It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Our Fraternity is neither a religious body nor a political organization. It is neither a scheme for the relief of the poor, nor a substitute for life insurance. It advocates no special creed, neither does it seek to influence legislation. It does not deliver to its members homilies dealing with the demoralizing effects of rags, neither does it ask them to support the families of their deceased brothers. It is not even a social organization in the accepted sense of that term. It is the most simple, the most unobtrusive, the least ostentatious, and, when its purpose is properly carried out, the most beneficial order within my knowledge."

IN the preparation of this work the idea of defining the position held by the general Greek Letter Societies as Institutions in a national as well as local sense has been constantly kept in mind. It has been believed that this end could best be subserved, locally, by an actual showing of the 'manner of men' who compose these societies, and, more generally, by a history of their development and a glimpse at their status at the great institutions of learning which serve as the recruiting stations for these fraternities.

The roster following the historical sketch of each fraternity will be found a most useful as well as interesting feature of the plan. And, while the aim is not Pan-Hellenic in the sometimes understood meaning of that word, still it is believed that the showing made by the various fraternities in this book is such that it may induce the healthful opinion that no one, nor two, nor half-dozen of the general Greek Letter Societies monopolize all of the goodfellowship nor have on their roll of members all the illustrious names in the Greek Letter world.

To those who have so heartily entered into the spirit of this work and have assisted so materially to its success by their co-operation, the compilers and publishers wish to acknowledge their indebtedness. Also to Wendell and Company, of this city, for patterns of the various badges illustrated in this volume.

INTRODUCTORY

GREEK Letter Societies have engrafted themselves on the university life of America. The first of them, the justly renowned Phi Beta Kappa was founded at the College of William and Mary, Williamsburg, Va., on December 5, 1776. But it was not until 1825 that the first general Greek letter fraternity, with a continuous existence to the present time, was founded at Union College. This organization may justly boast itself as the forerunner of the present college fraternity, and Union College is often called the "Mother of Fraternities." For within her walls, now held sacred by every frater, were founded not only Kappa Alpha, but several other Greek letter societies, destined to illustrious and noble fraternity existence.

In their pioneer days, opposed by the faculties of most colleges because of the secrecy and mystery in which their every act was shrouded, fraternities had a perilous existence and a slow growth. But during the past fifty years opposition has gradually died out, and their number has multiplied until they are recognized factors in the life of every college of commanding influence, Princeton alone excepted.

Their secrecy, as is well known, is largely a myth, and argument against them is now without force. Their long continued existence and their roll of honored alumni have proved their right to live.

The true underlying principles of these organizations is that of brotherhood—a banding together for mutual help and improvement. A group of earnest young men, each one of whom pledged heart and hand to aid the others to make the most of themselves and to gain the most from their college courses, cannot but be a power for good in any university. Many an alumnus freely acknowledges much of his success in college and after life to have been due to the influence of his chapter.

When a fraternity is honestly striving to fulfil this idea, it deserves the highest praise: when it degenerates into a mere social club, it is unworthy of its name.

To those who cherish with warmest feeling the friendships made in college hall or within the sacred portals of a fraternity lodge, this volume will be of much interest and value in helping them to locate classmates or fraters who are now living in Chicago, and therefore the publishers, in compiling it, have placed every fraternity man under great obligation and are deserving of hearty support.

DURANTE VITA

*Arcana coelestia ;
Sic sunt perpetua.*

DURANTE vita ; aye to end of life,
What hallowed, golden memories are rife.
O'ertopping Recollection's thronging plain,
Uprise the columns of a lofty fane.
No hooded monks nor priestly denizens
Its altars guard, or dole its benisons
To cringing devotees whose every word
Is by direction of some mitred lord.
The humblest pilgrim to this mystic shrine
A monarch is, by kingly rights divine ;
While most exalted of this knightly clan,
Despite his rank, is but a fellow man.
Here brothers on a common level meet,
The ancient ties to weld, the new to greet ;
And hither may the wanderers return
Whose hearts for friendship unalloyed still yearn.
Inscribed above this portal as you pass
Appears the simple word, " Fraternitas."'
O temple beautiful, O temple fair,
What fond associations cluster there !
The hopes, ambitions, loves of Springtime days,
That linger in a mellow Autumn haze ;
A fellowship which casted out all fears,
Unshaken in the flood of passing years.
Fit emblem thou of that millennial good—
Humanity's united brotherhood.
These sacred memories shall still be rife,
Forsooth durante vita,—during life.

THE AMERICAN COLLEGE FRATERNITY

THE Greek Letter Societies of the American Universities are secret organizations of students, who form these brotherhoods for literary and social purposes. The oldest of these organizations, the Phi Beta Kappa, was established as early as 1776, and it continued the sole society of its kind for fifty years. It now differs from all other college fraternities and occupies a unique place of its own. Its members are selected at the close of their under-graduate course, and are chosen solely on grounds of scholarship. Membership in one fraternity is ordinarily a bar to membership in another, although this is not the case in the Phi Beta Kappa.

The large place these organizations have come to occupy in the American universities can be inferred from the fact that there are now more than 800 "chapters" of these societies in our colleges, and that their total membership, including their alumni, is more than 100,000.

In Germany and America students' societies form an important feature of university life. These organizations influence in no small degree the daily life of their members. They largely determine the social intercourse of students, give rise to lasting friendships, regulate conduct, shape ideals and aspirations, and influence views and habits.

We have in our American universities nothing that answers to the Corps and Burschenschaften of the German universities. The Corps are said to be recruited entirely from the wealthy and aristocratic classes, and to attach great importance to the externals of manners and expenditures, and to be characterized by a strong tendency to an aristocratic aloofness from the great mass of the students.*

*See Paulsen's German Universities, p. 190.

They are the elite of the student body. When they appear together on formal occasions they carry swords and wear a distinguishing dress. They are composed in the main of students enrolled under the faculty of law, and in less degree from those enrolled under the faculty of medicine. The Burschenschaften are said to make less of social distinctions, to be less exclusive and to have a greater number of representatives of the different faculties.

There is no element of secrecy about the corps of the German universities. Their statutes of organization and by-laws have to be submitted to the university authorities for approval. The Corps-Kneipe is a club room rather than a "lodge," and outsiders are often invited to the meetings. A corps has no "chapters" as our American college societies have. It has no existence outside its own university. Its meetings are held twice a week, while the American college society meets once a week. The corps students are duelists and each corps has its Fecht-boden or fencing room, where its members meet every day for practice among themselves.†

There also exist in the German universities the Verbindungen, which are mere social clubs. These also are independent organizations having no "chapters." Their fellowship is less close and exclusive than that of the Corps or of the Burschenschaften.

In the English and Scotch universities there seems to be nothing which at all resembles the college fraternities of the United States. Their societies are not secret and answer to the open literary societies of the American universities.

In the college fraternities of the United States membership is usually indicated by gold badges, which contain the name and some of the symbols of the fraternity. Sometimes they are set in diamonds and precious stones, and are quite costly. In the German universities the societies are distinguished by "color-wearing." They wear distinctive caps of a particular color, or some color emblem attached to their dress.

In the United States it has become quite the practice for the students of a particular fraternity to reside together during their college course in their chapter house. A few years ago there were said to be seventy such houses in the United States which were owned by the chapters, and three times as many which were rented. There are decided advantages in this practice, as well as some dangers that need to be guarded against. The members of a chapter thus living together learn day by day what has been called the great art of governing themselves. In Germany it is said that there are no laws in the world which are more scrupulously obeyed and more strictly upheld than the laws which the students' societies impose upon themselves. As a rule the fraternity houses in the United States are well conducted. Severe rules are established, which prohibit students from having intoxicating liquors inside these houses, and and which forbid any form of gambling. The graduate members residing in the town often keep up intimate relations with their society, and are keen observers of the manner in which the under-graduates deport themselves.

Years ago, when the people were stirred to a high state of excitement against secret societies, chiefly due to their indignation with Masonry, some of the universities undertook to suppress college fraternities. The attempt led to much bad feeling and was finally abandoned. As early as 1789, however, eight years after Phi Beta Kappa was established at Harvard, and long before the anti-masonic agitation, a committee of the Overseers reported to the board 'that there is an institution in the university with the nature of which the government is not acquainted, which tends to make a discrimination among the students,' and submitted the propriety of inquiring into its nature and design. The chairman of that committee was the John Hancock whose signature to the Declaration of Independence has made him immortal! In 1831 the Harvard Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa were induced, "after a long and angry discussion," participated in by Judge Story and John Quincy Adams, to throw open the secrets of that organization to the world. This society is said to constitute a kind of aristocracy of learning in a democratic country, Its name in full is, translated, Philosophy, the Guide of Life. A distinguished Harvard professor has said that this "is the only society whose right to examine the condition of our scholarship is unquestioned," All other Greek Letter societies in our colleges are secret organizations, with the exception of the Delta Upsilon, which is non-secret.

Various judgments have been pronounced upon the value of college fraternities. They have been denounced by not a few on the ground that they lead to a neglect of study and to a waste of time; that they involve considerable expense and develop habits of extravagant expenditure; that they inculcate false social standards and tend to a supercilious contempt of non-fraternity men; that they lead to dissipation and vice. On the other hand, we are told that these organizations are helpful and wholesome; that they have high ideals and hold in check evil tendencies; that the esprit de corps by which they are characterized exerts an excellent influence; that they tend to develop a pride of scholarship by requiring their members to complete their studies creditably, if for no other motive, then, for the sake of the society's reputation and standing; that they are organized for the intellectual and moral and social improvement of their members.

The truth of the matter is that societies differ just as individuals differ. There are college fraternities whose influence is not altogether wholesome, and from which a student had better keep aloof. There are also fraternities which are in a high degree in every way helpful, and to which it is an honor for any man to belong. If this were not the case, it would be quite impossible to understand the respect and affection with which mature men of the highest type, men like George William Curtis and Joseph H. Choate, have been wont to speak of their college fraternity. It would be still less possible to comprehend why such men should consent to have their sons initiated into the same society if its influences made for evil and not good. Generalizations are always dangerous. We are not to condemn college societies because some of them may be not altogether what they should be. For the same reason we should not commend them without reservation because some of them may be most wholesome and helpful. It is as necessary to discriminate between societies as it is between individuals. A student proposing to enter a college fraternity should study its membership and determine whether the men who compose it are the manner of men he wants for friends. This much, however, should in all fairness be said: No college fraternity can be wholly bad and long exist in any reputable university. It is the duty of college authorities to weed out bad men. Men who abandon themselves to dissipation and to a neglect of work, when they are found out, as sooner or later they are pretty sure to be, are set adrift. And a society composed of men inclined to dissipation would be under the necessity of reforming itself before it became very bad, or it would be liable to be suppressed by action of the proper authorities.

The fact that the universities permit these organizations to exist affords strong presumption that they are favorably regarded, and that as a class their influence is for good rather than evil. Princeton is the only institution of any particular prominence in the country in which fraternities are prohibited, and there is no reason to believe that the morale of the student body is any higher there than in the institutions in which a contrary policy is pursued. Indeed it would not be difficult to show by the utterances of numerous college presidents that these organizations on the whole simplify college government and are an aid to administrative officers in the influences which they bring to bear in favor of correct living.

The following table gives the Men's General Fraternities, shows the institution in which they were first established, and the date of organization :

These organizations pride themselves on a distinguished membership. They number among their adherents many men who have won eminence in statesmanship, diplomacy, jurisprudence, letters, the arts, and in all the various walks of life. There are found in the faculties of the universities their strong supporters, men whose personal experience and observation has led them to the conclusion that these societies are worthy of a place in our institutions for the higher learning. But every effort should be made to keep these organizations from degenerating into mere social clubs, and no person should be admitted into their membership unless he is possessed of those intellectual, moral and social qualities which render intimate association with him desirable and helpful. Fraternity men are sometimes accused of entertaining a weak, narrow and unworthy prejudice which occasionally leads them to look down upon or to depreciate non-fraternity or "neutral" men. It may be that such a spirit now and then appears. That it is discreditable and unworthy is evident. But that it is largely entertained is not believed. That it should be frowned upon by all admits of no doubt.

THAT OLD FRATERNITY PIN.

I 'M a plain old business plodder who don't give a rap for frills,
And I'm worried less by fashion than I am by stocks and bills.
Though my wife insists that in me Nature planned a perfect man,
I'm afraid that I'm not building in accordance with that plan.
I have never owned a watch or worn a chain, or fob, or ring,
And, in fact, I'm out of sympathy with all that sort of thing.
I indulge no taste for baubles. Yet what thoughts come thronging in
When I see some college youngster "flash" my old "frat" pin!

At the sight of that old emblem I forget that I am gray
And my pulse beats just as strongly as upon that far-off day
When a band of student brothers taught me mystic grip and sign,
And I rode their goat in triumph—and that shining badge was mine.
Father Time has not been idle and those "boys" of long ago
Now are scattered far and widely, and their heads are crowned with snow;
But their hearts, I know, beat warmly, for they keep alive within
All the principles embodied in that old "frat" pin.

How my thoughts go flying backward to youth's iridescent day,
When the world lay all before me and Hope beckoned on the way!
Now another generation claims the center of the stage,
While I'm ready to write "finis" at the bottom of my page.
I'll confess a strange emotion sets my very soul aglow
As I greet again by proxy those old "boys" of long ago.
How it starts my nerves a-tingling! How it warms my heart within
When I couple past and present with that old "frat" pin.

FRANK S. PIXLEY.

EARLY DAYS

IN the striking development of the American college the growth of the social side has kept close and steady pace, crystalizing in what is termed the Fraternity System. So perfectly and systematically has the fraternity or brotherhood idea grown that to day there are few colleges of reputation, rank or size that are not largely influenced and controlled by it.

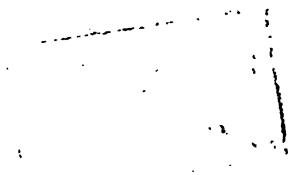

The birth of the system dates from the historic year of American Independence. Like the nation, small and trembling, but brave, the first chapter of a Greek Letter Society announced its advent in the patriotic village of Williamsburg, Va., on a bleak December night, 1776. It was here in this secluded village, amid the primeval forests, that had been founded in the closing days of the seventeenth century the second oldest college on American soil.

Perhaps the Virginia colony lacked that devotion to religion and education that characterized the self-sacrificing men who established Harvard; yet the love of that culture born only of education and liberty was exemplified in the founding of a college so early in the history of the colony.

Near the old college walls stood a modest hostelry where hospitality was dispensed in true colonial fashion. College and tavern grew old together, and their frequenters little dreamed of the place in history both were destined to take. But within the Raleigh Inn the voice of Patrick Henry, in tones which perpetuated his name, uttered the first battle note of the struggle for independence, and in the year that witnessed the same sentiment, armed with legislative authority, five students of William and Mary, while seated at the hospitable board of the Raleigh Inn, expressed their bond of fellowship in a written constitution. This society was known by the Greek Letters Phi Beta Kappa. Secrecy may have been a useless appendage to this small band of congenial students, but their aim was considered best so subserved and its members were only known by a badge in the form of a small golden key upon which was engraved "Phi Beta Kappa," the initials of their motto.

In 1779 a newcomer arrived among the students of William and Mary in the person of Mr. Elisha Parmele. Mr. Parmele was initiated into the mysteries of Phi Beta Kappa, and so thoroughly was he convinced that the Virginia dinners enjoyed by this society would taste equally as well at Harvard and Yale, where he had formerly studied, that he journeyed one fine fall day, by horse and stage, to New Haven, where, in December, 1779, he established the chapter at Yale, and a few days later there was added to the Hasty Pudding and Institute of 1770 at Harvard the Southern society of Phi Beta Kappa. Thus were the first chapters of the oldest Greek letter society founded.

But the Alpha chapter was destined to soon experience the evil effects of war, which has twice clothed the college of William and Mary in poverty. In 1781, General Cornwallis, advancing near Williamsburg, forced this university to temporarily close. The chapter necessarily became extinct. Harvard and Yale, however, rapidly extended the order, and chapters were soon thriving at Dartmouth, Williams, Bowdoin and Amherst. More than seventy years after the suspending of the parent chapter, one of the original members, although nearly a centenarian, made the long journey from Philadelphia to William and Mary to re-establish the chapter.

