, the Tennesseans gave the preliminary musical program. They were assisted by the chorus under Prof. Apmadoc, which has reached a considerable degree of proficiency. Many of the members were possessed of considerable musical education when they began and have been profiting by the work of the last few days. The address of the afternoon was a very interesting and instructive description of the country and the people of India by Bishop Thomas Bowman.

At 4 o'clock a preacher's institute was conducted by Chancellor McDowell of Denver and at 5 o'clock Rev. George M. Brown of Buffalo led the C. L. S. C. round table on the subject, "How to Keep Young." This evening the Tennesseans open the program at 7:30 and half an hour later Dr. Eaton delivers his lecture, "The Bible and the Stars."

Rev. McIntyre's Splendid Talk.

The big tent at the assembly grounds was filled to overflowing last evening to hear Rev. McIntyre talk on "Soldiering in Dixie." It was a splendid lecture, replete with fervent patriotic utterances, beautiful imagery, grand thoughts and rendered with a dramatic fervor that held his audience enthralled. He mingled with many stories and flashes of wit that added much to its acceptability.

Mr. McIntyre insisted that even if the war we are now engaged in should cost this country more in blood and treasure than it has yet, it would be worth all that it has accomplished. Principal among these blessings it has brought us is the wiping out of sectionalism. There is no longer any east, any west, any south, any north, we are all one united country. He told a story of how two Ohio brothers long estranged were brought together through the birth of a little child in the family of one, and used this to illustrate his thought that all estranged sections of America had been brought together by the birth to Uncle Sam of a bouncing boy in the person of Cuba. He said he was not going to bring any politics in his talk about the war, and excoriated the man who would talk it now when all had been forgiven and would soon be forgotten. The brave men who went to war stopped fighting just as soon as peace was declared; only curs and mongrels, he said, would keep on fighting thirty years after the war had ended.

He paid a glowing tribute to the "men who never came back," and in eloquent and touching phrases comforted the mothers whose boys are now at the front by telling of the nobility of sacrificing their sons for their country in behalf of humanity.

He declared that there never was such a war. He had searched the records of the history of Adam's progeny from the present day back to where it fades into mist and myth, but never before did a nation go out to unselfishly fight to help a suffering people. Never did a self-sacrificing act go unrewarded by God, and he believed that the wonderful victories of American arms and the wonderful escape from serious loss were as miraculous as any of the events recorded in the Bible. He paid a glowing tribute to American manhood and the American soldier and sailor. He said that other nations could build just as staunch ships as we, could make just as good cannon as we, but when [illegible] the [illegible]? He answered by dramatically [illegible] the [illegible] power by vigorous sweeps of "the men behind the guns," accompanying the arm that added greatly to the [illegible].

He wanted Dewey to come home through the Suez canal, and [illegible] before Constantinople. He expressed his abhorrence of the unspeakable Turk in vigorous phrases. He said that there was another nation in Europe, infinitely worse than the Spanish, that [illegible] the same treatment, administered [illegible] and that was the Turkish. He believed it would become America's mission to do this, and he would die happy [illegible].

The lecturer reached his sublimest heights in his picture of the fight on Mission Ridge. No reproduction of his words [illegible] dramatic force and power of his utterances. As he told of the advance up the [illegible] of sleet he gave a vivid idea of the advance and swaying back and hurling forward by his gestures of arm and body, and as he closed was greeted with tumultuous applause.

He told many stories to illustrate that it was not all work with the boys at the front. The laughable adventure of the Vermont soldier who tried to milk a Confederate cow, only to land in the briar patch at the foot of the hill, was well told. He got mixed up with a nest of hornets, and "the hornets pulled out their little hot gimlets from their hip pockets" and started to tap the natural gas reservoir of the soldier, and when he returned his appearance was so changed from the lean Yankee to a swollen, unrecognizable man, that he was greeted with the cry, "Hey, Bill, Tennessee milk must be mighty fattenin'." Another story was about the way a foraging party got a fat turkey for Thanksgiving. The owner was a voluble Confederate woman, who, the speaker said, was very talkative, even for a woman. She had one of those mouths you could set talking and go away and leave it without any fear that it would stop while you were absent. The boys engaged her in conversation, while one fed the turkey corn attached to a string. She was near-sighted and when she saw the soldier run away with the turkey following full tilt she did not realize the situation, but thought the turkey partook of her belligerent views and was chasing the soldier. His description of her leaning against the house and exclaiming in paroxysms of laughter that if she had enough turkeys she could put the whole Yankee army to flight brought down the house (or tent). The soldiers had a very taking vocabulary of slang; when a man died they said he "passed in his checks," he was buried in a "wooden overcoat." Crackers were called hard tack, and bacon was called, well they had a poetic name for it, Mr. McIntyre said.

