CAMPAIGN ALLIANCE MAY BE MADE TODAY

Democrats and Progressives Are Still Endeavoring to Get Together.

MUCH ACTIVITY NOTED

Friends of Gubernatorial Candidates Working Hard for Favorites.

Leading Democrats and Progressives yesterday expressed confidence that today's final negotiations for a campaign alliance between the two parties would be successful.

There has been a hitch over the county commissionership and county auditorship nominations on the Salt Lake county ticket, but both sides believe that the conference committees will find a way out of that difficulty today, and that the Progressives will line up for the Democratic state ticket if the plan to give one of the nominations thereon to the Progressives is carried out.

Following today's palavering by the conference committee, the Progressive leaders will meet tonight to hear final reports and make a decision as to what their organization in this county will do. Some of the Progressives are leaning toward the Republicans, but the leaders say that a majority are for a working agreement with the Democrats.

Democrats Hopeful.

Leading Democrats state their belief that unless next Friday's state convention should, by some unlooked-for move, nominate someone downright distasteful to the Progressives, that the latter will support the Democratic state ticket. They declare their opinion that even with the identity of their gubernatorial nominee in doubt, the chances for electing a Democratic governor were never better.

The Democratic state convention next Friday will be held in Ogden and at the Alhambra theater, where the strenuous though one-sided contest was staged last Tuesday by the Republicans.

None of the possibilities for the Democratic nomination for governor is making a personal campaign for the nomination, but friends are getting busy, so that the next few days promise to be teeming with political activity.

Following their meeting a few days ago at which A. W. McCune said that he would accept the nomination for governor if it were tendered, but that he would make no campaign for it, Mr. McCune's friends have been taking steps calculated to pave the way for his nomination. They have delegated B. S. Rives of this city to conduct the movement to nominate Mr. McCune.

In Hands of Friends.

"The only fight which Mr. McCune will make for the nomination will be that waged by his friends," said Mr. Rives yesterday. He added that the elimination of saloons and the liquor traffic from the state, and a reduction of taxes and a more equitable system of taxation were the principal issues upon which he and other friends of Mr. McCune would work for the latter's nomination.

Former State Senator Simon Bamberger and Dr. Joseph F. Merrill, both of this city, have likewise declared themselves receptive candidates for the governorship nomination. Their friends also are actively at work and promise further activity from now until convention time to promote their nominations.

A quiet boom for Stephen L. Richards of Salt Lake as a candidate for governor was heard yesterday. Mr. Richards's name has been heard before as a possibility. The boom for M. S. Browning of Ogden still linzers, also. Other gubernatorial possibilities under discussion at the beginning of state convention week are Mathonihah Thomas, Judge Samuel W. Stewart and Major R. W. Young of Salt Lake. J. Will Knight of Provo and State Senator J. W. Funk of Cache county.

Double Distinction.

Judge Joshua Greenwood of Juab county is mentioned both as a gubernatorial and a congressional (First district) possibility. Will G. Farrell of Salt Lake also has the distinction of being mentioned for two offices—governor and secretary of state.

Except for the mention of Congressman James H. Mays of this district for nomination by the Democrats for United States senator, Judge William H. King of this city apparently has clear sailing for that nomination.

The local Progressives, failing to get the consent of the Democrats to unite with them upon the nomination of Stephen H. Love for governor, would like to land Mr. Love on the Democratic ticket, and their own, as candidate for congressman from the Second district.

Many Democrats believe that Mr. Mays will not be put in nomination for senator, but will be renominated for congressman. Mr. Mays's position with reference to the forthcoming nominations is a bit foggy in the minds of Democrats; many of them do not know whether he is a candidate for senator or congressman.

'CUNNINGHAM' TO TRY FOR RELEASE TODAY

Suspect Held Here Still Insists That He Is Not "Curly" Carter, Notorious Swindler.

Officers armed with requisition papers for the extradition of B. Cunningham from the Salt Lake City jail to Pittsburg in case Cunningham is identified by them as "Curly" Carter, alleged confidence man, are expected to arrive here early this week. It is not known by J. Parley White, chief of police, on what day the officers will arrive, but the chief is of the opinion that it will be before Wednesday.

Cunningham was arrested here August 9 to be held for the Pittsburg officers. His arrest was made by City Detectives H. D. Lyon and Bert Seager on description furnished them from the east. "Curly" Carter is wanted in Pittsburg for alleged participation in a confidence game in which a Pittsburg merchant lost $20,000.