As the century was nearing the end of its first quarter, time-honored Phi Beta Kappa had already lost the social characteristics of a Raleigh Inn dinner, and, more and more, an election to its membership was considered as a reward of scholastic merit. The golden key, so proudly worn by Virginia youths as the insignia of genial fellowship, was now taken as evidence of the possession of book lore and literary attainments.

Under these conditions, it is not strange that in 1825, at old Union College, four members of Phi Beta Kappa should incarnate the lost spirit of the youths of '76 and boldly launch a secret society called Kappa Alpha. This was the first of the modern Greek letter fraternities, and it was not a great departure from the original idea of Phi Beta Kappa. They also had chosen a motto, by the initials of which they were known. Their badge was not a departure from the original idea of the older society. They also adopted a key, the only change being that they suspended it from a corner instead of from the center of its equal sides.

It was a stormy sea upon which this new craft embarked. The faculty was unfriendly. The student body, long accustomed to open literary societies, found no room for the new project. Yet the society prospered. It won its way into the heart of college life. Friend and foe acknowledged the courtesy of its members and the genialty of the wearers of the new badge.

Sigma Phi soon followed Kappa Alpha on the same campus, and in the short course of a few years other fraternities appeared, and the system of Greek letter brotherhoods became fairly and firmly launched.

It is interesting to reflect on the early days, when the Greek letter men were invariably the minority of the student body, and conditions everywhere seemed hostile to their existence. But the fraternity, contrary to expectations, proved to be an association whose influence was to broaden, rather than to narrow, the friendship of its members. It was a plea for friendship rather than a protest against it, and its influence became felt beyond the banded fellowship of its own conservative circle.

In the early days the chapter was a fraternity in itself, and if the mother chapter had planted charters in other colleges, the association between the two was not as intimate as it is to-day. It was seldom they came together. The fraternity interest seemed to be measured by the days in college, and was counted only a pleasant memory in the years which followed commencement. Those who organized these fraternities and shaped their policy in the early days builded far wiser than they knew.

Many are the men who answer to the roll-call of the classes of the thirties and forties, who, years after they had worn the old fraternity pin, found some genial youth displaying on his vest the old familiar insignia, and upon inquiry as to when and where such good fortune befell him, learned that the fraternity, which had grown dim and almost forgotten, had become an organization of strength and power, and its chapters were on the green campus of colleges of standing, from gulf to lakes, and from sea to sea. Such was the glad surprise to many and many of the "Older Boys," who had wandered into the commercial and professional world, leaving behind the pleasant memories of youth.

FRATERNITY

THE road that winds among the rocks, and lifts
The toiler up to heights where all the gifts,
Most manifold, of nature, are enhanced,
And vistas open to the mind entranced
With hopes half realized, is rough and steep.
The level paths are easier to keep.

There are no bruised feet upon the plain;
No sighs for hopes that proved to be in vain;
No eyes that ache and yet refuse to weep
Aweary grown with looking up the steep
Ascent for that which, failing of a name
Men call, for lack of better reason, fame.

No balm has yet been found for such as feel
No bruise. That rest alone is sweet and real
When Labor first prepares the couch and makes Immediate, magic cure of all our aches.

Whatever cause may underlie, 'tis true,
That fame has been monopolized by few
While millions failed, or else did not aspire.
The tide of fortune lifts few from the mire.
Who, beside Caesar passed the Rubicon?
At Waterloo, who stood with Wellington?
Who, with Napoleon, braved the Russian Bear?
With Washington, who crossed the Delaware?

Yet there were those who well deserved the meed
Awarded to the one. Their country's need
Became their own, and they as freely gave
Of their heart's blood—nor deigned one drop to save—
As he on whom the laurel wreath was laid.
One name shines through the years, while others fade.

Yet fame is ever circumscribed by fears,
Success breeds cares and victory hath its tears.
The happiest homes are not in palace halls,
Nor hearts found truest where the ermine falls.

In truth, to climb Aornus were an end
Most meet, if on the heights were found a friend
Whose trustful soul against your own would grow.
Too close to be cast off at any blow
Aimed by the tongue of envy or of hate.
They scarce deserve the name of friends who wait
On Fortune, when the brook grows shallow—fools—
Casting about their line for deeper pools.
These last comprise the most of humankind,
And even fame is not so hard to find
As the pure love from friendship's sacred mine.
Which, purged from dross, becomes almost divine.

Not hoarded treasure gained by years of toil,
The finer senses being dulled meanwhile;
Not high position, with its motley horde
Of clinging sycophants, whose every word
Belies the real desire for pelf and place;
Not the brief honor of the winning race
For fame, where false ambition sets the pace;
Not one or all combined can fill the space
Of individual life, from dawn to dark
With full content, whene'er there lacks the spark

Within the breast which makes of all mankind
A brotherhood. As well attempt to find
A pearl or diamond in the serpent's nest.
As rare content or perfect peace and rest
Where naught but sordid avarice abides
And greed has scorched the soul it all but hides.

Let that fair word, Fraternity, sink deep
Into your hearts and lives, for round it sweep.
At ever varying range, half of the light
And sunshine of this life. It brings no blight,
But bloom instead. It proves a healing balm
To minds diseased. It finds a haven calm
For storm-tossed souls which else might have been lost.
It tells the truth whatever proves the cost.

Fraternity—thou child of college halls,
Although not circumscribed by any walls—
To thee we pledge the cup and faith renew.
To joys you add, in measure more than due.
And to the sorrows, bid us kiss the rod,
Seeing in them, fraternity with God.

OUR BADGE

TO those who wear "The outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace," in the shape of the emblems of the college secret societies, there always seems to me a peculiar fitness in the selection of the badge itself as originally designed and worn. The desire for beautiful things and the love of humanity generally for startling effects, are not necessarily confined to the female sex, especially when it comes to the question of the wearing of our emblems. The average student of means, from the moment of his initiation into a secret society, seems imbued with the idea that he must procure some insignia of his particular society, which shall be just a little bit different from that worn by any other of his brothers.

It would be almost impossible to enumerate, much less describe in detail, the various designs of badges, beautiful and otherwise, which would fill a catalogue of pins; nor is it the purpose of this short sketch to go into detail of their variety, the object being simply to look back to the past of our older fraternities and see what those men in the infancy of their several societies designed and authorized as the emblems representing the particular fraternities to which they swore allegiance.

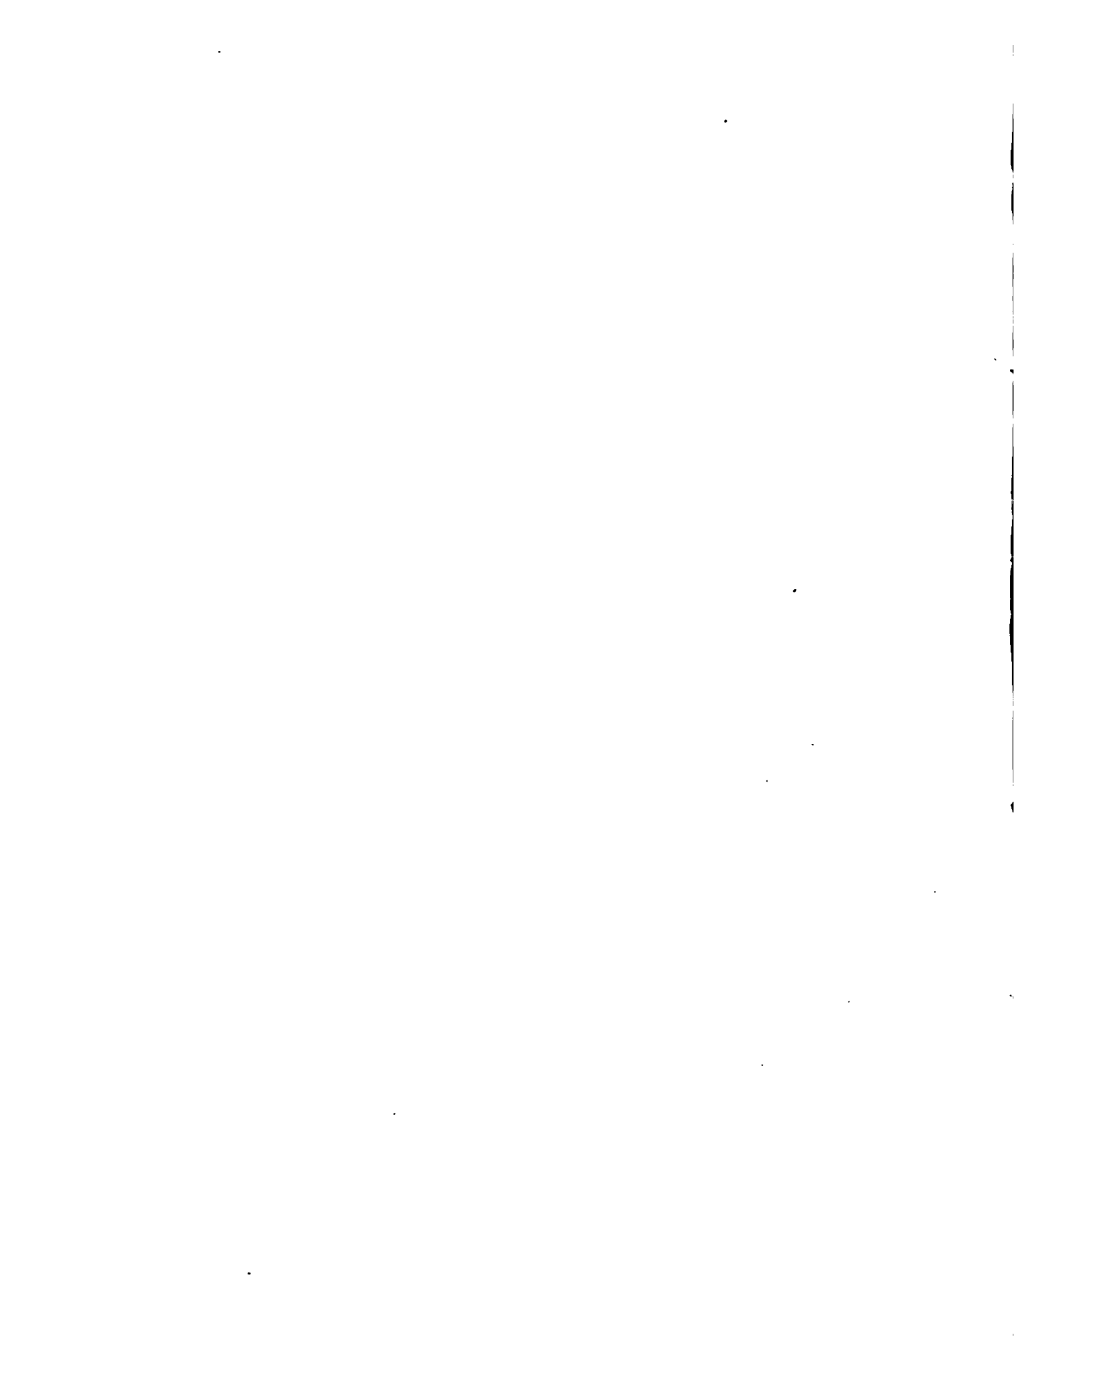

Consider for a moment some of the older fraternities, for example the Alpha Delta Phi, the Psi Upsilon and the Delta Kappa Epsilon. In the case of the first named, for forty years what has been known as the old "slab badge" was the only authorized insignia of the members belonging thereto. Even now the two last named fraternities authorize, so far as the writer knows, no other badge than the slab form so familiar to the members of those fraternities. And why? There must have been as there now is, so far at least as the Alpha Delta Phi is concerned, a very good and sufficient reason for the preservation of this old style badge. The use of the Skeleton Star and Crescent or of the initials of Psi Upsilon, or even of Alpha Delta Phi do not admit of the introduction of certain other emblems quite as important in themselves as the letters designating their societies. If any Alpha Delta Phi man is the happy possessor of an old time slab badge, let him turn it over and he will discover the emblems appearing on the reverse side to be just as essential to the badge itself as those that appear on its face. That slab badge was first adopted, in 1833, as the only authentic representation of the principles of the fraternity, and continued until 1873, when the Skeleton "Star and Crescent" was authorized, and finally given equal force and effect with the old badge.

But the new fangled shapes and pretty and delicate combinations of many of the modern pins wholly distract from, and do not draw the mind of the careful, painstaking society man to, the side of the society which is best worth thinking about. This is a case of the world, the flesh and the devil, with large odds on the devil. That idea never suggested itself to the framers of the various constitutions of the older fraternities. Emblems appearing upon the badge had to them a meaning, and it was their endeavor in wearing it to live up to all that their badge imported. It is impossible for the name of the owner even, aside from other essential features, to appear on the reverse of the jeweled insignia of any of the societies. They are crowded out by perforations admitting that glow of light that is supposed to come through the diamond, ruby or emerald, and thus the insignia that should appear on the reverse of the old style badge are entirely lacking. I do not intend to inveigh against the ornate in the style of our various insignia, but the ghosts of our forefathers would undoubtedly advise a return to the original simple forms, with all the meaning attaching thereto, in preference to what they might term the frivolity and frippery and desire for show that animate us poor men. KAPPA ALPHA

THE Kappa Alpha Fraternity can justly claim the honor of being the oldest social and literary secret Greek letter organization in the United States. In 1823 a secret social society was formed at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., as a result of discord which had arisen between two factions of a military company at that place. The late Rev. John H. Hunter was the father of this organization and with him were a number of congenial students, holding meetings at their respective houses. In 1825 they formally organized themselves as a secret fraternity, known as Kappa Alpha.

For some time the members were severely criticised and met with strong opposition. Two years later, however, two other societies sprang into existence—Sigma Phi and Delta Phi.

Dr. Hunter and his associates, among whom were Prof. Isaac W. Jackson of Union College, Dr. Thomas Hunn of Albany, N. Y., Rev. Leonard Woods, D. D., ex-president of Bowdoin, United States Senator Preston King from New York, Judge Rufus W. Peckham of Albany, and Judge Levi Hubbell of Milwaukee, had no dream of such a chain of societies binding institution to institution and men of different colleges together through the country, such as has been the direct result of their initial movement. The first group of Kappa Alpha men at Union stamped a character upon the society which it has never lost, and laid out its ceremonial features with such remarkable completeness that few changes have been made in them during sixty years.

In the fall of 1833 a chapter of Kappa Alpha was inaugurated at Williams College, where the opposition was so marked that in 1839 a social body, known as "The Equitable Fraternity," led a night attack against the members of Kappa Alpha at their rooms in a private residence about a mile from the College, but were repelled. In 1864 the society came into possession of a house and grounds in a most desirable part of Williamstown, and in 1877 a beautiful lodge was erected. The history of the chapter has been marked by unusual evenness of character and its prosperity has been continuous.

In 1844 Kappa Alpha established a chapter at Geneva (now Hobart), its members coming indirectly from a burlesque society named "The Skin and Bones." The meetings were held in the American Hotel (now the Kirkwood), where they had rooms properly fitted up. The chapter had a successful existence, and many of its members, later, became prominent in public life. In 1854 the chapter was suspended. The alumni at Hobart re-established the chapter in 1879, since which it has had a highly successful career. The chapter now has desirable grounds and plans are on foot to erect a fine lodge.

At Princeton, what bade fair to be a successful chapter was established in the winter of 1852. This chapter was given up because of the enactment of anti-fraternity laws at that place.

The career of Kappa Alpha at the University of Virginia, which was established in 1856, was a brief and brilliant one, its life being extinguished at the outbreak of the civil war, as most of its members naturally joined the Confederate army.

At Cornell, a chapter was inaugurated with the birth of the college, and in 1887 a very handsome lodge was constructed. The chapter there has been highly successful.

In 1892 a chapter was established at Toronto University.

In 1894 the last chapter was established, that of Lehigh, and like its predecessors, has started with a vim that cannot but win success.

The Union Chapter celebrated its semi-centennial with elaborate ceremonies in 1875, some of the original members being present.

Alumni organizations are in several cities. They hold annual reunions and banquets. A dining club is maintained by members of the society at New York City. Several reunions have also been held in Chicago.

Records have been published at intervals, the last of which was issued in 1892. Supplements are published annually.

The emblem of the fraternity is a diamond-shaped golden key.