He regretted that he was not an old soldier; he was born too young to engage in the conflict, but he belonged to the grand army of the redeemed and he hoped for a great reunion hereafter.

Mr. McIntyre paid the old soldiers great homage in his address, and his patriotic utterances were very fervid. He impressed upon his hearers that the United States was both a great and a big country. The great nations of antiquity were not big, and he delineated the difference in qualification.

About the Grounds.

D. F. Kenagy and family, a party of eight, are on the grounds.

Dr. C. M. Shepherd and family of Nebraska City are on the grounds.

The feature of tomorrow's program is a lecture by John G. Wooley, one of the most noted orators in the country.

A two-chair barber shop has been opened for business on the grounds. It is located where the cry of "next" will not disturb those listening to the sermons.

The gravel walks are not used very much, the people preferring to tread the softer sod. They afford the children a supply of pebbles to throw into the water from the bridge and they are not losing much time in giving the creek a pebbly bottom.

Some of the towns of the state which have done the best in proportion to population in the matter of sending representatives are University Place (about) 75, Bennet 18, David City 14, Dorchester 14, Elmwood 23, Exeter 8, Fairmont 16, Geneva 14, Hastings 17, Holdrege 18, Juanita 10, Louisville 8, Nelson 8.

The two messengers at headquarters are kept busy guiding new-comers to their quarters or visitors to those of their friends. They also have about a dozen telephone calls an hour to attend to. The officers are called upon for the exercise of the utmost patience, but they respond to the demand nobly.

Camping at the assembly grounds is not the round of hardships that camping is sometimes. The tents all have board floors that protect the occupants from the damp ground, while the trees are thick enough to keep the grounds cool all day. The stores and stands inside the gates furnish everything a housekeeper needs, almost everything, in fact, that one could buy at a grocery store.

There are five policemen on duty on the grounds in the day time. Their work consists mostly of superintending the force engaged in cleaning the grounds, in watching the fences and keeping close guard over the property of the campers while they are in the auditorium listening to the programs. No thefts have been reported yet, but at times the opportunities for them are very good and only the vigilance of the "coppers" has prevented them. Many of the tenters go away and leave their tents wide open and valuable articles lying about within easy reach.

DR. GREGORY RESIGNS.

Pastor of the First Congregational Church Steps Out.

Last night there was a meeting of the First Congregational church to consider the resignation of Dr. Lewis Gregory, the present pastor of the church, which will take place on October 31. Rev. William Manss, who has been filling the pulpit while the regular minister has been away on a vacation, has done his work so well that he was selected by the congregation to permanently fill the position.

A committee on resolutions handed in the following concerning Dr. Gregory's resignation:

Resolved, That as he resigns his pastoral work here, Lewis Gregory has been successively the devoted [illegible] the strong organizer [illegible] and the successful and honored [illegible] and prosperous church, that as a citizen he has been exemplary [illegible] helpful in public things, a [illegible] champion of the law and [illegible] in all the movements of good citizenship; and that now, with [illegible] honorable achievement behind him, he stands in the very forefront [illegible] ministry of his state, powerful in mind, ripe in experience, high in purpose and able among the ablest, "striving to show himself approved unto God, a workman that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

Resolved, That as he [illegible] and goes forth in the strength of [illegible] Christian manhood and [illegible] power [illegible] his Christian ministry [illegible] he takes with him the thanks of this church for his service [illegible] council and all [illegible] church throughout Nebraska and for the impress of his [illegible] minded and helpful Christianity which he has left upon the public life of our community, and that we bid him God speed.