Cunningham is eagerly awaiting action to be taken on his application for writ of habeas corpus, returnable today. He still maintains that he is not the man the Pittsburg men want, and says he can prove it to their satisfaction. He says he is not afraid to face trial, but does not care to stay in the city jail, as it is a waste of time, is harmful to his reputation, and, he declares, is contrary to law "in that no charge has been placed against me."

Bulletin Sent to Press.

A bulletin on soil alkali studies by Dr. F. S. Harris, director of the experiment station of the Utah Agricultural college, has just gone to press. The bulletin presents conclusions showing the quantities of alkali salts which prohibit the growth of crops in certain Utah soils.

Graduate Going East.

A. L. Kelly, principal of the Bunkerville high school, Nevada, was at the Utah Agricultural college August 9 looking for a man to fill a position left vacant by William Baker, a graduate of the U. A. C., who goes east next year to study medicine.

WILLIAM ApMADOC, who died in Chicago last Saturday afternoon.

MUSICIAN AND CRITIC IS DEAD AT CHICAGO

William ApMadoc Passes Away; Well and Favorably Known Here.

Thousands of musicians and music lovers in Salt Lake, Utah, the intermountain region and the country over will regret the death of Professor William ApMadoc, noted Welsh musician, singer, composer and critic, who died Saturday in Chicago.

John James, state insurance commissioner and an old friend of Professor ApMadoc, yesterday morning received a telegram from Dr. Tudor ApMadoc, son of the famous musician, announcing his father's death at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Professor ApMadoc was born at Bridgend, South Wales, about seventy years ago, and for the past thirty years had been a musical instructor and director in the Chicago high schools. He was first brought to the notice of Utahns in 1893, when he was secretary of the International Eisteddfod held in Chicago that year at the time of the world's fair. It was largely due to his efforts that the first presidency of the Mormon church consented to send the Salt Lake tabernacle choir to compete for the big choral prize, at which time, it will be remembered, Scranton, Pa., won the first prize and the Salt Lake choir, under the leadership of Professor Evan Stephens, took the second prize. It is worthy of note that Professor Haydn Evans, leader of the winning choir, died but a short time ago at Atlantic City, N. J.

Professor ApMadoc made visits to Salt Lake and Utah since 1893, each visit adding to his large circle of friends. During these trips he gave many recitals, in which he skilfully combined an artistic rendition of classic old ballads and a demonstrated talk on the "Romance in Welsh Music." His singing of "The Sword of Bunker Hill" and "Call the Cattle Home" was said by eminent critics to be without equal among the platform singers of the day.

Professor ApMadoc was last here with Mrs. ApMadoc in 1915, on his way home from the National Eisteddfod held in San Francisco, where he and former Governor Arthur L. Thomas of this city were adjudicators of poems and essays. Mr. and Mrs. ApMadoc were given a reception at the home of Mr. Thomas, being greeted by many Welsh citizens.

Early this year Professor ApMadoc suffered a slight injury to his hip, which brought about blood poisoning. He was confined for three months to St. Luke's hospital, Chicago, then so far recovered that he was removed to his home.

Upon his last visit to Chicago, only a few weeks ago, Mr. James called upon Mr. ApMadoc, finding him cheerful and optimistic, despite his critical condition. Mr. James last night wired his expressions of sympathy and condolence to the bereaved family.

MISS SADYE MYERS DELIVERS ADDRESS

Miss Sadye Myers, field worker of the commission which is undertaking a survey of the feeble-minded in Utah, addressed the parents' class yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the meeting held in Le Grand ward chapel.

Miss Myers discussed the questions of heredity and environment. She gave an address that demonstrated that she had given the big questions careful study, seeking to stimulate public interest in the necessity for a careful and scientific survey of the feeble-minded in the state, expressing the hope and the belief that within a comparatively brief period an institution would be established in Utah for the proper care and treatment of the unfortunate persons who are sub-normal.

MUSICAL EXERCISES ARE HELD AT PARK

Y. M. C. A. members and representatives of the young people's societies of the evangelical churches of the city, conducted special musical exercises yesterday afternoon at Pioneer park.

E. G. Caster, secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., was the master of ceremonies. Singers from the young people's societies had been practicing for some weeks, and their selections met with much appreciation on the part of the large audience.

Station Is Remodeled.