The fraternity color is scarlet.

The society has never admitted honorary members.

SIGMA PHI

THE Sigma Phi Fraternity was established at Union College in 1827. The founders were T. F. Bowrie, George N. Porter, Chas. Rowley, S. W. Beall, R. H. Champan and Chas. T. Cromwell. The policy of Sigma Phi from its foundation has been on conservative lines. It has but seven active chapters in existence at the present time. They are at the following colleges: Union, Hamilton, Williams, Hobart, University of Vermont, University of Michigan, and Lehigh University. Each chapter owns its chapter house.

The total membership is about 2,500.

The fraternity has no honorary members.

An annual convention of delegates from the various chapters governs the fraternity.

Catalogues have been issued every three or four years since the first one, which came out in 1834. Song books and addresses have also frequently been published for private circulation.

The badge of the fraternity is made up of the two Greek letters, "Sigma and Phi," in the form of a monogram.

The colors are light blue and white.

The Chicago alumni association holds frequent reunions and banquets.

DELTA PHI

THE Fraternity of Delta Phi, which was organized at Union College on November 18, 1827, is the third oldest of the Greek Letter Societies. It, with Kappa Alpha and Sigma Phi, the two preceeding organizations, laid the foundations of the present college fraternity system, and for a long time these three were known as the "Union Triad."

In 1837 the fraternity organized a branch at Brown University, and since that time chapters have been established in all of the larger institutions of learning in the East.

The fraternity policy has always been along very conservative lines, and consequently the membership is comparatively small, the men being mainly drawn from the Middle and New England States, where it holds a high social rank.

There are now twelve chapters, with a membership of about three thousand.

Delta Phi has no alumni associations at present, and but one club, which is located at 56 East 49th street, New York City. The yearly conventions are held there, and it is the general headquarters of the fraternity.

The last catalogue was issued in the spring of 1897, and hereafter it will come out once every ten years, but supplements containing corrections and additional names will be published from time to time as required.

Nearly all the chapters own houses, the one at Yale being especially fine.

The following is a list of the active chapters: Union College, Brown University, New York University, Columbia College, Rutgers College, Harvard University, University of Pennsylvania, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Lehigh University, Johns Hopkins University, Yale, Cornell University.

There were also chapters at Princeton, University of Michigan, University of North Carolina and Colgate, but they are now inactive.

The fraternity colors are light blue and white.

ALPHA DELTA PHI

THE Alpha Delta Phi Fraternity was founded at Hamilton College in 1832 by Samuel Eells, a student from Ohio, a man of sterling integrity and great ability, whose untimely death at the age of thirty-two alone prevented his attaining a national reputation. He was at the time of his death the friend and law partner of Salmon P. Chase, who afterwards became Chief Justice of the United States. His idea was to establish a fraternity whose aim should be to supplement the college course by outside literary work, and also to develop the social nature by the cultivation of a fraternal bond of friendship.

The fraternity was judiciously extended, the first chapters being planted under the founder's immediate supervision. It was the pioneer fraternity in over a dozen of the best colleges of the East, including Columbia, Yale, Harvard, Amherst, Brown, Bowdoin and Rochester. It is the oldest of the large fraternities, there being but three older ones in the country, each of them much smaller. It was also the first fraternity to go into the West, and in 1833 established a chapter in Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, which was at that time one of the leading institutions of learning in the West. As a result of the establishment there of Alpha Delta Phi, Miami became the mother of most of the prominent Western fraternities. Beta Theta Pi was the first one, and came into existence in 1839. Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Chi were rocked in the same cradle a few years later. Thus it will be seen that the pioneer work of Alpha Delta Phi was something of which any fraternity might feel proud.

But what would it profit a fraternity to be a pioneer unless it established a high standard for others to follow? How lofty the standards and ideals of Alpha Delta Phi are, may be learned from an examination of the long list of her illustrious sons. The Harvard Chapter alone has enough illustrious names on its roll to establish the reputation of any fraternity. When one considers that James Russell Lowell, Phillips Brooks, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., Chas. Francis Adams, Jr., Edward Everett Hale, President Elliott, of Harvard, and the two leading members of the bar of New York City to-day, Joseph H. Choate and James C. Carter, are all from the Harvard chapter, one can obtain some idea of the standard Alpha Delta Phi has raised for others to follow. The Yale Chapter is not far behind Harvard, and the smaller colleges have done their share. This fraternity is quite distinctively a literary organization and it has sought and obtained those who were aspirants for literary honors. In addition to the names already mentioned, it will not detract any to add Donald C. Mitchell, Hamilton W. Mabie and George William Curtis in the field of literature, and in theology the names of Bishops Coxe and Huntington of the Episcopal Church, and Dr. Storrs, of Brooklyn. Probably the fraternity's most conspicuous strength at the present time is in the line of education. It numbers in its ranks today the presidents of Yale, Harvard, Johns Hopkins, Clark, Amherst, Northwestern, Union, Andover, Smith and Vassar. In public life Senator Allison, of Iowa, is its most prominent representative, and at the time of the death of the late Justice Blatchford, of the U. S. Supreme Court, one-third of the nine members of that body were members of this fraternity, the other two being Justices Shiras and Brown. In diplomacy, Alpha Delta Phi has been represented by ministers to England, Germany, France, Russia, Spain, Turkey, Holland, Austria, Greece and Belgium. The most recent of these appointments were under the Cleveland administration, Mr. Uhl, at Berlin, and Mr. Quimby, at the Hague, both being graduates of the chapter in the University of Michigan.

The Chicago Graduate Chapter of Alpha Delta Phi is composed of some two hundred members, and its present board of officers are David E. Bradley, president; Rev. T. W. Goodspeed, vice-president; Henry M. Bates, secretary; Henry W. Austin, treasurer. The following members have been prominent as officers or otherwise in the graduate chapter: Rev. Herrick Johnson, Rev. David Swing, James S. Norton, George Howland, C. Fred Kimball, Judge Jos. M. Bailey, Judge Wm. H. Barnum, Franklin H. Head, A. A. Sprague, David B. Lyman, Ex-Senator J. R. Doolittle, A. M. Pence, Henry Wade Rogers, Francis B. Peabody, Rev. F. A. Noble, Wm. P. Williams, U. S. sub-treasurer; Dr. James Nevins Hyde, Dr. Joseph S. Mitchell. Dr. Henry M. Lyman, Dr. Hosmer A. Johnson, Dr. Edmund Andrews.

This fraternity is prominently connected with the University of Chicago, having four members of the board of trustees, Rev. A. K. Parker, D. L. Shorey, Wm. Rockefeller, son of the founder of the University, and T. W. Goodspeed, who is also secretary of the University. The fraternity is well represented on the faculty, as well, and its under-graduate chapter there does it great credit. There are at present 23 chapters in the fraternity. In addition to those already mentioned it is represented in Adelbert, Dartmouth, Michigan, Williams, New York City College, Wesleyan, Kenyon, Union, Cornell, Trinity, Johns Hopkins, Minnesota, Toronto and McGill, the latter two being the greatest universities in Canada. In this respect it is an international fraternity. Its influence has ever been exerted to bring out the best there is in man. Its members are loyal, and its motto "Manus multae, cor unum."

PSI UPSILON

THE Psi Upsilon Fraternity was founded with the establishment of the Theta Chapter at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., November 24, 1833. The original founders, seven in number, were Samuel Goodale, now of Columbus, Neb.; Sterling Goodale Hadley, of Waterloo, N. Y.; Edward Martindale, of New York City; George Washington Tuttle, of Bath, N. Y.; Robert Barnard, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Charles Washington Harvey, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Merwin Henry Stewart, of Troy N. Y. Of these Samuel Goodale, Sterling Goodale Hadley and Edward Martindale still survive. In recent years, Samuel Goodale, who is now about eighty-six years of age, has attended a number of the fraternity conventions, meetings and banquets, among which was the re-institution ceremony of the Omega Chapter in the University of Chicago, at the Auditorium in Chicago November 24, 1897. He is still active in mind and body, and, while living in the splendid memories of the past, keeps abreast of the progress and achievements of the present. On every public and private occasion, he is accorded the place of honor, and is rightfully regarded and venerated by the Psi Upsilons of to-day as the father of the fraternity.

There have been established altogether twenty-two chapters of the fraternity, of which twenty-one are to-day active, thriving chapters. The fraternity has no chapters south of the Ohio, or west of the Mississippi River, and but one chapter, namely, the Alpha, at Harvard College, which is inactive.

The following is a list of the chapters: Union College, University of New York, Yale College, Brown University, Amherst College, Dartmouth College, Columbia College, Bowdoin College, Hamilton College, Wesleyan University, Harvard College, University of Rochester, Kenyon College, University of Michigan, University of Chicago, Syracuse University, Cornell University, Trinity College, Lehigh University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Minnesota and University of Wisconsin.

The tenth catalogue of the fraternity, which was the last one published, appeared in March, 1888, and contained 6,778 names of initiates. It showed an annual increase in names of 204 per annum during the nine years intervening since the publication of the ninth catalogue in 1879. If the same rate of increase be taken for a period of ten years intervening since the publication of the tenth catalogue, the names of Psi Upsilon initiates would now be over 3,800. However, during the last ten years the chapters have averaged a larger membership and three new chapters have been added, so that it is almost certain that the list of Psi Upsilon initiates numbers about 9,000 at the present time.

The spirit of Psi Upsilon has not been confined to college halls, but has made itself recognized and its influence felt in and through a large number of strong, enthusiastic alumni associations, among which may be mentioned the Psi Upsilon Club of New York, and the Psi U. Alumni Associations of Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Grand Rapids, Milwaukee, Honolulu, and other cities.

The Psi Upsilon Association of the Northwest, with headquarters at Chicago, although it had existed in an unorganized condition for about fifteen years, was not thoroughly organized and incorporated until May 15, 1890. From the time of its incorporation under the laws of Illinois it has grown rapidly in numbers. Its object is to promote the welfare of the Psi Upsilon Fraternity, to cultivate social intercourse among its members, and to maintain the fraternity spirit and sentiment among the alumni of the Northwest. Thus far it has succeeded in a marked degree in achieving the object of its formation.

It aims to call its members together at least twice a year at the semi-annual banquets, which in recent years have been held at the Union League Club in Chicago, and have proved most entertaining and satisfactory to all who have attended.

The most recent list of members of the association, published in 1897, contains 322 names, of which all but 83 are residents of Chicago and the immediate vicinity. This list is far from complete.

The fraternity holds a convention once each year with some one of its chapters, and its general administrative business is transacted through and conducted by the executive council of five members, who reside in New York, which city is also the place of business of the council.

The fraternity colors, which are worn by Psi Upsilon on all public occasions in the different colleges, and particularly at the annual convention, are garnet and gold.

The tendency in recent times to build chapter houses for the Greek letter fraternities in the different college towns has been followed by Psi Upsilon. Nearly all of its chapters have their own houses, or chapter houses, where their members reside and where their meetings and social functions are held. One of the handsomest and most imposing of these is that of Phi Chapter, at Ann Arbor, Mich. It is situated directly opposite the southwest corner of the campus, at the southeast corner of two of the most prominent streets of the city. This situation, for a chapter house, is the most commanding in the city. All receptions, dances and fraternity gatherings are held at this house, and about twenty-six of the chapter members reside there constantly.

Among the important historical events in Psi Upsilon annals there are two that will never be forgotten. One of these was the ever memorable Psi Upsilon trip over the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad and its connections from Detroit to Salt Lake City, Utah, in April, 1869, and the other, the semi-centennial convention of the fraternity at Albany, N. Y., in May, 1883.

Through the kindness and hospitality of the late Perry H. Smith—always a loyal and enthusiastic Psi U.—there was tendered to all the Psi U's of the United States, in the spring of 1869, a cordial invitation to make a trip over the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad from Detroit to Salt Lake City. Mr. Smith was then residing in Chicago and was vice-president of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company. He arranged and directed the whole trip himself. Nothing was left undone that could contribute to the comfort and pleasure of the excursion. Pullman palace sleeping cars were provided for the entire journey. Special cars were placed at the service of the fraternity at Detroit, and all the Psi U's of the United States afforded an opportunity of seeing the Western country. Over fifty of the college boys, representing ten states and the District of Columbia, availed themselves of Mr. Smith's generous fraternal invitation. On March 30, 1869, the Psi Upsilon, overflowing with college spirit and stirred by the music of the fraternity, began their celebrated trip at the city of Detroit.

Upon reaching Chicago a stop of two days was arranged and a magnificent entertainment and reception provided for the fraternity at the home of Mr. Smith on the North Side. The Psi U's were there presented to many prominent Chicagoans and especially to many prominent young ladies of the North Side.

The trip was a remarkable success in every particular, and the Psi U. men, who were fortunate enough to enjoy it, will never cease to bear in grateful remembrance the name of Perry H. Smith, whose fraternal loyalty and generosity, on this occasion, as on many others during his life, contributed so greatly to the pleasure of his brother Psi U's and to the honor of the fraternity he loved.

The semi-centennial convention of the fraternity at Albany, N. Y., held with the Theta Chapter of Union College—the mother chapter of Psi Upsilon—in May, 1883, witnessed the largest and most notable gathering of the fraternity ever held. About 300 members from all parts of the United States, and representing every chapter and alumni association, were in attendance. Three of the founders of the fraternity, Hon. Sterling Goodale Hadley, George Washington Tuttle and Charles Washington Harvey, honored the occasion with their presence. Looking back through the vista of fifty years, they were able to recall the early struggles of the fraternity and in simple but most impressive language to tell the story of the birth of Psi Upsilon.

Among those who were present and participated in the proceedings were: Prof. Willard Fiske, Prof. Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, Chas. Dudley Warner, Prof. Goldwin Smith, Hon. Albion W. Tourgee, Hon. Joseph R. Hawley, Hon. Alexander H. Rice.

Letters of congratulation were read at the banquet from Rev. Samuel Goodale, Hon. Andrew D. White, Chauncey M. Depew, Hon. William P. Frye, Hon. William Walter Phelps, President Seelye and hosts of others, and finally the following telegram from the President of the United States was read and followed by enthusiastic outbursts of applause:

TO HON. ALEXANDER H. RICE,
President Psi Upsilon Convention,
DELAVAN HOUSE, ALBANY, N. Y.:

MAY 25, 1883.

I hereby regret my inability to share with my brethren in Psi Upsilon, now gathered in convention at Albany, the enjoyment of this evening's festivities. To them all, and through them all to the members of our fraternity, I send cordial greeting. Sing for my sake the old refrain:

"Then 'till the sands of life are run,
We'll sing to thee, Psi Upsilon,
Long Live Psi Upsilon! Psi Upsilon!"

CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

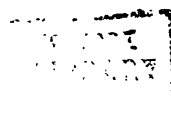

No event previous to, nor since the semi-centennial convention, can be compared to it in enthusiasm, attendance, importance or in the large number of distinguished Psi U's present.

W. T. UNDERWOOD.

REV. SAMUEL GOODALE

Venerated as "Father of the Psi Upsilon Fraternity."

DELTA UPSILON

EVERY organization that has a life worth the living has a principle worth the telling. The Delta Upsilon Fraternity assumes to be such an organization, and its vital purpose, stated briefly, is to secure the union of college men of kindred tastes for the promotion of social, intellectual and moral culture on an open basis.

In the main its aims differ little, perhaps, from those apparently professed by the secret college fraternities. It is in its principle of conduct toward outsiders that its position is unique. On this line it can be said without Phariseism the fraternity has no rival. For while other fraternities differ from each other in achievements, in closeness of organization, in degree of extension, Delta Upsilon differs from the rest in a fundamental idea expressly declared in its constitution.

The Delta Upsilon Fraternity is an open, non-secret organization. By these words, open and non-secret, is not meant that the proceedings of its chapters are necessarily to be published in the college papers. Nor does it mean that its meetings are open to all, with or without invitation. On the contrary, it means first of all, that the fraternity constitution is open to such persons as care to read it. It means that no man joins the fraternity knowing nothing of what the final pledge requires. It means that that pledge puts on the initiate no obligation to keep from any one information regarding the chapter or fraternity that he may wish to impart.

