For the seventh time in the last eight years, the Michigan Blue and White 60 and over softball team has won its division title at the Huntsman World Senior Games.

In 1991, when the team didn't win, they weren't here. Maybe that's the only thing that will stop the Michigan club from winning.

The Flushing Merchants, who fell to Michigan Blue and White, took the silver, while Denny's took the bronze.

In the softball 50 + division, Oasis took the gold medal, while Start Street Pizza took the silver.

Emerald City defeated the Portland Masters for the 55+ championship, while Wig-Wam brought home the bronze.

Tennis

At times they are a team, and at other times they are opponents.

Joe Crowley of Salt Lake City defeated Richard Eyre for the mens singles championship, then the twosome teamed up to earn the gold medal in the mens 50 doubles.

David Simpson of Green Valley, Ariz., playing in the mens 75 singles took the gold medal over Bill Erin, of Boulder City, Nev.

Simpson then turned around and teamed up with Tudor ApMadoc, also of Green Valley, Ariz., to take the mens 75 doubles title.

Ray Skillings, of Idaho Falls, Idaho, was in the hunt for double gold medals. He won the mens 60 singles title, but had to settle for the bronze with partner Orlin Wathen, of Lehi, Utah, in doubles play.

Other division gold medal winners were Donald Russell, of Las Vegas (55 singles; John Young, of St. George, and John Wells, of St. George (55 doubles); Gary Totland,