After being remodeled and repainted throughout, the experiment station of the Utah Agricultural college is again ready for occupancy. Dr. F. S. Harris and his helpers will move into the building today. The most important change made in the station consists in the provision for a special station library. Here all books, pamphlets, bulletins and reports pertaining to experimental work will be classified for ready reference.

Hurt in Swimming Pool.

Cecil Dalton, 16 years of age, who lives at 54 South First West street, last night suffered a cut on his head when he slipped off a spring board at a local swimming pool and struck the board head-first. He was taken to the emergency hospital, where his wound was stitched and he was then sent to his home.

Hashimoto Home Burglarized.

Report was made to the police yesterday morning that the residence of E. S. Hashimoto, 315 South Twelfth East street, had been entered by a burglar during the night, the thief carrying away a revolver and $2.25 in cash. The family is absent from the city at present and the home was left in charge of a caretaker.

WOOLGROWERS SEND MESSAGE ON STRIKE

Senator Newlands Asked to Avert National Calamity if Possible.

Some idea of the tremendous consequences that would follow on the heels of the threatened strike of the railroad men of the country is suggested in the telegram just sent to Senator F. G. Newlands, chairman of the committee on interstate commerce, by the National Woolgrowers' association, through its secretary, S. W. McClure, of Salt Lake. Inasmuch as the association represents some 25,000 sheep men, a great many of whom are engaged in the industry in the western states, the telegram has particular significance as representing one of the greatest enterprises in this part of the country.

The telegram reads as follows:

The strike of railroad employees, as now proposed, would be a national calamity. Stock men and farmers all over the country are marketing their crops, and any interference with this movement would mean irreparable loss. We believe that neither the railroads nor their employees are competent to settle this question, for it is one in which the producers, who pay the entire railroad revenue, have the largest interest. This organization, representing about 25,000 sheep men, insists that congress take immediate action to prevent this strike and provide for an impartial investigation into the wages of the railroad employees to determine what, if any, advance they are entitled to.

It was said last night that although present indications point to an attendance of between 1500 and 2000 sheep men at the convention of the national association on August 30, 31 and September 1 and 2, that a railroad strike would put a material damper on the affair. In connection with the convention a ram sale will be held that, judging from the entries already received, will be the greatest ever held in this country. Blooded stock from every sheep-raising state in the Union has been entered and will be put up for auction by men who have gained national reputations in this line.

S. W. McClure, secretary of the national association, has the plans for the convention in charge. Hotel reservations have already been made by the hundreds.

RECRUITER MAY GO AFTER NEVADA MEN

Telegram Sent to Adjutant General of Western Department, Asking Permission to Make Trip.

Inasmuch as there is a dearth of recruits for the Utah National Guard organizations, local recruiting officers are planning to send a representative to Reno, Nev., some time this week with a view to enlisting the fifty or more men who tendered their services by wire Saturday to Adjutant General E. A. Wedgwood. Whether or not such action will be taken depends upon the adjutant general of the western department.

Permission to send an officer to Reno was asked by wire last night by Lieutenant T. DeWitt Foster, officer in charge of the local national guard recruiting station. The Reno men proffered their services in a body, but could not be accepted as such under existing rules of the war department. The only way the men can be accepted as a part of the Utah organization is by individual enlistment as recruits.

The local recruiting office of the national guard organizations of Utah has been moved from the old Walker bank building to the second floor of the Merchants bank building, at Main and Third South streets. A branch office will be opened at Logan tomorrow, with Lieutenant Paul King in charge.

"PARSON" SIMPKIN VISITS GUARDSMEN

Pastor of Phillips Congregational Church Holds Services at Military Camp on Mexican Border.

Utah guardsmen encamped in the vicinity of Nogales have been enjoying a real treat during the past two days in the nature of a visit from the Rev. P. A. Simpkin of Phillip's Congregational church, Salt Lake, according to a telegram received yesterday by Adjutant General E. A. Wedgwood from Captain W. C. Webb of the Utah battery. "Parson" Simpkin made a special trip to Nogales to visit the Utah guardsmen and give them news from home and, in some cases, comfort the homesick. He visited the three camps of the Utah organizations on Saturday, and yesterday held a Sunday service at each camp.

Captain Webb's telegram to General Wedgwood follows:

"Parson" Simpkin visited all Utah camps Saturday and made merry with the batterymen at a big camp fire Saturday night. The main part of the camp fire programme was the "parson's" talk on wit and humor, which kept the men roaring with laughter for two hours.