The fraternity was founded in 1834 at Williams College. Its history has been one of constant growth. The Delta Upsilon Fraternity to-day numbers over seven thousand members. It has active chapters in thirty-one colleges, as follows: Williams, Union, Hamilton, Amherst, Adelbert, Colby, Rochester, Middlebury, Bowdoin, Rutgers, Brown, Colgate, New York, Cornell, Marietta, Syracuse, Michigan, Northwestern, Harvard, Wisconsin, Lafayette, Columbia, Lehigh, Tufts, De Pauw, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Technology, Swarthmore, Stanford, California.

These chapters have an average of twenty-four under-graduate members each. Eighteen of these chapters own their own chapter houses, and four are planning to build this summer. There are fifteen alumni clubs of the fraternity located in New York, N. Y.; Chicago, Ill.; Boston, Mass.; Rochester, N. Y.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Providence, R. I.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Detroit, Mich.; Columbus, Ohio; Cleveland, Ohio; Philadelphia, Pa.; Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis.

The fraternity numbers among its sons many who have gained distinction in various fields in this and other lands, among them being President James A. Garfield, Secretaries of War Redfield Proctor and Daniel S. Lamont, Attorney General W. H. H. Miller, Stephen J. Field, Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; Charles C. Nott, Judge of the United States Court of Claims; Charles G. Dawes, Comptroller of the Currency; Elijah B. Sherman, L. L. D., Master in Chancery of the Circuit Court of the United States at Chicago; and Judges Hamilton, of Minnesota; Borden, of Texas; Boise, of Oregon, and Tripp, of South Dakota.

Delta Upsilon has a long list of United States senators and members of congress, among whom may be mentioned the venerable Senator Justin S. Morrill, of Vermont; Congressmen Blair, of Michigan; Payne and Smith, of New York; Sperry, of Connecticut; Stone, of Pennsylvania, and Rockwell, of Maine. Also governors and ex-governors such as Knapp, of Alaska; Powers, of Maine; Voorhees, of New Jersey, and Stearns, of Florida.

Among her college presidents are David Starr Jordan, of Leland-Stanford University; E. Benjamin Andrews, of Brown University; Beniah L. Whitman, of Columbian University; Chancellor Snow, of Kansas University; Yatobe, of the University of Japan; Atherton, of the Pennsylvania State College, and Washburn of Roberts College, Constantinople. And among its doctors of divinity Reverends Thomas Armitage, W. H. P. Faunce, Arthur T. Pierson, Nehemiah Boynton, B. Fay Mills, William Elliott Griffis, Samuel E. Herrick, Hiram C. Hayden, D. D. Mac Laurin, and Charles S. Vedder.

Among her scholars and literateurs are Rossiter Johnson, the editor of Appleton's Encyclopedia; Albert Barnes, the celebrated commentator, and a host of authors and writers, among them being Josiah Strong, author of "Our Country;" William Swinton, Henry Randall Waite, Homer Greene, W. F. Bradbury, E. A. Bowser, L. L. D.; J. P. Taylor, L. L. D., and Berden P. Brown.

BETA THETA PI

BETA THETA PI Was the first so-called "Western" fraternity to be established. It was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1839, John Riley Knox being the man who first suggested its organization and one of the leading spirits in its affairs from that date until his death, which occurred in January, 1898.

The fraternity adopted from the start a very active and aggressive policy, and in addition to the chapters established by itself it greatly added to its hold upon the East by its union in 1879 with Alpha Sigma Chi and in 1889 with the Mystical Seven. The former fraternity was founded at Rutgers College in 1883, and the latter at Wesleyan University in 1837. They both had good chapter rolls, and the alumni of both were admitted into full fellowship in the Beta Theta Pi.

Although aggressive and liberal in its policy of extension, Beta Theta Pi has always held high its standard of membership, and has an especially strong roster of active chapters.

The government of the fraternity, during the first eight years of its existence, was in the hands of the Alpha Chapter, but after that time a convention of the general fraternity assumed its government. During the recess of this convention the affairs of the fraternity were administered by the presiding chapter, each chapter being successively termed the presiding chapter, in the order of establishment. This system of government continued practically unaltered until 1879, when a new constitution was adopted providing for a board of nine directors, three retiring each year. The members of this board were usually so chosen that six of them resided in the same vicinity.

In 1898 a revised constitution was adopted reducing the board of trustees to six, establishing the office of president, making the general officers members of the board, and greatly centralizing the doing of business.

Five catalogues have been issued and a song book published at six different times. "Beta Theta Pi," the official organ of the fraternity, was founded in 1872, and has since enjoyed a continuous and prosperous existence.

The badge is an eight-sided shield, the sides of which curve inward. The shield is black enamel, displaying the Greek characters Beta Theta Pi, above which is a wreath encircling a diamond. At the top of the badge are three stars in gold. At the bottom, and beneath the name of the fraternity, are four Greek letters,

The colors are light pink and light blue. Its flower is the rose, each chapter choosing a separate variety.

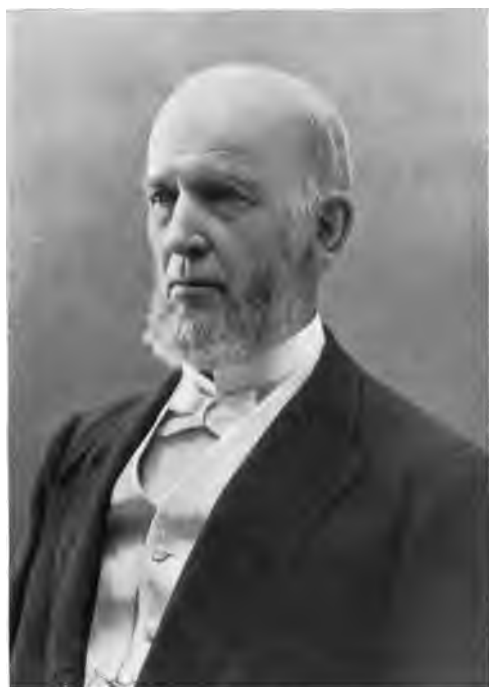

Alumni Associations are at Akron, O.; Boston; Charleston, W. Va.; Chicago; Cincinnati; Cleveland; Columbus, O.; Denver; Hamilton, O.; Kansas City; Milwaukee; Minneapolis; Nashville, Tenn.; New York; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; Providence, R. I.; St. Louis; San Francisco; Springfield, O.; Washington, D. C.; Wheeling, W. Va.

Active chapters are in existence at the following universities and colleges: Harvard, Brown, Boston University, Maine, Amherst, Dartmouth, Wesleyan, Yale, Rutgers, Cornell, Stevens, St. Lawrence, Colgate, Union, Columbia, Syracuse, Dickinson, Johns Hopkins, University of Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania State College, Lehigh, Hampden-Sidney, North Carolina, Virginia, Davidson, Centre, Cumberland, Mississippi, Vanderbilt, Texas, Miami, University of Cincinnati, Western Reserve, Ohio, Washington-Jefferson, Ohio Wesleyan, Bethany, Wittenberg, Denison, Wooster, Kenyon, Ohio State, De Pauw, Indiana, Wabash, Hanover, Michigan, Knox, Beloit, University of Iowa, Chicago, Iowa Wesleyan, Wisconsin, Northwestern, Minnesota, Westminster, Kansas, Denver, Nebraska, Missouri, California, and Leland Stanford Jr,

The officers of the Chicago Alumni Chapter are: President, Hon. Peter S. Grosscup; secretary, Robert Dunn,

The present general officers of the fraternity are: President, W. A. Hamilton, Chicago; general secretary, J. Cal Hanna, Columbus, O.; general treasurer, Charles L. Thornburg, South Bethlehem, Pa.

CHI PSI

THE Chi Psi Fraternity was founded at Union College, the mother of many of the oldest fraternities, in the Spring of 1841. The original members were Major-General James C. Duane, chief of engineers, U. S. A.; Judge Patrick U. Major, Philip Spencer, Col. Alexander P. Berthond, John Brush, Jr., Dr. Jacob A. Farrell, Robert H. McFadden, Samuel T. Taber, Hon. Wm. F. Terhune and Hon. James L. Witherspoon.

The fraternity immediately extended itself, choosing only those institutions whose soil was most fertile for college fraternities, as they exist. The wisdom of its choice manifests itself in the fact that the early chapters and the recent ones are all equally prosperous. Conservative extension in the Forties was followed by the same care in the succeeding decades, and is now the established policy of the fraternity. As the first Eastern fraternity to "go west," being the pioneer society at the Universities of Michigan and Minnesota, and as the only Eastern fraternity with a strongly developed Southern wing, Chi Psi pre-eminently holds a national character.

Chi Psi has now a total membership of 3,750, and 18 active chapters. It owns at present eight beautiful homes, and in the near future anticipates possessing half a dozen more. The chapter house at Cornell University is acknowledged by all to be the finest Greek letter fraternity house in this country, representing an original cost of between $300,000 and $400,000. In the middle-west Chi Psi is the only fraternity owning homes at the Universities of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. During the World's Fair, it was the only college society which maintained a club house in Chicago.

Chi Psi fosters more of a secret character than most of the fraternities, withdrawing itself from rather than pushing itself before the public eye. The bond among its members is very close, changing in no degree after college life, except to be drawn the tighter. Evidences of this are seen in the active alumni associations, which vie in loyalty with the neighboring college chapters. There exist now some twenty live alumni associations, which meet, not only in the yearly banquet, but in numerous informal dinners.

The close bond in the fraternity was greatly strengthened almost at its inception by the death of Philip Spencer, one of the original members. He was a son of a cabinet officer and a member of a family of high social position. Leaving college, he entered the navy, and while serving as a midshipman on the U. S. Brig of War Somers, was hung at the yard arm for alleged mutiny. The charge was groundless and has been proven so by many writers, such as Senator Benton in his "Thirty Years' View," James Fenimore Cooper and Gail Hamilton. For years after this occurrence, the Chi Psis were dubbed "Pirates" by their rivals in reference to the sad fate of Philip Spencer. But they defended him to a man and made him as St. Philip, the Patron Saint of the fraternity.

Chi Psi has published regularly catalogues and song books, has its waltz and two-step, and issues a quarterly, the Purple and Gold, named from the fraternity colors. This magazine, now in its fifteenth year, has a circulation of over one-third of the total membership.

The Badge is a jeweled monogram, composed of the Greek letter "Chi" laid upon the Greek letter "Psi."

The chapters are termed Alphas.

The fraternity has no honorary members, and does not allow a member to divide his allegiance with any other college society.

A few of its members are: Chief Justice Fuller, of the U. S. Supreme Court; Speaker Thomas B. Reed, of the House of Representatives; President Thomas W. Palmer, of the World's Columbian Exposition; Ex-Postmaster General Don M. Dickinson; Ex-Secretary of Agriculture J. Stirling Morton; Elbridge T. Gerry and Wm. Astor (now deceased), of New York City; Judge Wm. L. Putman, U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and Judges Chas. C. Dwight and Francis M. Scott, of the N. Y. Supreme Court.

List of active Alphas of Chi Psi: Union College, Williams College, Middlebury College, Wesleyan University, Hamilton College, University of Michigan, Furman University, Amherst College, Cornell University, Wofford College, University of Minnesota, University of Wisconsin, Rutgers College, Stevens Institute of Technology, University of Georgia, Lehigh University, Leland Stanford University, University of California.

The officers of the Chicago alumni association of Chi Psi for the year 1898 are: President, Prof. James H. Norton; vice-president, Charles L. Billings; secretary and treasurer, John P. Montross.

Executive committee: V. T. Mashek, Richard S. Lyon, Wilfred R. Morgan.

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON

AS with a man or a nation, so with a fraternity. In the short space allotted to this sketch, it is not the whole story of Delta Kappa Epsilon, not even the title of all the chapters in its chronicles that will be mentioned. A little over half a century ago our fraternity was founded. It had its beginning at Yale in 1844, and during the interval of fifty-four years it has grown to an organization that picks the best men from thirty-five of the leading colleges and universities of the United States. The oldest of them cannot yet be an old man, and yet the list is crowded with names the country knows and honors. During this time the conditions of student association have so changed that the glory of those early days, of which the witnesses yet survive, seems like prehistoric fable. In the imagination of each succeeding class the sun will be always shining on that log cabin in the Ohio forest, and the ivy will be ever thick and green about the temple at Yale, to which Mecca so many pilgrimages have been made. To these and other memories of the heroic age of Delta Kappa Epsilon, her every triumph adds new pledges that they shall be perpetual.

The details of the founding of our parent chapter are too well known to be repeated here. From the beginning the Dekes realized that they were founding a fraternity, not establishing a study hall.

The policy was clear, to make head against rivals in the East, and then surpass them in the South and West. Scarcely two years had elapsed before Bowdoin and Colby, Princeton and Amherst were occupied by aggressive chapters, and our first national convention called to meet at Yale at Christmas, 1846. The whole field of fraternity possibilities was gone over, and it was determined to occupy at once the leading southern colleges.

Nor was this all. In eight years Delta Kappa Epsilon had become thoroughly national. The impetus given by the early Yale classes seemed to assure prosperity for all time to come. For more than eight years longer her sky was to remain unclouded, and her grip to continue to be the open sesame, that, from Maine to Mississippi, opened to the visiting student the choicest circles of every great college in the land. Petitions for charters showered on every convention, and from the crowd of applicants Delta Kappa Epsilon added new chapters to her galaxy.

Before 1861, she had issued three catalogues—as creditable a series of similar publications as was then in existence—and her first song, in the contents of which Psi U was her only rival. The Quarterly was yet twenty years off, but in 1847 had been commenced the systematic gathering of material for a Delta Kappa Epsilon magazine, the first number of which was issued in 1861.

The first of her conventions were duly organized bodies of delegates rather than the informal gatherings frequently called such by other Greeks; and the Washington dinner of 1855 was the first national public dinner of a Greek letter fraternity.

At Kenyon, our Lambda's log cabin, Built in 1854, was the first Greek letter fraternity chapter hall, and at Miami and Yale substantial brick lodges were then building.

The last few years had been especially propitious ones; so that every great college in the land, save Princeton, was Delta Kappa Epsilon territory.

The convention held at New York in 1860 had been the most noteworthy ever assembled. And in January, 1861, had been published the grandest of all fraternify music, the Delta Kappa Epsilon March. But at the first breaking out of hostilities in 1861, the Southern Dekes rushed into Confederate service, and college after college closed as its students joined the ranks; while at the North, the chapters were depleted by enlistment, and on both sides Delta Kappa Epsilon alumni hastened into camp. From first to last D. K. E. was at the front on both sides. When the first shot was fired on Sumter, the Delta boys were already in Confederate uniform, and at its first echo the members of every chapter hastened to the field. At Great Bethel, the first important engagement of the war, Theodore Winthrop, of Phi, led the advance of the Union force, and the Dekes, of Beta, were among the Confederates whose fire left him dead on the field. At Shiloh and Gettysburg, D. K. E. met D. K. E. in combat; and when, six years after at Appomattox, the last engagement was fought, it was a Delta Kappa Epsilon Confederate colonel, of Zeta, who was then brought to bay after more than four years of continuous service.

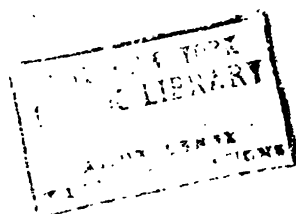

And so, in 1865, when the war was over, Delta Kappa Epsilon found herself bereaved indeed. Not a single Southern chapter remained active, and at our Northern colleges there was no longer the attendance of Southern students that had so largely contributed to D. K. E. strength. For years the fraternity struggled to repair its losses.

So much for the first twenty-five years of Delta Kappa Epsilon's history.

HENRY V. FREEMAN

Delta Kappa Epsilon — Phi — Yale — '69 — Justice Appellate Court First District of Illinois, Appellate Court —
Residence, 5760 Woodlawn Avenue.

With 1869 commenced a new epoch of steady development that has continued to the present.

Fifty-four years have passed since the organization of this Greek letter society. The history of those years is a chapter roll embracing the following thirty-five representative institutions of learning in this country.