The resolution was adopted. Rev. Manss will take up regular duties on the first of November.

GETS THE GIRL.

Lincoln Man Kidnaps His Daughter From His Divorced Wife.

SIBLEY, Ia., Aug. 4.—(Special.)—Bert Klunk and wife of Des Moines are members of the Gilbert Comic Opera company playing here in the Emmet opera house. Rudolph Peters of Lincoln, Neb., the former husband of Mrs. Klunk, appeared here today, accompanied by his brother, Max Peters of Salt Lake City, and took Irala Peters, his five-year-old son from the custody of his mother. The mother [illegible] on the street. The father could not be held on a charge of kidnaping his own child and the judges of the district court were too distant to obtain a writ of habeas corpus before the afternoon passenger train left for Lincoln.

Peters [illegible] the child by virtue of [illegible] in the circuit court [illegible] county, Illinois, on [illegible] Mrs. Klunk, the mother, declared she never had notice [illegible] and [illegible] invoked to declare [illegible] should have the custody of [illegible], and that she had never had [illegible] service of the action or known [illegible] decree.

Finally, [illegible], the child was [illegible] third party until the sufficiency of the [illegible] county court can be determined.

Mr. Peters [illegible] P street with his father [illegible] an upholsterer [illegible] for more than [illegible] returned home with the child [illegible], and [illegible] in order to avoid the [illegible] will doubtless come [illegible]. The father said [illegible] had married the woman some six [illegible] ago. For several years he resided [illegible] Chicago and was [illegible] in the employ when the great explosion occurred last year, in which many were killed. At the time he was out at work on a job. It was while living in Chicago that he and his wife separated, [illegible] owing to the conduct of his wife. He [illegible] divorce some time afterwards, obtaining an order for the custody of the child. His wife married Klunk, who is manager of the comic opera company, and took the child with her. Peters came to Lincoln, and has been making his living at odd jobs of work. He was once a performer, [illegible] for a short time. His brother Max assisted him in hunting for the child, and three weeks have been taken up in trying to find the whereabouts of the opera company. Yesterday they found them in Sibley, and the child was taken away. A telegram announcing the success of the expedition was received by the father yesterday, but further than that he knows nothing of the circumstances.

HITCHCOCK AND HAYWARD.

Both Are Up in Police Court Again Charged With Burglary.

This morning there was a new burglary case up in police court. The complaining witness was Detective Malone in place of Mrs. Charles McGregor of 944 North Fifteenth street, who says that Charles Hayward and Frank Hitchcock broke into the McGregor house and abstracted therefrom a lot of silverware consisting of forks, gold lined spoons and like material, which the police found buried in South Lincoln.

The men were brought down from the county jail and while waiting for their trial, amused themselves "picking" their hats much after the fashion of monkeys. When all the evidence had been gathered by the county attorney the mills were set in motion. County Attorney Munger read the charge to the court. The complaint was in two parts, the first charging the men with entering the house in the afternoon and the second for the same offense done in the night.

To both charges the men pleaded not guilty, whereupon they were bound over to the district court with their bond fixed at $300. This ended the scene except handcuffing the two together and returning them to the county jail. During the period of waiting Hayward, hearing the remarks of a bystander, turned to Hitchcock and asked:

"That feller over there wants to know if dey's any pleecemen goin' to be in heaven; wot you think?"

"Naw, I don't think there will be," and Hitchcock relapsed into silence.

FAIR AND COOLER.

With a Possibility of a Few Showers Tonight.

Office of U. S. Weather Bureau, Lincoln, Aug. 5.—The storm area has moved slowly eastward, and this morning extends from eastern Colorado across central Nebraska and the eastern portions of the Dakotas to the British provinces north of Minnesota.

The barometer continues high in the lower Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the northern portion of the lake region and has risen in the northwest.

The temperature has fallen in the extreme northwest and remained about stationary in other districts.

Rain is reported from Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, northern Nebraska, Utah and western Texas.

The following amounts of precipitation (in inches) are reported in the state: Valentine, .70; Hartington, .02.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,