Today he held Sunday services at all three of the Utah camps. The service at the hospital was held at 8 o'clock this morning, at the battery camp at 9 o'clock and the cavalry camp at 11 o'clock. We all appreciate his visit more than I can tell.

J. EDWARD TAYLOR GOING TO FESTIVAL

J. Edward Taylor, secretary of the state horticultural commission, has received from President Joseph T. Atkin and Secretary Ellis J. Pickett of the St. George Commercial club an invitation to attend the annual fruit festival at St. George.

Mr. Taylor is going. This fact is expresssive of the attraction of the festival when it is explained that Mr. Taylor's last trip to a fruit festival in St. George was so fraught with adventure as to afford material for a startling newspaper story. The road into St. George had not then been perfected and at a faulty place the automobile turned over down a hillside. Taylor got there first, and a little beyond the stopping place of the car, however, and was least hurt of all the passengers.

The festival is to be held September 7 and 8.

CATTLE STALLS TO BE BUILT AT FAIR

In anticipation of a record-breaking exhibition of blooded cattle at the state fair this fall the accommodations for exhibition at the fair grounds are to be enlarged. A considerable number of stalls will be added to those already on the grounds. J. W. Hendricks of Richmond, supervisor of the cattle department of the Utah State Fair association, was in conference with Secretary H. S. Ensign at the capitol yesterday. He reported that correspondence from prospective exhibitors was of a nature to indicate that the showing of fine stock will excel all previous records.

EXPERT BUGOLOGISTS TALK ABOUT WEEVIL

Alfalfa Pest Would Disappear if Farmer Killed About a Fourth.

PARASITES MAKE WAR

Enemies Slay Three-fourths of Tiny Prey During the Year.

The office of a bugologist of any description is at once a temptation and an aggravation to a news-hungry reporter.

The favorite stunt of the authority on bugs is to give each new reporter one story, then ever after to deny him on the ground that the newspaper man got it all wrong.

J. Edward Taylor, secretary of the state horticultural society, keeps stocked up on a good line of funny yarns with which to sate the appetite of interrupting newspaper men. Thus he contrives to be a "good fellow" without betraying any of the secrets of the bug family.

George I. Reeves, local entomologist with the department of the federal government that never tires of collecting data on alfalfa weevils, and like creatures, is equally loquacious. He is an expert in amateur photography and always proves an enthusiastic talker upon the subject. But mention bugs and he gives the impression that he has been invited to talk French to a South Sea Islander. He won't even start.

Parasites Helpful.

Because of all of which, it is something of an experience for a reporter to drift into the office of Secretary Taylor in the capitol when Mr. Reeves has called in for an informal professional conference. Under such circumstances, the reporter has but to remain silent and he is sure to hear some of the secrets of the bugs.

For instance, a reporter learned that if the farmers of Utah could see to the extermination of twenty-five per cent of the alfalfa weevils there would be none of the pest. Seventy-five per cent of the little hay-eaters are killed annually by parasites. Of these enemies to the weevil there are several clans. Some attack by the caviar route, eating the eggs of the weevil. Others actually inhabit the weevil. The adult parasites sting the larvae of the weevil and lay their eggs under his epithelial tissue. The eggs incubate and the larvae of the parasites hibernate and grow fat. The larva of the weevil usually lives long enough, in spite of the disturbance to his vital organs, to spin a cocoon, which becomes his own sepulchre and the happy childhood home of the usurper.

Difficulty in Way.

Of course, the difficulty that faces the farmers is that they must kill the final twenty-five per cent of the weevils. The parasites have the first fling at the alfalfa grubs and make swift work of the seventy-five or more per cent, but they are constitutionally averse to making a 100 per cent record. It would be suicide. The earth would be no inheritance to their progeny were there no weevil.

As to how the farmer can make good in reducing the troublesome twenty-five per cent of weevils to a state of permanent coma and disinterest in alfalfa, much discussion is regularly indulged by experts. Spraying is a favorite method of attack. Harrowing during hot weather or dragging with a brush or wire drag is advocated by many. By this means the larvae of the weevil are knocked from the stems of the lucerne stubble and fall upon the dry, hot dust. They survive about as long as would a piece of cocoa butter or lard of the same size. In other words, they die of a sort of swift fatty degeneration, their substance turns mostly to oil, and a grease spot remains where once was a creature with a healthy hay appetite.

Told to Get Out.