Yale, Bowdoin, Colby, Amherst, Nashville, University of Alabama, Brown, University of Mississippi, University of North Carolina, University of Virginia, Miami, Kenyon, Dartmouth, Central University of Kentucky, Middlebury, University of Michigan, Williams, Lafayette, Hamilton, Colgate, College of the City of New York, University of Rochester, Rutgers, DePauw, Wesleyan, Rensselaer Polytechnic, Adelbert, Cornell, University of Chicago, Syracuse, Columbia, University of California, Trinity, University of Minnesota, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

There are twenty-three alumni associations, with a membership of more than ten thousand names. The following is a list of the alumni associations:

New York City, Association of New England, The Northwestern Association, Detroit, Association of the Pacific Coast, Washington, Rhode Island, Buffalo, Kentucky, Cleveland, Club of the Northwest, Eastern New York Association, Rochester, Connecticut, Mississippi Valley Alumni Association, Chattanooga Southern Association, Western Michigan Association, Harvard Association, Association of Central New York, Indiana, Mountain Association, Western Massachusetts Association, Wisconsin, Association of Central Tennessee.

Northwestern Association, of Chicago, claims to be the best and most thoroughly organized college fraternity alumni association in the West. This group of college men held its first meeting and banquet at the Tremont House, of this city, June 24, 1881. Some sixty loyal Dekes were present, including twelve of the under-graduates from the then active and prosperous chapter of the old Chicago University. Gen. Horace H. Thomas, Alpha Alpha (Middlebury), '57, was chosen for the first president.

In the early '60s there were several Delta Kappa Epsilons (then called Delta Kaps) in the old Green Mountain Chapter, who came West after graduation and made their homes in Chicago. College memories and friendships formed during their under-graduate days became an important element in the establishment of the association. About a decade later, Chicago University graduated a similar coterie of loyal brother Dekes.

These two groups were naturally drawn toward each other by fraternal ties, and their enthusiasm, for the fraternity resulted in the origin of the association. These two factors, assisted materially by the many resident Dekes of other chapters, have made the Northwestern Association a most prosperous organization of fraternity men. The records now show one hundred and fifty active members representing twenty-seven of the thirty-five active chapters.

The cultivation of sociability and good fellowship, and the promotion of Delta Kappa Epsilon interests in the West, has been the aim of the association. During the first eight years of its existence, banquets were held only annually. At a meeting held January 3, 1889, a re-organization was effected. Since that time four informal bi-monthly dinners have been given each year, in addition to the "annual," which is more formal and still prevails. Under this new system the membership has steadily increased, and during the past eight years over forty informal dinners and banquets have been given, with a total attendance of over two thousand men.

Since the re-organization, the association has been represented at every D. K. E. convention by one or more delegates, duly elected and accredited. Two conventions have been held under its auspices in this city, one in October, 1887, and one in November, 1897. Five of the members were charter members of their chapters in the '50s, but time has dealt kindly with them, and their enthusiasm is equal to that of any of the younger men.

Much could be written of those who have worshiped at the shrine of the fraternity and there paid their vows. In the record of the past half century there are names which have been most influential in directing state and national legislation; names which have adorned the science of jurisprudence and theology and medicine, and which will live in the literature of the professions; names of scientists and professors and authors who have largely influenced public opinion upon measures of public policy; names of soldiers who rendered the full measure of their devotion on fields of battle, while the pages of the fraternity are resplendent with the glory of her sons in the mighty struggle to preserve the Union. A society thus animated by a lofty purpose and with a perpetual succession may well review her annals and mark the stages of growth to the meridian of a century, and may well invite public judgment to the spirit and object of her existence.

ZETA PSI

THE Zeta Psi Fraternity was founded in 1847 at the University of the City of New York, by John B. Yates Somers, John M. Skillman, and William Henry Dayton, of the Class of 1849. Intimately associated with them was Rev. Wm. Henry Carter, D. D., who is still living. Through the energy of its founders and its new members, chapters were rapidly organized, sixteen chapters being established during the following decade in the leading Eastern colleges. A chapter was also established at the University of Michigan, which continued for many years to be the only chapter in the West.

The Phi Chapter, at the University of New York, has had a successful career since it was founded in 1847, except for a brief period (1879 to 1881) during the financial difficulties of the university. The Zeta, established at Williams College in 1848, existed in spite of the anti-secret society regulations of the college for seven years. It was re-established in 1881, and is now one of the most flourishing chapters. The Delta (Rutgers College, 1848) has enjoyed an uninterrupted and most successful existence to the present day. The Omicron (Princeton, 1850) maintained an unequal struggle against the opposition of the faculty for over thirty years. Not being permitted to have a lodge, it was compelled to initiate its members at the Delta and Sigma chapters. The Sigma (University of Pennsylvania, 1850) has maintained its most prosperous existence without a break. The Chi was established at Colby University, Maine, in 1850. The Epsilon, at Brown University, and the Rho, at Harvard, were established in 1852. The Epsilon has always been and is today one of the best chapters. The Rho, after a brilliant existence of six years, succumbed to the opposition of the faculty. It was re-established in 1881. The Psi (Dartmouth, 1853) flourished until the outbreak of the rebellion. An attempt was made to revive the chapter in 1871, but the restrictions of the college regulations prevented this. The Kappa (Tufts College, Mass., 1855) has existed without interruptions. The Theta (Union, 1856), after a successful existence of over ten years, declined with the decline of the college. Its charter was taken away in 1871. The Tau (Lafayette College, 1857) is another chapter whose prosperity has not been interrupted since it was established. The Upsilon (University of North Carolina, 1858) successfully maintained itself through the years of the rebellion and is highly prosperous today. The Xi (University of Michigan, 1858) was the pioneer chapter in the West. It is today one of the best chapters.

No other chapters were established until 1864, when a number of graduate members residing in Chicago received a charter for the Omega Chapter at the old Chicago University. It was very successful for many years. Anticipating the closing of the old university, the chapter was discontinued in 1883. Steps are now being taken to re-establish the chapter at the new university. The Pi (Rensselaer Polytechnic, Troy, 1865) had a most successful career until the decline of this college called for the withdrawal of the charter in 1890. The Lambda (Bowdoin) and the Beta (University of Virginia) were established in 1868, and still flourish. The Psi (Cornell) has been ever since its establishment one of the leading chapters. The Iota Chapter was established at the University of California in 1870, and was for many years the only college fraternity on the Pacific Coast. The charter of the Gamma Chapter (University of Syracuse, 1875) was withdrawn after a few years had shown that this college was not a desirable place for a chapter.

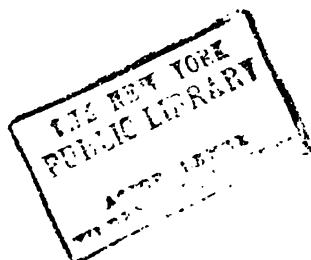

A most decided and unprecedented innovation in fraternity affairs was the establishment of the Theta Xi Chapter at the University of Toronto in 1879. This was followed by the Alpha Psi Chapter at McGill College, Montreal, in 1883. These chapters have reflected the greatest credit on the fraternity. They are the only chapters of any fraternity in Canada.

In 1879 the Alpha Chapter was established at Columbia University. In 1885 the Nu Chapter, at the Case School of Applied Sciences at Cleveland, Ohio. In 1889 the Eta Chapter was established at Yale. Although the fraternity system at Yale is peculiar to that college, and in many respects differs from the character of Zeta Psi, the Eta Chapter has been most successful. The last in the galaxy of chapters is the Mu, established in 1891 at the Leland Stanford, Jr., University, California. It has been a success from the start.

umet Avenue.

The chief characteristic of the Zeta Psi is its secrecy and the close companionship of its members. It maintains a greater degree of secrecy about its affairs than almost any other college fraternity. For many years it has been very conservative in granting new charters, having decided to establish chapters only in the best universities. The number of active members allowed in a chapter at any one time is limited, its aim being to create intimate friendships.

The Zeta Psi Club in New York City was established by graduate members in 1883. It has a most commodious club house at 148 West 34th street. There are alumni associations in New York, Chicago, Boston, Washington, San Francisco, St. Louis, Cleveland and other cities.

Many of the chapters maintain chapter houses for its active members, with council hall and rooms for its secret work. The chapter house at Cornell is admitted to be one of the finest, if not the finest, in the United States.

The fraternity is governed by its Grand Chapter, consisting of delegates from the active chapters, and the members who have attained its highest degree. Its meetings are held annually.

The fraternity has issued complete catalogues in 1859, 1867 and 1883, and supplements in 1874 and 1889. A biographical catalogue is now being published. At the semi-centennial in 1897, it issued one of the finest song books ever published by any fraternity. A magazine, devoted to the fraternity, was first published in 1882 as a monthly, and subsequently changed to a quarterly. Its publication was suspended in 1886.

The Badge is a monogram of the two Greek letters "Zeta" and "Psi." the "Zeta" being imposed upon the "Psi." The "Zeta" is set with twenty-one stones.

The color of the fraternity is white; each chapter having a distinctive color.

Active chapters are at: University of New York, Williams College, Rutgers College, University of Pennsylvania, Colby University, Brown University, Tufts College, Lafayette College, University of North Carolina, University of Michigan, Bowdoin College, University of Virginia, Cornell University, University of California, University of Toronto, Columbia University, McGill College, Case School of Applied Science, Yale College, Leland Stanford, Jr., University.

DELTA PSI

DELTA PSI was established at Columbia College, January, 1847. Charles A. Budd and John H. Anton were its founders. A chapter was founded at New York University almost simultaneously with Alpha Chapter at Columbia, although it was regarded more as a branch of the Columbia Chapter than as a separate institution.

Fifteen chapters were established at various institutions during the first ten years of the fraternity's existence, several of these being established in the South, but becoming inactive during the war. At the present time active chapters are in existence at the following colleges: Columbia, University of Rochester, Williams, University of Pennsylvania, University of Mississippi, University of Virginia, Yale Sheffield Scientific, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

All of these chapters own houses and are in good condition, holding the standard of membership high.

The graduate members of the fraternity have formed a social club, known as St. Anthony Club, in New York, and alumni associations in Philadelphia and Boston.

Catalogues of the fraternity have been published in 1876 and 1898. The last book was a very handsome volume, bound in light blue, the color of the fraternity.

The badge is a St. Anthony's cross with the sides curving inward, upon which is a shield with the Greek letters Delta Psi.

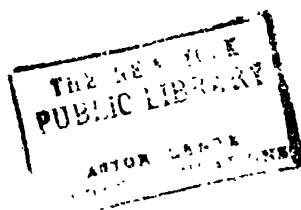

The fraternity has no honorary members.

The total membership of the fraternity is about 2,500.

THETA DELTA CHI

THE Theta Delta Chi Fraternity was founded at Union College in 1848. The founders were, Akin, Beach, Brown, Green, Hyslop and Wile, class of 1849. Hon. Allen C. Beach, Ex-Lieutenant Governor of New York, and General William S. Hillyer of General Grant's Staff were Theta Deltas from same class. For twenty years the Alpha Chapter governed the Fraternity, granting charters and exercising the usual functions of the parent chapter.

The original badge was a shield differing but slightly from the present official badge seen in accompanying cut. Badges are now worn in three sizes.

The Fraternity colors are black, white and blue.

The Theta Delta Chi flag consists of a field divided vertically into black, white and blue sections, black next the staff with letters Theta Delta Chi respectively in center of each section.

The Convention of 1868 changed the governing power from the Alpha chapter to a body called "The Grand Lodge," composed of one graduate and two active members, to be elected each year in convention assembled. This body acts under a constitution and such rulings as may be noted in convention or by charges. The fraternity has published four catalogues, the last in 1895 shows 2968 living and 407 deceased members, with a geographical distribution covering almost the entire globe.

Two song books have been published.

The official organ is "The Shield," edited and published by Clay W. Holmes, Elmira, N. Y. It was founded in 1869, revised in 1884. It is published quarterly in the interests of the fraternity. Mr. Holmes has had the magazine since 1889 and during that time it has held its place in the front rank of Fraternity publications.

Theta Delta Chi is essentially an eastern organization. Since 1889, however, charges have been established in Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Universities, an eminently satisfactory departure even for this conservative Fraternity.

Theta Delta Chi celebrated its Semi-Centennial in New York City in February 1898. The occasion was a notable one. Hotel Windsor was crowded with Theta Delts. Many graduate members, representing every profession and business in which college men are wont to engage, were in attendance. Notable among these were Abel Beach and Andrew H. Green, the two surviving founders. A host of under-graduates were present, several charges attending in a body. What Theta Delta Chi is and what it has accomplished were faithfully portrayed in this celebration. Fraternity enthusiasm was at high pitch during the three days's session, reaching its culmination on the last day when the following programme was given:

Oration, Elmer H. Capen, D. D., Pres. Tufts College. Poem, Rev. Cameron Mann. History—First Period, Col. William L. Stone; Second Period, Prof. Duncan C. Lee.

Three hundred plates were laid for the banquet, with Mahlon N. Gilbert D. D., Bishop of Minnesota, as Master of the Feast. Clay W. Holmes, editor of "The Shield," was the moving spirit of the celebration and Chairman of Semi-Centennial Committee.

The Central Graduate Association was formed in 1890. Among its members are these well-known Chicagoans: Hon. John M. Clark; George P. Upton, The Tribune; Col. P. D. Vroom, U. S. A.; Robert Forsythe, Illinois Steel Co.; William A. Douglas, Dun & Co.; B. J. Wertheimer, Lawyer; W. T. Chandler, Franklin McVeagh & Co.; Dr. Truman W. Miller; Prof. Charles W. French, Hyde Park High School; Charles Raymond, Evanston.

Among Theta Delts prominent in public life, we mention Hon. John Hay, Ambassador to England; Hon. John W. Griggs, Attorney-General U. S.; Hon. W. W. Thomas, Minister to Sweden; Hon. William D. Bloxham, Governor of Florida; Hon. Daniel N. Lockwood, M. C.; Col. William Lamb, Virginia; J. H. D. Wingfield, D. D., L. L. D., Bishop of California; Hon. Thomas Smith, Chief Justice New Mexico; Hon. Nathan T. Dixon, U. S. Senator R. I.; Hon. H. C. Brockmeyer, Ex-Governor Missouri; Alexander L. Holby, C. E.; Dr. George H. Bridgman, Minister to Bolivia; Hon. Henry J. Spooner, M. C. R. I.; John Brougham, Actor and Dramatist; Hon. F. C. Stevens, M. C. Minn.; Hon. James Lawrence, Cleveland; Hon. H. Melville Hanna, Cleveland; Gen. Winsor B. French, Elmer H. Capen, D. D., Presi-

PHI GAMMA DELTA

THIS fraternity was founded at Jefferson College, Cannonsburg, Pa., in May, 1848. The charter members were John C. McCarthy, '48; James Elliott, '48; D. W. Crofts, '48; S. B. Wilson, '48; E. B. Gregg, '48, and Naaman Fletcher, '49, to which number was added in a few days the name of one of Chicago's most respected and prominent attorneys, Benjamin Ray, '49.

As many of the students of Jefferson College were from the Southern States, the first efforts at extension were very naturally in that direction. The growth of the fraternity has been gradual since its establishment, and it has ever maintained that conservatism in the choice of colleges into which it should enter, that has given it the present strength and standing in fraternity circles. The roster of its chapter roll will be seen on another page.

The chapter first established at Jefferson maintained a strong and prominent position in college circles as long as the college existed. When it was united with Washington College the chapters in each institution also consolidated, and the resulting chapter was called the Alpha Chapter, and the Beta letter was given to another college.

The war was fatal to the splendid prospects of many a promising young man, and it was not less so in the matter of promising chapters of many college fraternities. The ante bellum career of many of our Southern chapters is even yet an enviable record.

The days of the cruel war being over, a new plan of extension was adopted, and the infusion of Northern blood attempted. While the fraternity was not strictly speaking a Southern organization, yet the circumstances and environment surrounding its infant days had made it that perforce of training, and as said above, its early extension was Southward. The first effort to locate a chapter with strictly Northern propensities, was made at DePauw University, in the establishment of Lambda Chapter. This new era in the fraternity life proved to be a most propitious one, for the history of the chapter has been almost an uninterruptedly creditable one, since the day of its founding. Its roster contains many names of prominence in circles of intelligence.

In several states there is a state organization of the chapters, holding meetings at least once annually. Such exist in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois, Virginia, and New York and vicinity. These are well calculated to both keep up an inter-fraternity spirit, and as well to bring the members of the different chapters into closer relations and to establish more uniform ideas as to the general conduct of chapter life.