Such facts, told in the exact language of the natural scientists and much less understandable to the layman if more true to the facts than as here narrated, may be heard, if a reporter is so fortunate as to be present when one bug expert calls at the office of a fellow expert.

Of course, the reporter must "butt in." That is a part of his business and training. "Won't chickens eat the larvae of the weevil?" he asks.

"Sure," answers one of the experts. "They will also eat the alfalfa. If one desires to use an alfalfa field for a chicken pasture, the problem is nicely solved."

"Well," meditates the reporter, "it is up to some chap to invent a chicken muzzle that will permit the birds to eat weevil larvae, though it prevents them from chawing off the alfalfa. Say, couldn't I write a story about how you fellows were discussing the need of such an invention?" he asks.

"Get out," yell both experts.

PROSPERITY SHOWN BY AUTO TRAVEL

"Utah's prosperity was shown to me more clearly in the past two weeks than ever before," said Dr. A. C. Wherry, a dentist of this city, who returned last night from a trip of two weeks through the Yellowstone park and adjacent territory.

"Of all the automobiles bearing vacation-goers and pleasure-seekers through Montana that I saw, fully 40 per cent belonged to Utahns. There were also many from Idaho and a number from California. In addition to these, I saw machines, it seemed to me, from every state in the union.

"The road from Salt Lake to Yellowstone was in excellent condition as far as Ashton. From there on it was out of repair, but, according to word in the northlands, the several counties are preparing to build a better highway. The citizens of Ashton and all points north appear to realize the value to them of the stream of tourists going from Utah points to Yellowstone, and many business men said that conditions there are better than ever."

ARGUES DIVINE RULE OF KINGS, THEN FIRES

Bob Pezal, an Austrian laborer at the Garfield smelters, was booked at the county jail yesterday on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. His arrest was made by Lee Williamson, deputy sheriff. It is alleged that Pezal in an argument as to whether emperors had the divine right to rule in Austria and Germany drew his gun and fired at a fellow Austrian laborer. Pezal's shot missed its mark, no one being injured.

Brinton Is Candidate.

D. B. Brinton, a well-known resident of the southern part of Salt Lake county, near Murray, has announced to his friends that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner. Mr. Brinton is a heavy taxpayer, being a large holder of farm land. In the last forty-five years he has been active in merchandising, contracting, farming and stock raising in this county.

CHURCH CORNERSTONE LAID CATHOLICS CONDUCT SERVICE

Bishop Glass Acts as Master of Ceremonies on Impressive Occasion.

WITH impressive ceremonies that mark such events in the Catholic church the cornerstone of St. Patrick's church in West Salt Lake was laid yesterday afternoon by the Right Rev. Joseph S. Glass, C. M., D. D., bishop of Salt Lake diocese. The Very Rev. P. M. Cushnahan, V. G. preached the sermon of the day and acted as assistant master of ceremonies. The Rev. Michael Sheehan, pastor of St. Patrick's, and the Rev. William Flynn, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes church, acted as deacons of honor. The Very Rev. George S. Rapier, S. M., president of All Hallows college, and the Rev. Theodore Schultz of St. Mary's cathedral, served as chanters. The Rev. Dr. S. Anzalone of St. Mary's cathedral acted as master of ceremonies, and the Rev. Timothy O'Brien, pastor of Kearns St. Ann's orphanage, acted as chaplain.

The Rev. Father Cushnahan's sermon was largely theological. He explained the significance of the ceremonies in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the new edifice and urged all members of the church, especially those of St. Patrick's parish, to co-operate in making it one of the most useful institutions in the city and in the Catholic church. He congratulated the parish upon its new home and urged the members to support everything it stands for.

The ceremonies were largely attended by members of other parishes in the city as well as by those of St. Patrick's, and the Salt Lake Council, Knights of Columbus, was represented by a large delegation.

The new church of St. Patrick's parish is situated on Fourth South street, between Ninth and Tenth West streets. On account of the proximity of the old church to the railroad yards, making it unsafe for little children to attend service alone and creating more or less of a hazard for adults, it was decided about a year ago to erect a new building. The site for the new edifice was chosen after much deliberation, and work started on the building some time ago. The walls of the new structure are more than half way completed and the building will be ready for occupancy before winter.