Graduate associations exist at New York City, Columbus, Ohio; Kansas City, Spokane, Washington, Chicago, Chattanooga, Williamsport, Penn.; Dayton, Ohio; Baltimore, San Francisco; Cleveland, Ohio; Pittsburgh, Richmond and Roanoke, Va.

The convention meets annually in the fall, and the state organizations in New England, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana hold district meetings for social rather than business purposes in the spring.

The Alpha chapter acted as the executive body until 1868. The idea of a grand chapter was then conceived and located in New York City, where it has since remained. Its members are elected annually and are chosen from the alumni residing in the vicinity of the city.

The latest catalogue of the fraternity was published at New York in 1888. Previous to this edition catalogues were issued in 1878, 1870, 1865 and 1864. A new catalogue will be published in 1898, which has been some years in preparation and promises to be very complete.

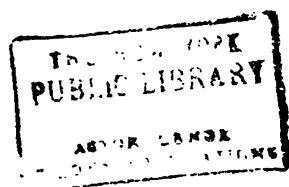

The last song book was issued in 1886, by the composer, Walter C. Stier. Another song book is about to be published, compiled by the same author.

The journal of the fraternity was first issued as a monthly in 1879, under the auspices of the Ohio Wesleyan chapter, and was called Phi Gamma Delta. It was a quarto in form. In 1884 it was removed to Greencastle, Ind., and reduced in size to an 8 vo. Here it remained for two years, when in 1886 it was removed to New York, and the name was changed to the Phi Gamma Delta Quarterly. In the spring of 1889, its publication was placed under the direction of the chapter at Meadville, Pa., and in 1890 in the hands of graduates, with Fred C. Howe as editor-in-chief, by whom it has since been most creditably and ably conducted. Its present place of publication is Cleveland, Ohio.

The Badge of the fraternity is a diamond having a black field. It is about an inch in length, displaying the Greek letters "Phi Gamma Delta," above which is a single white star, and below are the Greek letters "Alpha Omega Mu Eta." The fraternity color is royal purple, and the flower is the heliotrope. The flag is pennant-shaped, bearing the Greek letters "Phi Gamma Delta" across the face of the flag, upon a white background. In the upper left-hand corner is a purple square, containing a single white star.

Among the prominent members of the fraternity might be mentioned seven United States senators, twenty-seven congressmen, several foreign ministers, several governors, twelve college presidents and a large number of college professors of note in various lines; no less than ten prominent literateurs acknowledge allegiance to Phi Gamma Delta: several of her members are prominent in journalistic fields. All these, let it be noted, are regularly initiated, and in no case honorary members.

The chapter roll is as follows: Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Amherst, Yale, Trinity, College City New York, Columbia, University City of New York, Colgate, Cornell, Union, University of Pennsylvania, Lafayette, Lehigh, Bucknell, Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania State, Johns-Hopkins, University of North Carolina, University of Virginia, Roanoke, Hampden-Sidney, Washington and Lee, Richmond, Washington and Jefferson, Allegheny, Wittenberg, Ohio Wesleyan, Denison, Ohio State, Wooster, Indiana, DePauw, Hanover, Wabash, University of Tennessee, Bethel, Illinois Wesleyan, Knox, University of Illinois, University of Minnesota, University of Wisconsin, University of Kansas, William Jewell, University of California, Leland Stanford Jr,

The Chicago alumni association of Phi Gamma Delta is known to the fraternity as Kappa Graduate Chapter. It was organized in 1890, since which time it has been a most active organization. For its first two years it rented capacious apartments in one of the large office buildings, which were used as general headquarters. This was abandoned, however, shortly before the World's Fair, and a three-story apartment building on 61st street, near Jackson Park, was leased. This became the Phi Gamma Delta headquarters during the World's Fair. During those memorable six months Kappa Graduate Chapter entertained their visiting brothers with several banquets given within the Fair Grounds.

In 1894 the idea of a noon-day dining room was conceived. This was maintained for two years on the second floor of the Saratoga Hotel, when the hotel was rebuilt. Since that time regular monthly dinners have been held, and banquets have been enjoyed quarterly. Some steps have been taken towards maintaining regular club rooms on a more elaborate scale, but this scheme at present is only developing out of the possibility into the probability.

The object of Kappa Graduate Chapter is to unite for social relationship, and make for themselves a body of friends that will endure, and to further lend a potent and useful influence upon the active chapters of the fraternity.

By holding to their fraternity affiliations, the old must always remain young, and the little lozenge badge bears a significance that was prominent when in college days they sang :

“Phi Gamma Delta, still to thee
Our hearts we'll turn eternally.”

PHI DELTA THETA

THE Phi Delta Theta Fraternity was founded December 26, 1848, at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. The founders were six students, two in each of the three upper classes, viz.: Robert Morrison, '49; John McMillan Wilson, '49; Robert Thompson Drake, '50; John Wolfe Lindley, '50; Ardivan Walker Rodgers, '51; Andrew Watts Rogers, '51. Of these, Morrison, Lindley and Rogers are yet living. Morrison and Wilson were joint authors of "The Bond of the Phi Delta Theta," which is the fundamental law of the fraternity.

Phi Delta Theta now has sixty-five chapters in leading institutions, from Maine to California and from Michigan to Texas, making the fraternity national in extent. Since 1883, Phi Delta Theta has had a larger number of active college chapters than any other fraternity. Phi Delta Theta is established in twenty state universities. No other fraternity is represented in so many. In addition, five other institutions having Phi Delta Theta chapters receive state or federal support, or both. During the last decade few additions to the chapter roll have been accepted, and the policy of the fraternity has been in the direction of rendering old chapters more secure in their surroundings and increasing their property interests. A large number of chapters live in chapter houses, and in many cases own them, while other chapters are acquiring building funds.

The Illinois Alpha Chapter was established at Northwestern University, Evanston, in 1859, and was reorganized in 1887. The Illinois Beta Chapter was established at the University of Chicago in 1865, and was reorganized in 1897.

The membership of the fraternity is 9,634. The number of living members of Phi Delta Theta is larger than that of any other college fraternity, with two exceptions, being but slightly exceeded by them.

The first alumni chapter was established in 1876, and now there are thirty-six such chapters in various cities, a larger number than any other fraternity has. The Chicago alumni chapter was established in 1881; Alumni chapters have the privilege of being represented in the national convention, which meets bi-ennially, but not of making initiations. The convention of 1889 established Alumni Day, which is celebrated on the fifteenth day of March, the birthday of Rev. Robert Morrison, D. D., who was one of the founders. On that day every year, it is customary for each alumni chapter to have a social and business meeting, a dinner and a discussion of some topic of fraternity interest chosen by the general council. The members of college chapters wear the colors and celebrate the occasion with ritualistic exercises, to which all resident alumni are invited. Phi Delta Theta was the first fraternity to establish such a custom.

In 1881 the fraternity was incorporated under the laws of Ohio.

Six editions of the fraternity catalogue have been issued, in 1860, 1870, 1872, 1878, 1883 and 1894, the last being a handsome royal octavo volume of 475 pages. Five editions of the fraternity song book have been issued, in 1874, 1876, 1882, 1886 and 1895, the last containing eighty-seven songs, many of which have been set to original music. Eight or ten pieces of sheet music inscribed to Phi Delta Theta have been published. Two editions of the fraternity manual, which contains a succinct history of Phi Delta Theta, have been issued in 1886 and 1897. The fraternity magazine, called "The Scroll of Phi Delta Theta," was first issued in 1875. It is a bi-monthly, liberally illustrated, the numbers averaging over 125 pages each. The "Palladium," a bi-monthly bulletin devoted to the private affairs of the fraternity, was established in 1894.

The badge, consisting of a shield, with a scroll bearing the Greek letters "Phi Delta Theta" in the lower part of the shield, and a radiated eye in the upper part, was adopted in 1849. In 1865 an addition to it was made, consisting of a sword attached to the shield by a chain.

Argent and azure were selected as fraternity colors in 1871.

The fraternity flag was adopted in 1891. It consists of three vertical bars, the outer bars blue and the middle bar white, each of the outer bars charged with the Greek letters "Phi Delta Theta," in blue, reading downward.

The fraternity flower, adopted in 1891, is the white carnation.

In 1891 Pallos was chosen as the tutelary deity of the fraternity.

The open motto, adopted in 1880, is, liberally interpreted, "We enjoy life by the help and society of others."

The cheer, adopted in 1891, is "Rah! Rah! Rah! Phi-Kei-A! Phi Delta Theta! Rah! Rah! Rah! "

Phi Delta Theta has many distinguished alumni in Chicago, Illinois, and neighboring states. Among them are: Ex-President Benjamin Harrison, Ex-Vice President A. E. Stevenson, Ex-Secretary of State J. W. Foster, Ex-Secretary of the Interior W. F. Vilas; E. H. Canger, minister to China; J. S. Ewing, ex-minister to Belgium; Gen. J. C. Black, ex-commissioner of pensions; Congressmen J. V. Graff and G. W. Prince of Illinois, and F. M. Griffith, T. B. Ward and W. H. Hamilton of Indiana.

Phi Delta Theta General Council: Walter B. Palmer, president, 511 S. Spruce street, Nashville, Tenn.; Walter R. Brown, secretary, N. Y. Life Bldg., Minneapolis, Minn.; Hugh Th. Miller, reporter; Fred S. Ball, treasurer; McCluney Radcliffe, historian.

Active chapters are in the following colleges: Colby University, Dartmouth College, University of Vermont, Williams College, Amherst College, Brown University, Cornell University, Union University, Columbia University, Syracuse University, Lafayette College, Gettysburg College, Washington and Jefferson College, Allegheny College, Dickinson College, University Pennsylvania, Lehigh University, University of Virginia, Randolph-Macon College, Washington and Lee University, University of North Carolina, Centre College, Central University, Vanderbilt University, University of the South, University of Georgia, Emory College, Mercer University, University of Alabama, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, University of Mississippi, Tulane University of Louisiana, University of Texas, Southwestern University, Miami University, Ohio Wesleyan University, Ohio University, University of Wooster, Ohio State University, Case School of Applied Science, Indiana University, Wabash College, University of Indianapolis, Franklin College, Hanover College, De Pauw University, Purdue University, University and State College of Michigan, Hillsdale College, Northwestern University, University of Chicago, Knox College, Lombard University, University of Illinois, University of Wisconsin, University of Minnesota, Iowa Wesleyan University, University of Iowa, University of Missouri, Westminster College, Washington University, University of Kansas, University of Nebraska, University of California, Leland Stanford, Jr., University.

Alumni chapters are in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Baltimore, Washington, D. C.; Richmond, Va.; Louisville, Ky.; Nashville, Tenn.; Atlanta, Columbus and Macon, Ga.; Montgomery, Mobile, Birmingham and Selma, Ala.; New Orleans, La.; Cincinnati, Cleveland and Akron, Ohio; Indianapolis and Franklin, Ind.; Detroit, Mich.; Chicago and Galesburg, Ill.; Milwaukee and La Crosse, Wis.; Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn.; St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo.; Denver, Col.; Salt Lake City, Utah; San Francisco, and Los Angeles, Cal.; Spokane, Wash.

The official organs are the Scroll and the Palladium. The scroll is published bi-monthly, from October to June, five numbers completing a volume. The Palladium is a bulletin devoted to matters of business and the private interests of the fraternity. It is issued in the months of November, January, March, May and August.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA

PHI KAPPA SIGMA Fraternity was founded at the University of Pennsylvania in 1850 by Samuel Brown Wylie Mitchell, James B. Hodge, Alfred Victor DuPont, Charles H. Hutchinson, John T. Stone, Duane Williams and Andrew A. Ripka.

Dr. S. B. W. Mitchell, the prime mover in the organization of the fraternity, was a graduate in arts and medicine of the University of Pennsylvania. He served with distinction during the civil war as surgeon and was breveted Lieutenant-Colonel March 13, 1865, for gallant and meritorious services. He was prominently connected with numerous fraternal and social organizations. He died on August 16, 1879, that day being the fifty-first anniversary of his birth and the twenty-ninth of the founding of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

Phi Kappa Sigma started with an active but conservative policy of extension and chapters were soon established in a number of the Pennsylvania and Southern colleges and at Princeton and Columbia. At the commencement of the civil war the fraternity had fifteen vigorous chapters in institutions of high standing. The war closed all of the Southern colleges where the fraternity had chapters and at its termination only five of the fifteen chapters were in existence, though some of the others have since been revived. The chapter at Columbia ranked high among the fraternities there but was so weakened by the war that its charter was given up soon after. Beta Chapter, established at Princeton in 1853, existed for many years sub rosa, but in 1876 it finally succumbed to the anti-fraternity laws so long in force at that institution. Alpha, the parent chapter, has flourished from the start, is influential at the University of Pennsylvania, holds a high position socially in Philadelphia, owns a chapter house and is especially strong in resident alumni,

In 1887, Alpha Chapter founded and presented to the trustees of the University of Pennsylvania a prize, to be known as the "Prize established by the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity in honor of its founder, Samuel Brown Wylie Mitchell." The acceptance of this prize was the first formal recognition by the university authorities of any fraternity organization.

Most of the chapters of Phi Kappa Sigma are at Eastern and Southern colleges; there is but one in the West, Upsilon Chapter, at Northwestern University. This chapter was established in 1872, and has had a continuous and prosperous existence since then. It has a strong alumni membership in Evanston and Chicago and is well known among fraternity men of Western colleges,

Three of the chapters have chapter houses, and there are alumni organizations in Philadelphia and Chicago. The officers of the Chicago alumni chapter are: Frank B. Dyché, president; Dr. Frank Johnson, vice-president; Charles S. Raddin, secretary; Louis S. Rice, treasurer.

A Register of Alpha Chapter was published in 1859. A Register of Epsilon Chapter was published in 1860. The first general catalogue of the fraternity was issued in 1872, an octavo of 136 pages; the second was issued in 1882, of the same form, and of 193 pages; the third was issued in 1894, and consisted of 256 pages. There have been some musical publications, also various addresses delivered before the conventions have been published, as well as the proceedings of the conventions, which have been printed for private circulation only. With the ending of the century, the year 1900, the fraternity will reach its semi-centennial, and a history is then to be issued.

The government of the fraternity has remained practically unchanged since its foundation. It rests with the Grand Chapter, which is made up of delegates from the different chapters, and meets annually. During the intervals between these meetings the power is delegated to the Executive Board, consisting of ten members, elected by the Grand Chapter.

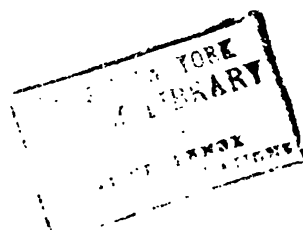

Phi Kappa Sigma does not elect honorary members, cross is a six-pointed star and in the other arms are the Greek letters "Phi Kappa Sigma," in black enamel.

The Flag is of black bunting, six feet by ten feet, the letters Phi Kappa Sigma in old gold, sixteen inches in height, and their width in proportion, extending horizontally along the center of the flag. Old gold skull and cross-bones are in the upper left-hand corner (union), occupying a space two feet square, and are ten inches from each edge. A five inch old gold border runs around all four edges.

The fraternity colors are black and gold.

Active chapters are at the University of Pennsylvania, Washington and Jefferson College, Dickinson College, Franklin and Marshall College, University of Virginia, Randolph-Macon College, Northwestern University, Richmond College, Pennsylvania State College, Washington and Lee University, University of Toronto, West Virginia University.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA ACTIVE CHAPTER AT NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY

PHI KAPPI PSI

THE Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity was founded at Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, in February, 1852, by Charles P. T. Moore and W. H. Letterman. At the time of its foundation, there was an epidemic of typhoid fever in the college, and day after day those who were not prostrated by the disease sat at the bedside of their afflicted friends administering to their wants. The warm friendship formed in such trying times ripened into the fraternal sentiment, which, coupled with the dissatisfaction with the two societies having local chapters, led to the foundation of the fraternity.