SCHOOLS TO ADOPT TEXT ON AGRONOMY

Utah high schools are to use "The Principles of Agronomy," a text book in agronomy by Dr. Harris and Mr. Stewart of the Utah Agricultural college, according to a recommendation just made by Dr. Mosiah Hall, state high school inspector. This book, which was published but a few months ago, is finding ready reception by agriculturists throughout the United States, and already several shipments abroad have been made. The sale to date has been very promising.

In reviewing the book the Journal of Education, published in Boston, has, among other things, this to say: "It is as full of information which every farmer should know as a nut of meat. And it is likewise fascinating to the lover of nature and should be to the urban dweller."

RICHARDS SPEAKS AT TABERNACLE SERVICE

Stephen L. Richards, an officer of the Mormon church Sunday school board, was the speaker at yesterday's services in the Salt Lake tabernacle. He discussed the question of "The Home and Care of Children." The speaker mentioned neither politics nor prohibition.

Music was furnished by the tabernacle choir, Horace S. Ensign, assistant director, conducting.

Service Held for Mrs. Hune.

Largely-attended funeral services for Mrs. Johanna C. Hune, who died in this city August 13, were held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Twenty-fifth ward chapel, Bishop George Graham officiating. Addresses were delivered by Peter S. Croman, Benjamin Jensen, James H. Sullivan and Bishop Graham. The ward choir furnished music. The invocation was by August Bittner, the benediction was pronounced by Niels E. Larsen, and the grave in the City cemetery was dedicated by Bishop Graham.

Makes Address at Park.

Arthur W. Reimer of Boston, Socialist-Labor candidate for president of the United States, spoke yesterday afternoon to an audience of several hundred persons at Liberty park. Mr. Reimer's address was along the same lines as the one he delivered in Unity hall Saturday night, being a discussion of the issues of the day from the Socialist-Labor viewpoint.

Vermont Woman Dies Here.

Mrs. Cornelia A. Bixby, 73 years of age, died yesterday at the residence of her friend, Mrs. M. E. Foster, 929 East Thirteenth East street. The body is at the chapel of Eber W. Hall pending funeral arrangements. Mrs. Bixby was a widow, a native of Vermont, and had been in Salt Lake for only four months, the guest of her friend, Mrs. Foster.

TRAINING CAMP TO OPEN NEXT MONDAY

Comfortable Quarters Are Provided for Men at Fort Douglas.

Just a week from today the citizen soldiers of the Rocky mountain states will assemble at Fort Douglas for assignment to companies in readiness for the work of the training camp. Major Johnson Hagood of the coast artillery leaves Fort Rosecrans, San Diego, for Salt Lake today to take command at the camp.

Between now and Saturday other officers detailed to Fort Douglas as instructors will take up their quarters at the fort and will make the final preparations for the reception of the citizen soldiers. Most of these officers will come from the camp at Monterey and many of them are from Honolulu, whence they were detailed to the Monterey camp.

Equipment for the camp and uniforms for the recruits have been arriving at the fort during the past week, while the artillerymen stationed there have been busy in preparing the barracks for occupancy.

The Fort Douglas camp will be unique in that the recruits will be housed in the modern barracks, with all the conveniences of a college dormitory, instead of the tents used at Plattsburg, Monterey and elsewhere. If the experience of the attendants at Plattsburg is of value, the attendants at the local camp can count themselves fortunate in being thus cared for.

With but a week left before the camp opens, the local recruiting committee is making its final campaign, principally in the smaller town and cities of Utah. Meetings held last night at various points met with considerable enthusiasm and, with the shortness of time also in mind, the committee has predicted that the enrollments will total 750 before August 21.

WILL INFORM THOSE INTERESTED IN NAVY

President of National League Wants Names and Writes to Lieutenant Guthrie of Recruiting Station.

In an endeavor to get the names of those persons interested particularly in the navy and who would like literature on this subject, President Robert M. Thompson of the Navy League of the United States has written to Lieutenant Edwin Guthrie, officer in charge of recruiting for the navy in this district, enlisting his aid.

In his letter to Lieutenant Guthrie, President Thompson says:

The Navy league is working for an adequate navy, properly officered, manned and equipped, and efficiently organized. Our executive management is in the hands of former officers of the navy—men who know and love the service.

Our members, who now number over 300,000, and are working in every state and in almost every country—are entitled to some credit for the consideration shown the navy in the bills pending in house and senate. But we want the country to realize, as we do, that the navy is our first and most important line of defense, and that on its strength may depend the national life.

To accomplish this we must get in touch with men and women willing to know something of the navy and its personnel, and ready to join us in urging that those who must stand the first shock of attack be given proper tools and proper treatment.