During its early history, the fraternity extended rapidly, entering the best institutions in Pennsylvania and Virginia. In later years the fraternity entered Southern and Western institutions, and at present it has thirty-nine active chapters, extending from California to New Hampshire, and from Minnesota to Mississippi. In 1895 and 1896, chapters were established at Amherst and Dartmouth Colleges, this being the first move of the fraternity into New England. The attitude of the fraternity at present in the matter of extension is most conservative, and no new charters are granted except to institutions of the highest standing.

The following is the present roll of active chapters: Washington and Jefferson College, Allegheny College, Bucknell University, Gettysburg College, Dickinson College, Franklin and Marshall College, Lafayette College, University of Pennsylvania, Swarthmore College, Cornell, Syracuse University, Columbia University, Colgate University, Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, Amherst College, Dartmouth College, University of Virginia, Washington and Lee University, Hampden-Sidney College, University of West Virginia, Johns Hopkins University, Columbian University, University of Mississippi, Ohio Wesleyan University, Wittenberg College, University of Ohio, De Pauw University, University of Indiana, Wabash College, University of Michigan, Northwestern University, University of Chicago, University of Wisconsin.

sin. Beloit College, University of Minnesota, University of Iowa, University of Kansas, University of Nebraska, Leland Stanford Jr. University.

The following are the alumni associations: Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Meadville, New York, Washington, Cleveland, Newark, O.; Springfield, O.; Chicago, Kansas City, Twin City, Denver City, Bucyrus, O.; Indiana, Buffalo, Louisville, Salt Lake City, Anderson, Ind.; Portland, Ore.; Los Angeles, San Francisco.

The original system of government was by means of a Grand Arch Council, composed of three delegates from each chapter. The council met bi-ennially, though for many years the meetings were held once in every three years. One of the college chapters, called the Grand Chapter, was appointed to act as executive during the recess of the Grand Arch Council. In 1886 a new system was adopted. Its principal features being the continuance of the Grand Arch Council to meet bi-ennially; the establishment of an Executive Council, composed of three alumni, who constitute the officers President, Secretary and Treasurer, and four under-graduates; the division of the fraternity into four Districts, each to be presided over by an Archon: bi-ennial District Councils and a re-arrangement of the financial and judicial systems of the fraternity.

The secretary is the chief executive officer, and, with the assistance of the president and treasurer, practically has the control of matters under general instructions given at the annual meetings of the council. The present officers of the fraternity are, Hon. Walter L. McCorkle, of New York, president; Walter S. Holden, of Chicago, secretary, and George B. Baker, of Boston, treasurer.

The Catalogue of the fraternity was first published at Philadelphia in 1860. This has been three times revised, the last edition being published in 1894, under the editorship of George Smart, of Cleveland, O., and contains many of the best features of modern catalogues. A song book containing upwards of one hundred and fifty purely fraternity songs, was published in 1893 by Rev. Robert Lowry. A complete history of the fraternity is now in preparation.

The periodical of the fraternity was first called the Phi Kappa Psi Monthly and was published during a part of the year 1875 at Baltimore. In 1879, the fraternity began the publication of a monthly fraternity magazine called the Shield. This has been published regularly ever since. It is under the management of an editor who is elected at each Grand Arch Council. The present editor is Wm. C. Gretzinger, of Lewisburg, Pa.

MICHIGAN CHAPTER HOUSE OF PHI KAPPA PSI

The fraternity is wide awake on the chapter house question, nine of its chapters owning their own houses, which are conservatively valued at $100,-000. Eleven other chapters occupy rented houses.

The present membership of the fraternity is 7,600.

The original Badge of the fraternity was a monogram of the Greek letters Phi Kappa Psi. This was discarded in 1854 and the present style adopted. The latter is a shield of gold, displaying near its top an eye, on each side of which is a star. Across the center are the Greek letters Phi Kappa Psi, and beneath is an antique lamp. The border is usually jeweled. The colors of the fraternity are pink and lavender.

The convention of 1890, held in Chicago, adopted a fraternity yell: "High, High, High, Phi Kappa Psi! Live Ever, Die Never, Phi Kappa Psi!" of which the Rev. Ernest M. Stires, rector of Grace Church, Chicago, is the author.

The Chicago Alumni Association was chartered March 30, 1888, with sixty-four charter members. The object of the association is social intercourse and the keeping alive of interest in the fraternity. Each year a formal banquet is held at one of the leading hotels, and during the year the members often get together informally for supper, or for noonday lunch. The alumni frequently are entertained by the chapters at Northwestern and Chicago Universities.

The presidents of the alumni association have been Hon. Jacob R. Custer, Robbins S. Mott, A. R. Townsend, Hon. E. C. Moderwell, Rev. Frank M. Gregg, Judge Edmund Burke, Rev. Ernest M. Stires. The present officers are, G. Fred Rush, president; Louis Sass, secretary, and W. M. Butterworth, treasurer.

CHI PHI

THE Greek Letter Fraternity Chi Phi as it now exists was formed by the union of three distinct orders bearing that name, each founded separately and without knowledge of the others, finally combined into a unit to secure the strength and influence sought by every Greek letter society and so well achieved by Chi Phi.

In the year of 1854 there was found at Princeton College the constitution of a Greek letter society bearing the date 1824, and having incorporated in its motto the Greek letters Chi Phi. The students making the discovery resolved to revive the old society and in December, 1854, organized the Princeton Chapter of this now great brotherhood. By untiring activity they constructed two more chapters at other colleges, although the original chapter finally succumbed to the repeated attacks of the Princeton authorities, always antagonistic to secret societies.

In the mean time a society had been founded at Hobart College by twelve men who bound themselves in a brotherhood of ideal principles and adopted an emblem identical to the one now worn by all members of the Chi Phi Fraternity.

This nucleus soon expanded into a power, founding chapters at three other colleges, among them one at Rutgers. Until 1865 these two orders flourished without knowledge of each other's existence. The discovery being made during that year by the accidental meeting of members of the two organizations, an intimacy arose which resulted in a consolidation of the two into one order. Then began a period of great activity, resulting in the organization of several new chapters and the publication of the Chi Phi Chackett, the pioneer of Greek letter society literature.

While this work was progressing in the North, college men in the South were by no means idle, for in 1858-59 there were established ten Greek letter societies at the University of North Carolina. Among these was a club named Chi Phi, which during a period of two years founded five other chapters. The civil war, however, was a terrible set-back, only one chapter (the mother) surviving, and the active membership of that one was greatly reduced by the call to arms. After the close of the war the surviving members pluckily went to work, recovered the constitution and charter, which had been buried at the time of Sherman's march to the sea, and rebuilt the organization, meeting with such success that the several chapters formed became a power in the college social world.

Shortly after the war the Northern and Southern orders were mutually astonished to learn of each other's existence, and a plan of consolidation between the Northern Hobart order and the Southern brotherhood was immediately set on foot. Owing to the sectional difference so strongly felt for a few years after the war, the scheme was not consummated for several years. In the mean time the Princeton and Hobart orders of the North were affiliated and finally in March, 1874, a committee composed of three members from the combined Northern organization and three from the Southern fraternity met at Washington, D. C., and adopted a constitution and by-laws for the united order and setting a date for the first convention, which was held in Washington, July 23, 1874.

A period of prosperity and success followed, and many applications for charters to form new chapters were received. A conservative policy was strictly followed, resulting in several strong chapters being organized in leading colleges.

In 1885, the chapter at Amherst College dedicated its chapter house, the first owned by any chapter of the fraternity. Since that time nearly all the others have followed the example of Amherst, notably among them being Cornell and Yale, the latter chapter boasting the finest college house in New Haven and probably in the country.

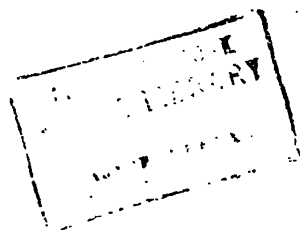

As Chi Phi now stands, it ranks among the strongest and most influential Greek letter fraternities, having twenty active chapters and showing a roll of over thirty-five hundred members, among whom are numbered many men prominent in the professional, political and business world.

Active chapters are at the University of Virginia, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Emory College, Rutgers College, Hampden-Sidney College, Franklin and Marshall College, University of Georgia, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Ohio State University, University of California, Stevens Institute of Technology, University of Texas, Cornell University, Yale University, Vanderbilt University, Lafayette College, Wofford College, Amherst College, Lehigh University.

SIGMA CHI

WHEN the first chapter of the Sigma Chi Fraternity was established at the old Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, June 20th, 1855, the State of Ohio was distinctly "Western" and Sigma Chi was a frontier institution. The brotherhood has grown with the region in which it was born and it is not surprising that the greatest numerical strength is found in the middle western states. For many years, however, the policy of judicious extension has governed the Fraternity and Sigma Chi now claims to be national rather than sectional. Isaac Jordan, Ben P. Runkle, Frank H. Scobey, Daniel W. Cooper, Thomas C. Bell and William L. Lockwood were the founders of Sigma Chi. These six men seceded from Delta Kappa Epsilon. There had been twelve men in the "Deke" Chapter. Six wanted one kind of a chapter and six wanted another kind of a chapter, and the result was a deadlock. There was an aggravated case of incompatibility of temper. After several stormy meetings, the bone of contention being some issue in college politics, the six took absolute divorce from the half-dozen and the Sigma Chi came into existence. At that time Miami was pre-eminent, not only in Ohio, but as compared with other western colleges. The student body showed a high average of ability. Therefore Sigma Chi was happily situated and the founders began their work with fighting enthusiasm.

The rivalry between the Fraternities was intense. No less than eighteen chapters had been established at Miami when Sigma Chi entered the list. The condensed platform of the new brotherhood was, the basis of all fraternal association must be good fellowship and congeniality—a real kindred of souls. The Chapter made its way and prepared for immediate extension.

The Order was first called Sigma Phi. In 1856 the constitution and private records of the Chapter were stolen by the enterprising enemy, and so the name was changed and a new constitution and ritual were adopted. The Alpha Chapter surrendered its charter in 1858, not being able to get the kind of members it needed, and the authority then passed to the Gamma Chapter of Ohio Wesleyan University, by reason of its seniority. It continued to administer the affairs of the Fraternity until 1882 when a grand council of graduate members was made the executive head of the Fraternity, with headquarters at Chicago.

The story of the Fraternity's gradual extension from state to state can best be understood from a running glance at the list of Chapters. With every other college brother it encountered heavy reverses during the war. It has the unique distinction of being the only Fraternity which had a chapter at the front in a brigade of the Confederate Army. It was called "Constantine Chapter" and was organized by southern members for the purpose of perpetuating Sigma Chi in the South. The meetings were held in camp and all the participants were soldiers in service.

The Fraternity published a preliminary catalogue in 1872 and a complete catalogue in 1876. The new edition, issued in 1890, was a large and pretentious volume, bountifully illustrated and containing the best features of modern catalogues. A song book was published in 1884 by the Beta and a new edition, very much enlarged, has lately come from the press. Every loyal "Sig" naturally believes that this is the best Fraternity song book yet published. The journal of the Fraternity is called The Sigma Chi Quarterly. It was first issued by Theta Chapter in 1881. Two years later it passed to the hands of an editor chosen by the general Fraternity. It is published at Chicago and the members confidently believe that it ranks high among fraternity magazines. In 1887 the Sigma Chi began the publication of a secret monthly journal called "The Bulletin," mailed under seal to active members and subscribers, and devoted to the internal affairs of the Order. This novel publication has proved popular and is of great help in the administration of business.

The badge of the Fraternity is a Sigma Chi cross of gold and white enamel. In the center is an elliptical plate of black enamel, displaying the letters Sigma Chi in gold. Upon the upper arm are two crossed keys, on the right arm a scroll and on the left an eagle's head. Upon the lower arm is a pair of clasped hands above seven stars. A chain connects the right and left arm with the top of the cross.

The colors of the Fraternity are blue and gold.

The flower is the white rose.

The coat of arms consists of a Norman shield of blue bearing a white Sigma Chi cross, the shield surmounted by a roll in white and blue, with a crest of an eagle's head holding a key of gold. The public motto of the Fraternity, "In Hoc Signo Vincas," is placed beneath the shield on a ribbon.

Sigma Chi Active Chapters are in existence at Columbian University, Washington, D. C.; Pennsylvania College, Bucknell University, Dickinson College, University of Pennsylvania, Lehigh University, Pennsylvania State College, Washington and Lee University, Roanoke College, University of Virginia, Randolph-Macon College, Hampden-Sidney College, University of North Carolina, Miami University, Ohio Wesleyan University, Denison University, Centre College, University of Cincinnati, Kentucky State College, West Virginia University, Ohio State University, Indiana University, De Pauw University, Butler University, Hanover College, Purdue University, Northwestern University, University of Michigan, University of Illinois, University of Chicago, University of Wisconsin, Beloit College, Illinois Wesleyan University, Albion College, University of Minnesota, University of Nebraska, University of Kansas, University of Missouri, University of Mississippi, University of Texas, Tulane University, Vanderbilt University, Leland Stanford, Jr. University, University of California, University of Southern California, Hobart College, Dartmouth College, Columbia University, Cornell University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON

THE Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity was founded at the University of Alabama, March 9, 1856, the founders and first charter members being Noble Leslie De Notie, Wade Foster, J. W. Kerr, Nathan E. Cockrell, John B. Randolph, Samuel M. Dennis and Abner E. Patton. All of these founders are now deceased except Randolph and Kerr, who are both octogenarians, yet still loyal and young in fraternity spirit.

For a time, in the early history of the fraternity, its extension was confined largely to the Southern schools, and to such a degree, in fact, was this true that for a number of years it was known as a Southern institution. Gradually progress was made East and North until now it is well represented at the largest schools all over the country. Its enterprise has given it a place among the strongest of Greek letter organizations.

The D. C. P. Chapter at Columbian University, chartered during the third year of the fraternity's existence, was the only chapter to survive the civil war. No chapters had been established during the period of war, and not until 1866 was extension attempted, when Mississippi Upsilon, at the University of Mississippi, was granted a charter, and the fraternity began a system of rapid but conservative extension, charters being granted only to the strongest and best institutions of learning.

President McKinley wears the little diamond-shaped pin of the fraternity, bearing the insignia of the Lion and the Goddess of Liberty, under which is inscribed the initials of the "frat," "S. A. E." He has always taken an active interest in the fraternity, delivering the address at the laying of the corner stone of the S. A. E. chapter house at Ann Arbor.

Among the other prominent alumni are Ex-Congressman W. L. Wilson, Hon. John G. Carlisle and Gov. Atchinson of Georgia.

The S. A. E. alumni are numerous in Chicago, and have a strong alumni association, which meets every quarter for its regular banquet. The Evanston Chapter, being the nearest active branch, frequently attend. Harry S. Bunting, E. C. Nichols, Dr. Chas. W. Heywood, Chas. H. Osborn, W. K. Carlisle and H. W. Wallace are among the older members and former officers of the Chicago Association.

The present officers are; President, Dr. Walter G. Gray; vice-president, Wm. E. Sheller; treasurer, Harvey Yeaman; secretary, Chester A. Grover.

Strong alumni associations of the fraternity also exist at New York City, Boston, Atlanta, Cincinnati, Savannah, Pittsburgh, Augusta (Ga.), Alliance (O.), Chattanooga (Tenn.), Kansas City, Jackson (Miss.), Cleveland (Ohio). Detroit and Freeport (Ill.)

The colors of the fraternity are purple and old gold, changed from royal purple in 1883.

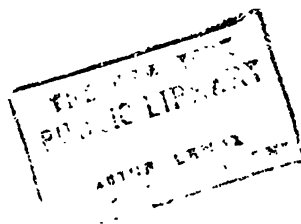

The present membership is approximately 4,000.

Following is the list of the active chapters: Boston University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Harvard University, Leland Stanford Jr. University, Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Trinity College, Columbia University, St. Stephen's College, Allegheny College, Dickinson College, Pennsylvania State College, Bucknell University, University of Virginia, Washington and Lee University, University of North Carolina, Davidson College, South Carolina College, Furman University, Wofford College, University of Georgia, Mercer University, Emory College, Georgia School of Technology, Central University, Bethel College, Southwestern Presbyterian University, Cumberland University, Vanderbilt University, University of Tennessee, University of the South, Southwestern Baptist University, University of Alabama, Southern University, Alabama A. and M. DELTA TAU DELTA

THIS Fraternity was organized during the fall of 1859, but all data being lost at the time of the Civil War, and it being impossible to fix the date exactly, January, 1860, has been officially recognized as the date of its founding.

The first form of government was naturally under-graduate, one chapter governing the rest under the name of Alpha; there were four such chapters from the founding until 1884, when the present form of government was adopted; they were, the Mother Chapter at Bethany, the Second Mother at Jefferson, now Washington and Jefferson, Ohio Wesleyan and Allegheny.

The National Convention of 1873 divided the Fraternity geographically into four sections, each with a presiding chapter, for the purpose of assisting the Alpha in the administration of the affairs of the Fraternity. The same idea is still found in the machinery of Delta Tau Delta though the presiding chapters have been abolished.

The Convention of 1884 legislated out of existence under-graduate government, and elected a committee consisting of five Alumni and the Presidents of the four Provinces, in whose hands was placed the duty of administering the affairs of the Fraternity, in many points absolutely, in others during the interim between the Biennial Conventions.

In 1884 the W. W. W., or Rainbow Fraternity united with the Delta Tau Delta, the former being a society limited strictly to the Southern States, organized in 1848 and with an excellent membership.

Since the ten first years of the Fraternity's life, the election of honorary members has been forbidden, and since that time every man who has the right to wear the badge, received that right while a college student.

Delta Tau Delta first of all fraternities prohibited the initiation of sub-freshmen; for years it stood alone in prohibiting lifting, by making any man who joined another fraternity ineligible to membership in its ranks, and even today it has but little company on this point; while some years ago it passed legislation against class societies.

Up to the union with Rainbow, the colors of the Fraternity were purple and Gold, since that occurrence white has been inserted between the other two. The official organ is "The Rainbow," which has been published continuously since 1877, first under the title of "The Crescent," then under the present name. Six catalogues have been published, the latest in June 1897, and the Song Book was published about 1884.

The growth of Delta Tau Delta has been marked by the withdrawal as well as the granting of charters, and Chapters are now in existence in the following Institutions. The State Universities of Mississippi, Georgia, Virginia, Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Colorado, Nebraska, Illinois, California, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Pennsylvania; the Universities of Brown, Cornell, Lehigh, De Pauw, Indianapolis, Ohio Wesleyan, Ohio, Northwestern, Chicago, Leland Stanford, Jr., Tulane, University of the South, Washington and Lee, Vanderbilt; Emory College, Albion, Allegheny, Hillsdale, Wabash, Washington and Jefferson, Tufts, Adelbert, Kenyon, Stevens Institute, Rensselaer, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Chicago Alumni Association of Delta Tau Delta is one of the oldest in the city, it having been chartered in February 1880. There are about one hundred and fifty members living in the city, of whom about fifty are active members of the Association, as according to its rules only those are active who pay its annual dues.

Eight meetings or informal suppers are held during the fall, winter and spring months of the year, on the last Friday evening of the month, they have mostly been held at the Athletic Club. The formal Annual Dinner is held on the Friday evening in February nearest to Washington's Birthday.

Chicago, March 24th, 1898.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

“DOWN on the Blue James River,” is a favorite song with the members of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, because it refers to the fact that the brotherhood was born at Richmond, Va., on September 11, 1865. The founders were Rev. Otis Allan Glazebrook, still prominent in the Episcopal Church, with which he is connected at Elizabeth, N. J.; Capt. Alfred Marshall, who died of yellow fever at Mobile, Ala., in 1870, and Judge Erskine Mayo Ross, prominent in the legal profession of the West, and now Judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of California.

For some years the fraternity membership was confined to the South, but in 1881 a chapter was founded at the University of Pennsylvania, which is still active, and at present the list of chapters comprises Alabama A. and M. College, Southern University, University of Alabama, University of Georgia, Emory College, Mercer University, School of Technology, at Atlanta; University of Illinois. Rose Polytechnic Institute, Tulane University, Tufts College, State College, Maine; Colby University, Adrian College, Hillsdale College, Albion College, University of Nebraska, University of North Carolina, Trinity College, St. Lawrence University, Cornell University, Mt. Union College, Wittenberg College, Wesleyan University. Marietta College, Ohio State University, Muhlenburg College, Lehigh University, Pennsylvania College, University of Pennsylvania, Brown University, Southwestern Presbyterian University, Vanderbilt University, Southwestern Baptist University, Cumberland University, University of the South, Austin College, University of Texas, University of Vermont, Washington and Lee University, University of Virginia. The total number is forty-two.

In addition to these there are state alumni associations in active existence in Alabama, Massachusetts, Illinois, Ohio, District of Columbia, New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Texas. And there are thriving city alumni associations at Allentown, Pa., Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Washington, New York, Pittsburg, Atlanta.

The chief executive officer of the fraternity is the Worthy Grand Chief, and the present incumbent is Dr. Larkin W. Glazebrook, of Washington, D. C., a son of one of the founders. Bi-ennial congresses are held, to which chapters and alumni associations send delegates. The congress is the legislative body of the fraternity, and in the intervals between congress its powers are exercised by the high council, which consists of five prominent alumni, the present chairman being E. J. Shives, A. M., of Sandusky, O.

The fraternity publications consist of a song book, catalogue and a quarterly magazine, called the "Palm," which is published by Louis C. Ehle, of Chicago.

According to the latest edition of the catalogue, published in 1897, the total fraternity membership was then 4,134.

The fraternity Badge is a maltese cross, with the Greek letters reading up and down, "Alpha Tau Omega," and the same from right to left, the "Tau" being in the center. The arms of the cross and the center, on which the letters appear, are in black enamel, with border of gold. The center also bears a gold crescent and three gold stars. The edges are frequently beveled and the badge heavily jeweled.

The fraternity flower is the white tea rose, and the fraternity colors are blue, green, white and gold, and for general use, sky blue and old gold are used.

A fraternity whistle was adopted at the last congress, but all the brothers are not able to whistle it, and this ability is not a prerequisite of fraternity membership.

The fraternity yell is, "Hip, Hurrah! Hip, Hurrah! Three Cheers for Alpha Tau! Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!"

Among the prominent Chicago Alpha Taus are Robert A. Waller, city comptroller; F. C. Bryan, Chicago agent for the Norfolk & Western; Victor F. Lawson, of the Chicago Record; Chauncey W. Martyn, attorney at law, of the firm of Stillman & Martyn; Warren A. Drake, expert on handwriting; Everett A. Thornton, with C. H. Mears & Co.; Walter S. Dole, superintendent of People's Gas Light and Coke Co.; R. B. Daggett, manager of the Electric Storage Battery Co., etc., etc.

KAPPA ALPHA

KAPPA ALPHA (Southern) was founded in the year 1865, at Washington and Lee University. Its growth has been confined mostly to institutions in the South, where it has a large number of prosperous chapters.

The fraternity stands well and its career has been marked by aggressive activity. General conventions have been held annually since 1870.

Several catalogues have been issued and the journal of the fraternity is published regularly.

The colors are red (cardinal) and gold.

No alumni association exists in Chicago, the local membership being small on account of the purely Southern character of the fraternity. The following are members in Chicago:

A. Rawson Waller, Pi chapter, University of Tennessee, class of '86, occupation warehouseman, business address 2-18 Clark street, residence 356 Dearborn Avenue.

Edward Waller, Pi chapter, University of Tennessee, class of '87, occupation fire insurance, business address 170 La Salle street, residence 356 Dearborn avenue.

Bailey Finley Williamson, Tau chapter, Wake Forest and Cornell universities, classes of '89 and '94, occupation chemist and superintendent of refinery department Armour & Co., residence 4311 Ellis avenue.

KAPPA SIGMA

THE Kappa Sigma Fraternity was founded in 1867 at the University of Virginia, by George Miles Arnold, George Wyatt Hollingsworth, Edmund Law Rogers, John Edward Semmes, John Covert Boyd and others. The idea of the founders seemed to be to maintain a strictly local society, and consequently extension was not attempted till six years later, when the government of the parent chapter had passed out of the hands of the founders. Since 1873 the growth of Kappa Sigma has been rapid and extensive, its present roster of forty-seven active chapters embracing a majority of the leading institutions of the country. There are ten alumni chapters and four state associations. Eleven of the active chapters occupy chapter houses, several of which are owned by the fraternity.

Kappa Sigma maintains a hundred-page bi-monthly magazine, "The Caduceus," which was established in 1885, and a bi-monthly secret publication, "The Star and Crescent," for members only. Other publications of the fraternity have been several catalogues, a directory, songs and musical compositions,

The Badge is the star and crescent; the colors, maroon, old gold and peacock blue; the flower, the lily of the valley.

The yell, "Rah, rah, rah, crescent and star; vive la, vive la, Kappa Sigma."

The membership of Kappa Sigma is between three and four thousand.

Alumni associations: Yazoo City, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, New York, New Orleans, Chicago, Indianapolis, Ruston, La.

Active Chapters: Louisiana State University, Davidson College, Centenary College, University of Virginia, Randolph-Macon College, Cumberland

University, Southwestern University, Vanderbilt University, University of Tennessee, Washington and Lee University, William and Mary College, University of Arkansas, Swarthmore College, Tulane University, University of Texas, Hampden-Sidney College, Southwestern Presbyterian University, Purdue University, University of Maine, University of the South, Trinity College, Mercer University, University of Illinois, Pennsylvania State College, University of Pennsylvania, University of Michigan, Columbia University, Southwestern Baptist University, U. S. Grant University, Cornell University, University of Vermont, University of North Carolina, Wofford College, Bethel College, Kentucky University, Wabash College, Bowdoin College, Ohio State University, Georgia School of Technology, Millsaps College, Bucknell University, Lake Forest University, University of Nebraska, Wm. Jewell College.

The local alumni association is one of the most active in the fraternity and its membership of fifty comprises some of the leading business and professional men of the city. Its meetings are held quarterly, opening with a six o'clock dinner at the Hotel Bismarck, and are looked forward to by the members with no small degree of interest.

The present officers of the association are: President, Walter S. Carr, 1012 Ashland Blk.; secretary, W. H. Aldrich; treasurer, Angus Roy Shannon.

SIGMA NU

THE youngest of all the men's general college fraternities now in active existence is Sigma Nu. This most youthful of the fraternity family was founded on January 1, 1869, at the Virginia Military Institute, by Cadets James F. Hopkins, of Mapleville, Ark.; J. W. Hopson, of Memphis, Tenn.; Greenfield Quarles, of Helena, Ark.; J. W. Riley, of St. Louis, Mo., and R. E. Semple, of Mississippi, three of whom, it will be observed, were Western men, while the other two were Southern. Its formation was largely the result of dissatisfaction with the unlimited and arbitrary control which the parent chapter of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity, recently organized at the institute, exercised upon the affairs of the latter. At the time of its organization, the new order had no intention of extending itself beyond the walls of the Virginia Military Institute. But before the next commencement it had been so successful—having initiated forty men and secured all the principal officers of the Cadet Corps; and had representatives in so many states, its forty members hailing from forty different ones—that it determined upon a policy of extension. Thereupon, a constitution, a badge, and fraternity signs and symbols were adopted.

But for some years little real progress in extension was made. A number of other chapters were founded, but in many instances the character of the institution in which the chapter was placed prevented success. Some of the institutions entered were small and insignificant, and very elementary in character. One of them, for instance, was a little Asheville, N. C., law school, which soon closed its doors. Other institutions had faculties which became hostile to fraternities, and adopted such regulations that the chapters there organized were crushed out of existence.

In other instances of these early chapters, the members themselves were incapable of successfully carrying the obligations incident to membership in a college fraternity. Some chapters were unable to cope with old and strong rivals owning chapter houses. Others initiated so few men that a new collegiate year would begin with only one or two of them returned. One chapter was founded not among college students at all, but among young men in the town of Tarboro, N. C.; and of course it soon died. So ineffective and unsuccessful was the early life of the Sigma Nu Fraternity that in 1883, fourteen years after its foundation at the Virginia Military Institute, it had in active existence but three of the nine chapters which had been founded, and had initiated but 300 persons.

In 1883, however, its struggle for existence became more successful. In this year and the next succeeding year, 1884, there were organized six chapters, five of which are to-day in active existence, and are among the strongest and most stable chapters in the fraternity. Two of these five chapters are situated in Kentucky, one at Central University, and the other at Bethel College. Two others are in Georgia, one at Mercer University and the other at Emory College. The fifth is in Kansas, at the Kansas State University.

In 1885, Lehigh University, Pennsylvania, was successfully entered. In 1886, there were established five more chapters, three of which are now living. In 1887, one more was added, and, in 1888, four more. And so succeeding years have seen the chapter roll and member list grow in size. On the 23rd of February, 1898, the date of the last authentic information furnished me, fifty-three chapters in all had been established, of which number forty-one were then living; while the number of initiates had reached 2,869.

But the increase in the chapter roll is not the only improvement the fraternity has undergone. It has shown a marked improvement in quality as well. While many of the early chapters, and some few even of the recent ones, have been placed in small and insignificant institutions of learning and confined largely to the South, many of the later ones have been located at institutions of prominence, size and influence in widely separated parts of the country. The chapter roll now includes many of the largest and most influential of the colleges of the middle West and West, such as the University of Chicago, Northwestern University, Purdue University, Leland Stanford Jr. University, and the University of California, as well as a few of the prominent Eastern institutions, such as Lehigh University and the University of Vermont.

Active chapters are at Lehigh University, University of Vermont, University of Virginia, University of South Carolina, Washington and Lee University, University of North Carolina, North Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical College, Mercer University, University of Georgia, Emory College, Western Georgia Agricultural and Mechanical College, Georgia School of Technology, University of Chicago, Purdue University, Northwestern University, Ohio State University, De Pauw University, Indiana State University, Rose Polytechnic Institute, Vanderbilt University, University of Missouri, Mount Union College, Lombard University, Albion College, University of Alabama, Louisiana State University, Alabama Agricultural and Mechanical College, Central University, Bethel College, Cumberland University, University of Iowa, William Jewell College, Leland Stanford Jr. University, University of California, University of Kansas, University of Washington, and University of Texas.

Three of these chapters own chapter houses; while ten others occupy rented houses.

Besides the active chapters in the colleges, there are Alumni Associations in most of the large cities in the country,

The Sigma Nu badge comprises a pin having a golden serpent coiled at its center, and having five white radially disposed arms, in each of which is a pair of crossed golden swords, and one of the Greek motto letters.

The fraternity colors are black, white and old gold.

Its organ is a quarterly publication called the Delta.

The present officers are: Isaac P. Robinson, Baltimore, Md., regent; James Alvin Clark, Clinton, Ill., vice-regent; Henry M. Furman, New Orleans, La., treasurer, and Clarence E. Woods, Richmond, Ky., recorder.

Since 1883, when its existence as a national fraternity really began, the Sigma Nu Fraternity has displayed an energy, vigor and aggressiveness characteristic of youth.

At that time it had practically no standing as a national fraternity. It had but a comparatively small number of members, and but a few chapters. Its few chapters were situated in small and uninfluential institutions of learning, in one part of the country. It owned no chapter houses, and rented none.

In fifteen years it has gained a place for itself among national college fraternities, and a standing which is believed to be good. It has established and maintained chapters in many of the most prominent and influential institutions in the country. Its membership roll has increased ninefold. It has acquired ownership of three chapter houses, and its chapters rent ten others. And withal, it has maintained a high standard of mental and moral excellence, as well as fraternal qualifications, for its members, so that they stand well, are respected, and receive their share of honors at the institutions in which they are students. All this has been accomplished in competition with college fraternities possessing all the advantages which greater age might give them.

As might be expected as a result of its extreme youth, Sigma Nu cannot exhibit a large list of prominent and influential alumni. Nevertheless it is not entirely lacking in this matter.

Its list of members already includes six or eight national congressmen, twenty or thirty state senators and representatives, the mayors of several cities, a number of national electors, a few members of the national consular service, one state solicitor general, two college presidents, and a considerable number of prominent ministers, churchmen, lawyers, physicians and business men.

All of these were initiated into the fraternity while college students, for the constitution forbids honorary membership.

So, all things considered, Sigma Nu feels proud of her past growth and her present standing, and considers that her life has little more than begun, and that, when she has reached her prime some years hence, her successes, victories and achievements will be still more numerous and pronounced than they are at present.