May we, therefore, ask you to send us the names and addresses of about ten persons who might be interested in receiving our literature and considering our objects and aims? Any suggestions helping to render our work more effective will be gratefully appreciated.

Lieutenant Guthrie has replied to President Thompson's letter, saying that he will send to him the names of such persons as communicate with him indicating their interest in the subject.

Fills College Vacancy.

A vacancy in the physics department of the Utah Agricultural college has just been filled by the appointment of N. E. Edlefsen, a graduate of the institution, as assistant in physics and meteorology.

MILLER WILL BEGIN NEW DUTIES TODA

Chairman of Republica State Committee to Confe With Leaders.

WILL NAME SECRETAR

Supposition Is That Lon Haddock Will Be Appointed to Place.

Glen Miller, the new Republican state chairman, will officially begin his duties this morning when he will meet members of the state committee and the Republican candidates at the Hotel Utah to discuss the appointment of a committee secretary and the personnel of executive and finance committees for the campaign.

Friends of Nephi L. Morris, the nominee for governor, and of other candidates on the state ticket expressed satisfaction yesterday at securing Mr. Miller for chairman and at the statement he issued while accepting the appointment, which was published in The Tribune yesterday.

They feared that Mr. Miller, as one of Governor William Spry's chief supporters in the bitter pre-convention fight, would decline the chairmanship, having his heart for putting aside his own business and directing the campaign for Mr. Morris.

On the other hand, they counted on the close personal friendship existing between Mr. Miller and United States Senator George Sutherland, one of the candidates on the ticket, to induce the former to take hold of the state campaign.

Confidence Expressed.

Mr. Miller's own friends believe that his friendship for the junior senator influenced his decision, but that he has accepted and declared his purpose to work hard to put over the Republican nominees is enough to reassure and encourage the nominees and their friends.

If some substitutions can be made here and there on the ticket, to give it more balance and a broader appeal to all the factions of the Republican party, the leading candidates will feel further relieved. They will breathe easier, as it were.

It is probable that ways and means of achieving this will be discussed at today's conference, after the secretaryship of the state committees and the committee appointments have been decided upon. Some sort of plan to this end will be talked over with A. N. Rodway, special representative of Charles E. Hughes, the presidential nominee, when he gets here the latter part of the week, and with Governor Hughes himself upon his arrival August 24.

The general arrangements for Governor Hughes's visit will go over until the state chairman and his advisers have had a chance to confer with Mr. Rodway.

Planning for Harmony.

Lon J. Haddock, member of the state committee from Salt Lake county and one of the leaders in the campaign to nominate Nephi L. Morris, is still the only Republican mentioned for the important post of secretary of the state committee. Mr. Morris, it is well known, is anxious to have Mr. Haddock for secretary.

There is no hint yet as to the personnel of the executive and finance committees to be associated with Chairman Miller in the work of conducting and underwriting the campaign, although it is known it will be the plan to strive for a harmonizing of all factions of the Republican party by appointing friends of the candidates who were beaten in the Ogden convention and to appeal to Mr. Morris's former associates in the Progressive party by naming some friendly Progressives.

COMES FROM IDAHO TO HAVE GOOD TIME

Thomas Jones of Malad Makes an Excellent Start, but Expensive Finish.

Thomas Jones, from the "dry" town of Malad, Idaho, came to Salt Lake City last Saturday.

Mr. Jones averred that he had come to the city because of the fact that "freedom was allowed to men with a thirst." Saturday night, Mr. Jones says, he proceeded to celebrate. He says he continued celebrating until shortly before 1 o'clock, when he met an amiable friend. The friend, according to Jones's recollection, said he lived at the Lincoln house. The new acquaintance, Jones says, had a persuasive tongue and his pet phrase was "Have another."

After the cars had stopped running and the bright lights were beginning to be dimmed, Mr. Jones says his friend invited him to spend the evening with him at a hotel on Main street. Jones readily acquiesced and the two went to a suite of rooms at the expense of the new acquaintance.

Yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock Jones says, he awakened from a dull, heavy slumber and discovered that his twenty-one-jewel watch, a gift from his father, $25 in cash, some jewelry and his "friend" had disappeared.

Finally becoming suspicious, Mr. Jones reported the matter at the police station but inasmuch as he was unable to give the name of his acquaintance or a good description of him the police have been unable to make an arrest.
